The Twentieth Century Piano

The points desired in a good piano are solidity of construction, tenacity of tune, reliability of action, refined singing qualities and perfect balance of tone.—These are the predominating characteristics of the

“REIMERS” PIANO

But these instruments have also valuable specialties of modern invention, possessed by no others, such as its Separable Case, facilitating moving and easily manipulated; a Tone Liberator, giving power equal to a Concert Grand, and a Metallic Key-Bottom Support, preserving infallible regularity of touch. Moderate Prices.
