REGULARS GET PERMISSION Men at Stanley Barracks Will Be Allowed to Enlist in Fourth Contingent.

ONE THOUSAND MORE REQUIRED Provision to Be Made to Make Up Any Possible Shortage From the West.

At Stanley Barracks last night the men of the R.C.L. and the men of the R.C.D. were granted permission to enlist for the fourth contingent to South Africa.

While the permission was hailed with delight, a feeling of anxiety among the men that their chances of being taken at this stage of enlistment were poor, owing to the large number already accepted, being nearly all that would probably be required.

The desire of the men to see active service, which was at first denied them because of the recognized difficulty of recruiting men for regulars not licensed under by the fact that instead of getting 46 cents a day, as they now do, they would get $1.21.

The men in London, who were also denied the chance to go, have been allowed to enlist, and all the unmarried men of the ranks yesterday morning signified their intention to go out, but those at Stanley Barracks will not have an opportunity of saying whether they will go or not, until to-day. There is no doubt all eligible will want to go.

Their anxiety as to the numbers wanted being above all, may be relieved by the fact that recruiting will be continued to-day, as pointed out in the following despatch from the Capital.

Also a sufficient number of men have been enrolled for the two regiments of the fourth contingent, under Com. Williams and Boulanger, recruiting will be continued to-morrow in Ontario and the east, as somewhat more than the thousand men will be taken on from this part of the Dominion in case of a shortage in the west.

In athletic affairs the deceased took a prominent part, being a member of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and of the Argonaut Rowing Club. He rowed in the Argonaut crew at Philadelphia in 1898 and at Henley in 1899. He was also a member of the Osgoode Rugby Football Club, in which his military career had been one of distinction.

He was in the Queen's Rifles, and served with the 1st Regiment in the Northwest Rebellion (1885). Ten years ago he entered the Canadian Constabulary, recruited in Canada.

QUICK REQUEST PUT OFF Crown Desires to Produce Further Evidence of Its Theory of Murder.

Brantford, April 21.—The Crown asked for a further adjournment of the inquest on the body of James Quirk, which there is more evidence of the theory of murder that it is desired to place before the jury, and so no verdict was reached to-night. The result of the post-mortem examination was read by one of the doctors who assisted at the autopsy, and it showed that there were five distinct wounds on the head. Four of these were scalp wounds and did not penetrate the skull. The fifth wound was directly on top of the head and did enter the skull, although it did not penetrate the brain.

Report of the Autopsy. The two medical men who performed the autopsy, Dr. J. W. Dight and Dr. Harry R. Frank, were both called, and the most interesting feature of the evening was the difference in their opinions. Dr. Dight, who is one of the oldest practitioners in the city, stated emphatically that he believed all the wounds might have been caused by a fall from the ladder, in view of the fact that there was a corn chopper on the ladder in close vicinity, and he thought it quite possible that Quirk may have struck these things. He failed to notice less than three scalp wounds by falling on a sidewalk. He was very closely questioned by Crown Attorney Wilkes, but his opinion could not be shaken, and he stated finally that he thought the wounds were the result of a fall, and that they were inflicted by some one who struck the man when he was not looking. He said that he had a hatchet which possibly had been the instrument used, nor did he think a dull weapon was used, as there would have been wounds of a different nature.

Angular Iron Bar Used. Dr. Frank's opinion was exactly opposed to this. He most emphatically stated that in his opinion the injuries could not possibly have been caused by a fall, and he judged this from the nature in which the body lay when he was called to the scene. The fact that it was a corn chopper was not within a close distance and from the fact that Quirk had fallen the fatal wounds would have been accounted for, but the others would have been dragging wounds and not clean-cut ones. He pointed out that an angular bar of iron was used, and that it was not a hatchet, because of a fracture of the bone on the top of the head which could only have been caused by Quirk's falling head downwards.

Other Evidence Unimportant. One of the boarders, George Taylor, who was in the room at the time Quirk was killed, was very early on the scene, gave some unimportant evidence as to going to Quirk's room, and as to seeing the body of Quirk lying on the floor. He was asked if he saw any blood, and he replied that he saw some blood on the floor, and that he saw some blood on the wall. He was also asked if he saw any blood on the ceiling, and he replied that he saw some blood on the ceiling. He was also asked if he saw any blood on the floor, and he replied that he saw some blood on the floor.
