

Cure Your Rheumatism 50,000 BOXES FREE

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Pain in the back have been cured, in the real meaning of the word, by a little Stillingia, Iodide of Potassium, Poke Root, Guaiac Resin and Sarsaparilla. Any person can take these remedies in any reasonable amount with perfect safety, and the results have been found to be astonishing. It has been proven that this combination makes up the best rheumatism remedy in existence, having actually cured many stubborn cases of over 20 and 40 years standing—even in persons of old age. The five ingredients mentioned above prepared with great accuracy and skill not only in regard to proportion, but also in selecting the best material, have been set up in compressed tablet form, and are called "GLORIA TONIC," and fifty thousand boxes are offered free to introduce it. If you suffer from any form of uric acid in the blood, and have Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, this is the way to drive it out of your system in quick time. Simply send your name and address, enclosing this advertisement, to JOHN H. SMITH, 1136 Laing Bldg., Windsor, Ont., and by return mail you will receive the box absolutely free. It is only in "Gloria Tonic" that you can get the above combination ready for use.

SHIPPING

ALMANAC FOR ST. JOHN, DEC. 7. A.M. High Tide, 12.00 Low Tide, 6.42 Sun Rises, 7.30 Sun Sets, 4.41 The time used is Atlantic standard. PORT OF ST. JOHN. Arrived Yesterday. Str. Lake Michigan, Parry, London and Antwerp, C.P.R. Sailed Yesterday. Str. Calvin Austin, Pike, Boston, W.G. Lee. Str. Borna, Dutton, Nassau, Cuba and Mexico. FOREIGN PORTS. Delaware Breakwater, Dec 6—Passed up, sch. Monna, St. John. New London, Dec 6—Arr. sch. A.J. Sterling, Eatonville. Portland, Dec 6—Arr. sch. Palmetto, Paraboo. New York, Dec 6—Sid. sch. Grace Darling, Halifax. Havana, Dec 6—Sid. sch. Peter C. Schultz, Calia. Vineyard Haven, Dec 6—Sid. sch. Harold B. Cousens, St. John; F. Merrim, do; H. Trahey, do; J. A. Plummer, Halifax. Machias, Dec 6—Sid. sch. W.S.M. Dentler, New York. MARINE NEWS. The first steamer of the London and Antwerp service, the C.P.R. liner Lake Michigan, Captain Parry, arrived in port last night after a rough passage. She reached the Island at about 7 o'clock and came up and docked at No. 1 berth Sand Point soon after. Her passenger list totaled 334 representative of various nationalities principally Russians and Austrians, and it is expected that they will be landed this morning. In spite of the adverse weather the steamer arrived on schedule time. During the first seven days fine weather was experienced, but for four days it was very rough making it necessary to slow down. Furious gales with mountainous seas made headway impossible at times. Captain Parry, however, asserted that he had a fine sea boat and was not worried at any time. Work of discharging cargo was commenced last night. The C.P.R. tug Cruiser, Captain Frank L. Stevens, arrived in port last night from Quebec. Captain Stevens reports having encountered fifty miles of ice below Quebec. He is heartily welcomed.

Insurance Bill Passed

London, Dec. 5.—Chancellor David Lloyd George's national insurance bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons tonight by a vote of 224 to 21. The Unionists for the most part abstained from voting, for, as explained in the amendment moved by them, while approving the objects of the bill they considered it neither adequately discussed in the house nor explained to the country, therefore they argued further consideration of the bill should be resumed at the next session. The bill passed its first reading in the House of Lords today.

A WARNING TO MANY

Some Interesting Facts Regarding Health Statistics Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys. The physician in a mere moment of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their duty, the proper balance of the blood cannot be brought back to health and a rebirth. When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's disease, country is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in 1910, in the state of New York alone. Therefore, it behooves us to pay more attention to the health of these most important organs. An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a remedy, is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. The mild and healing influence of this preparation is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of cures. If you feel that your kidneys require attention, and want a sample bottle, write to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. Mention this paper and they will gladly forward it to you absolutely free, by mail. Swamp-Root is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes, 75c. and $1.25.

