Dear Sir Arthur:

I thank you very much indeed for your letter. Since I wrote to you I have been able to learn a good deal about the position at Geneva and what is required of the applicant. Had I then had this information I should not have troubled you for the situation is now clear to me as you see it and I think that the limitations to what you could have said would have been too narrow for it to have been of much assistance.

However I heard yesterday that my application had passed that stage for which letters of reference were necessary and its success now depends entirely upon my ability to convince the Official from Geneva that I can do the required work.

I am nevertheless very grateful to you for your good wishes.

Yours faithfully,

Craufurd Martin
