tempted a surprise attack, but was repulsed.

"A German airplane was brought down by one of our machines and fell in the Bois Beau Morais, south of Craonne. The pilot, who was wounded, and an officerobserver, unwounded, were taken prisoner.

"The Germans continued to bombard Rheims, into which 1200 shells were fired today, eight on the cathedral.

"Belgian communication: In the night the enemy south of St. Georges sent an assaulting detachment against one of our posts, which it succeeded in penetrating, but was immediately ejected after a hand-to-hand fight, suffering heavy losses. The artillery fighting was very lively along the whole front, particularly in the sector of Steenstraets.

SOLDIERS LOOKING HAMILTON PARADE TO BE MEMORABLE ONE Confederation Celebration Monday Will See Many Veterans in Line of March.

Hamilton, Friday, June 28.—The confederation parade, which will be held here Monday, will be an interesting military event owing to the fact that there is a possibility that the members of the Great War Veterans' Association and the veterans of '66 will take part. It has been made compulsory for the members of the Thirteenth and Ninety-First militia to attend, and consequently there will be a large turn-out. As previously announced, Brigadier-General Sir John M. Gibson will take the salute in Victoria Park.

M. Gibson will take the salute in Victoria Park.

Previous to the parade Monday the members of the Thirteenth, who have qualified to shoot on the outdoor range, will be presented with certificates. The ranges will be opened in the afternoon and free transportation will be furnished.

Week-end leave for the officers and men of the Canadian Mounted Riffes has been conceled so that they may take part in the confederation parade. The unit, which now numbers about 300, will be accompanied by their cadet band.

of the sender from Alex. Macdonald of the World Office, who is now in England:

One of the lads here received some papers from home the other day. While reading a copy of The Sunday World I tread a bit about the labor and socialist parties not being in favor of the proposed conscription act at home. Conscription in its best form is not a very pleasant thing to think of, but, if it was not absolutely necessary such a procedure would be unthought of in Canada. Canada has done a great deal since August, 1914, in the way of raising an effective fighting force, and it would be a downright insult to the boys in France and England to thing that the people at home would allow their depleted ranks to be reinforced by drafts from anywhere but Canada. You will admit, that if Americans, imperials or Australians were recruited in their countries and allowed to reinforce the Canadian divisions now in France it would reflect discredit on the people at home for not keeping up to fighting strength the army corp representing them in France. It would also mean a great deal to those "over there." Such battle honors as St. Julien. Festibert, the Somme, and Vimy Ridge would be of no importance to those who took part in them. It certainly touches a sore spot to read in the home papers about some politician, who viewed a snowball battle in his infancy, tell the people how to keep an effective force in Canada and France without conscription, when, in six months, if the war lasts that long, they will be hard pushed without conscription to keep the force in France up to strength. Conscription would be a good thing if it did nothing more than get 12 to 14 battalions from Quebec Province.

More power to Sir Robt. Borden and his followers. They have the best wishes.

You will naturally think I am peeved over this conscription issue. Believe me, I am. Every one of the Canucks over here is the same.

Mr. Addison was speaking in the house of commons on the estimates for the ministry of munitions. He gave a striking account of the work of the department since it started a little more than two years ago.

Mr. Addison said that some conception of the magnifude of the production, of explosives might be formed from the fact that in March, 1917, the capacity for the production of high explosives was more than four times that of March, 1915, and 28 times that of March, 1915.

of March, 1915.

Find New Munition.

The ministry had recently reached such a state of production with respect to gun munition that it was able to divert certain national factories to assisting other sections of the munitions program. He mentioned the discovery of a component of a new type which possessed great advantages for certain purposes. A large supply of this had been produced in a short time and was proving of the greatest value in facilitating the advance at the front and in saving life. The requirements regarding the accumulation of a great reserve of held-gun ammunition would be met in good time, and, despite the enormous expenditure in the first nine weeks of the offensive, the stock of filled shells. the offensive, the stock of filled shells had only fallen off 7 per cent. They have also captured the Village of Eleu Dit Leauvette. This point lies just half a mile southwest of Lens. The reason why the advance did not immediately press beyond Avion was probably that the Canadians had to wait for the arrival of pontoons; for the enemy, when he saw them coming, blew up the bridges over the Souchez River.

Stewart Lyon telegraphs from the front that the Canadians met and defeated a detachment of the 5th Grenadier Guards, a regiment of the rather unfortunate Prussian Guards Corps. This large unit, it may be explained, is made up of picked men from the German army and its task has always consisted of opposing the best troops of the allies. By putting in the best regiment of their best corps against the Canadians, the Germans are unwillingly paying them the greatest compliment in their power. The Canadian forces engaged comprised units from Nova Scotia, Central Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia.