La MARQUISE de FONTENOY

Sir Wm. Grantham and His "Ancestors"—Was Great "Copy" Man for the Papers—A German Count

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company) Sir William Grantham, perhaps the most picturesque of the 30,000 a year judges of the High Court of Judicature of England, and who died so suddenly on Friday last, has just been laid to rest among tombs which he was wrongly accustomed to describe as those of his ancestors. He was a very vain man, and was led thereby to assume an ancestry to which he was not entitled.

In "The Pirates of Penzance," Gilbert makes somebody say, "I bought this estate, and the chapel on it, in the chapel there are ancestors. Whatever is in the chapel is mine. Therefore they are my ancestors."

This droll and fantastic situation was in a measure exemplified by the late Sir William Grantham in real life.

The family to which he belonged is of Sussex, and of extremely modern origin, members to achieve distinction. Most of the other Sussex Granthams were either petty traders, farmers, or peasants. Now 300 years ago there was in Lincoln a very ancient and aristocratic family of the name of Grantham, which figures extensively in the old annals of the county of Lincoln. In some way the late Sir William ascertained this, as well as the fact that the family in question, which had become extinct in the reign of Charles I., had left several tombs and memorials, notably a large alabaster altar tomb, bearing the date of 1619, with recumbent effigies of Sir Thomas and Lady Grantham, in St. Thomas' church in Lincoln, and a stained glass window bearing the date of 1657, illustrating the armorial bearings of the old-time Granthams of Lincoln, in the parish church of Gollie.

Sir William managed to purchase the memorials, the tombs, and the stained glass window, without, however, going through the requisite legal procedure of procuring what is known as a "faculty" from the Royal College of Clergy, or from the ecclesiastical commissioners. Then he had the window, the tombs, and the other memorials, conveyed to his country place, Barcombe, in Sussex, and secured permission of the rector of the parish church there to set up over the altar the stained glass window from Gollie, and to accoutre a place in the church for the tombs and the memorials which are of a very artistic and historically interesting character.

When Sir William was first knighted, on his elevation to the bench, nearly a quarter of a century ago, and obtained from the Royal College of Heralds armorial bearings, he was accorded the motto "Forward." But after obtaining the stained glass window from Gollie, and setting it up in the parish church in Barcombe, he quite naturally adopted, in lieu of his former motto, that of the Granthams of Lincoln, "Comme Dieu grantit," which appears on the window.

While there are hundreds of cases of people, even of the loftiest rank and titles, who are sometimes through their carelessness, both on and off the bench, than the late Sir William Grantham. He believed himself to be a great wit, and was extremely fond of indulging in witticisms while presiding at trials, witticisms which were sometimes at the expense of some young and nervous barrister, some unfortunate culprit, or some witness. As an instance of his recklessness of speech on the bench, I may recall his inquiry of a husband, who in the witness box was testifying to the disbeliever of his wife, "Why didn't you box her ears?" Only last year he was subjected to a grave rebuke in a judgment by the president for his "incoherent incoherence of speech," declared by the premier to be "uniquely unique in the British judiciary," and which related to some remarks which he had made in connection with a trial of an electoral bribery case in Bognor.

A German Count Count George Lehnhoff, whose retirement is announced from the office of grand marshal of the empire of Prussia, and as director in chief of all the celebrated stud farms and horse breeding establishments belonging to the crown, to the state in Prussia—offices which he has held during three reigns, and for more than thirty years—is not only one of the most influential personages of the Berlin world, but also one of the most familiar and respected figures of the European turf—and of the rare honorary members of the English Jockey Club, of the French Jockey Club, and of the Vienna Jockey Club.

He is now in the neighborhood of eighty, celebrated a few years ago his golden wedding with his wife, who was born Countess Kahlenen, and has five children. The eldest son, Count Siegfried Lehnhoff, is destined, in all probability, to succeed to his father's offices, having acted for a long time as his principal assistant.

