Men like Corbett, Jack O Brien and our own Charley Mitchell were, when in the business, considered cute and long-headed. O'Brien was a smart fellow and a good organizer for soft things, but his hands were small; left wing, Hamilton. Hamilton. The line up was as follows:

He cleared out Gnr. Moir without turning a hair, and he will, if he feels so inclined, dispose of Jack Palmer and Jem Roche with even less trouble. I do not know if Burns is going to fight for the pictures or not, or whether he intends to get the business over quickly, or give the spectators plenty for their money. It all depends how he feels. I have no desire whatever to throw cold water on what is ever to throw cold water on the coles of the Toronto than the cold that the cold that the cold that the cold that the co coming next month and in March, but it really does seem remarkable—more than remarkable, in fact—to find men like Palmer and Roche with backing Palmer and Roche with backing Referee-W. Tommy is the draw, and, this being so, Tommy should get the lion's share of the boodle, which he will assuredly do, always providing defeat does not overtake him.

Among boxing men generally, the matching of Roche with Burns was never taken seriously. It was looked upon more in the light of an advertisement for the first named than anything else, despite the fact that Irishmen will stand anything they take a fancy to. To me it looks a matter of senting the stand anything they take a fancy to. To me it looks a matter of senting the stand anything they take a fancy to.