The old count is very rich, thanks to his own cleverness and foresight. For, immediately after the Franco-German war in which he took part as a German, he purchased the Emperor William, for the enormous sum of 100,000 francs, the estate of the late Emperor, which he has since sold for a large sum of money.

Needless to add that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

La MARQUISE de FONTENOY

Sir Wm. Grantham and His "Ancestors"—Was Great "Copy" Man for the Papers—A German Count

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company) Sir William Grantham, perhaps the most picturesque of the 30,000 a year judges of the High Court of Judicature of England, and who died so suddenly on Friday last, has just been laid to rest among tombs which he was wrongly accustomed to describe as those of his ancestors. He was a very vain man, and was led thereby to assume an ancestry to which he was not entitled.

In "The Pirates of Penzance," Gilbert makes somebody say, "I bought this estate, and the chapel on it, in the chapel there are ancestors. Whatever is in the chapel is mine. Therefore they are my ancestors."

This droll and fantastic situation was in a measure exemplified by the late Sir William Grantham in real life.

The family to which he belonged is of Sussex, and of extremely modern origin, members to achieve distinction. Most of the other Sussex Granthams were either petty traders, farmers, or peasants. Now 300 years ago there was in Lincoln a very ancient and aristocratic family of the name of Grantham, which figures extensively in the old annals of the county of Lincoln. In some way the late Sir William ascertained this, as well as the fact that the family in question, which had become extinct in the reign of Charles I., had left several tombs and memorials, notably a large alabaster altar tomb, bearing the date of 1619, with recumbent effigies of Sir Thomas and Lady Grantham, in St. Thomas' church in Lincoln, and a stained glass window bearing the date of 1657, illustrating the armorial bearings of the old-time Granthams of Lincoln, in the parish church of Gollie.

Sir William managed to purchase the memorials, the tombs, and the stained glass window, without, however, going through the requisite legal procedure of procuring what is known as a "faculty" from the Royal College of Clergy, or from the ecclesiastical commissioners. Then he had the window, the tombs, and the other memorials, conveyed to his country place, Barcombe, in Sussex, and secured permission of the rector of the parish church there to set up over the altar the stained glass window from Gollie, and to accoutre a place in the church for the tombs and the memorials which are of a very artistic and historically interesting character.

When Sir William was first knighted, on his elevation to the bench, nearly a quarter of a century ago, and obtained from the Royal College of Heralds armorial bearings, he was accorded the motto "Forward." But after obtaining the stained glass window from Gollie, and setting it up in the parish church in Barcombe, he quite naturally adopted, in lieu of his former motto, that of the Granthams of Lincoln, "Comme Dieu grantit," which appears on the window.

While there are hundreds of cases of people, even of the loftiest rank and titles, who are sometimes through their carelessness, both on and off the bench, than the late Sir William Grantham. He believed himself to be a great wit, and was extremely fond of indulging in witticisms while presiding at trials, witticisms which were sometimes at the expense of some young and nervous barrister, some unfortunate culprit, or some witness. As an instance of his recklessness of speech on the bench, I may recall his inquiry of a husband, who in the witness box was testifying to the disbeliever of his wife, "Why didn't you box her ears?" Only last year he was subjected to a grave rebuke in a judgment by the president for his "incoherent incoherence of speech," declared by the premier to be "uniquely unique in the British judiciary," and which related to some remarks which he had made in connection with a trial of an electoral bribery case in Bognor.

A German Count Count George Lehnhoff, whose retirement is announced from the office of grand marshal of the empire of Prussia, and as director in chief of all the celebrated stud farms and horse breeding establishments belonging to the crown, to the state in Prussia—offices which he has held during three reigns, and for more than thirty years—is not only one of the most influential personages of the Berlin world, but also one of the most familiar and respected figures of the European turf—and of the rare honorary members of the English Jockey Club, of the French Jockey Club, and of the Vienna Jockey Club.

He is now in the neighborhood of eighty, celebrated a few years ago his golden wedding with his wife, who was born Countess Kahlenen, and has five children. The eldest son, Count Siegfried Lehnhoff, is destined, in all probability, to succeed to his father's offices, having acted for a long time as his principal assistant.

The old count is very rich, thanks to his own cleverness and foresight. For, immediately after the Franco-German war in which he took part as a German, he purchased the Emperor William, for the enormous sum of 100,000 francs, the estate of the late Emperor, which he has since sold for a large sum of money.

Needless to add that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

It is interesting to note that he is a capital sportsman. Until some years ago he was an adept in the difficult feat of driving a four-in-hand from the box of a phaeton, which rapidly increased in value to an altogether phenomenal extent.

Advertisement for PRIGLEY'S PEPPERMINT'S LASTS! Fine for little ones! Fine for everyone! Fine for everyone's teeth! Fine for everyone's breath! Fine for everyone's digestion! The delicious juice of fresh crushed green mint leaves makes it the beneficial as well as the fascinating confection. LOOK FOR THE SPEAR! THE FLAVOR LASTS! Made in Canada. Your dealer should have it. Wm. Weigley, Jr. Co., Ltd., 7 Scott Street, Toronto, Ont.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH GAMERON

"SUCCESS," says the epigram-maker, "spoils more men than failure ever does."

Now, someone has defined an epigram as something which foolish people accept as true, simply because it is easy to remember, so I suppose I class myself with the foolish, when I heartily endorse that first epigram as very true.

Incidentally, I want to add that I think the definition of an epigram is itself an epigram, and fulfills its own definition remarkably well.

To return to the matter of somewhat dizzying convulsion the older I grow the more I am impressed with the danger of success.

I do not think there is anyone who cannot call to mind at least half a dozen acquaintances who have been spoiled by success.

I never dare look back over what I have done," says a man who has risen, in about twenty years, from poverty to the junior partnership in a business which brings in two hundred thousand dollars a year, "for fear I shall be contented."

That is one of the dangers of success, and a pitfall more over into which ten thousand men fall where one wise as this one avoids it.

Another danger of success, a young girl, whom I know, illustrates with painful perfection. She is a girl of twenty, and a modest, lovable, likable young person. A quick turn of the wheel of fortune whirled her into financial and artistic success, and incidentally, made her conceited, over-bearing and self-centered.

She is losing friends today as fast as she once made them. She does not care just now, because she is too busy and too triumphant to feel the need of them. But there will come a time when she will realize that success can bring loss as well as gain.

How many men and women who can drink of the bitters of failure and be the better for the hard draught, lose their heads at the first sip of the champagne of success!

Oh, yes, success is what we all want, and I do wish it for you, my good friends, and for myself, but I also wish that it may not come so fast as to be dangerous and that both of us may keep ever in mind old Horace's sage advice:

"If hindrances obstruct thy way Thy magnanimity display. And let thy strength be seen: that, oh, if fortune fill thy sail With more than a propitious gale Take half thy canvas in."

—Horace.

Count of Frederick the Great," which were full of picturesque episodes, and went far to improve the fair name of Prussia's most famous ruler. In fact, one cannot help regretting that Thomas Carlyle should have been unable to see them before he wrote his standard work on Frederick the Great.

A Marriage Rumor Mrs. Pedar Brugiere has been so frequently reported as being on the eve of marriage since her divorce, that I would not refer in these letters to the story of her engagement to Lord Berwick were it not that it has formed the subject of cable despatches of some length from Paris. Lord Berwick spends much of his time in that capital where, for several years, he was connected with the British embassy as an honorary attaché. He now makes his home in England, living in Clarges street, which is in London and at Attingham Hall near Shrewsbury, when in the country.

Attingham Hall has been for two centuries the ancestral home of his forbears. It contains one of the most famous collections of pictures in England, formed by the court of Naples, and includes examples of the best English old masters. Count Lehnhoff, entitled "Thirty Years at the

ARREST IN MATTER OF GOLDBERG FAILURE

An interesting development in the assignment case of M. Goldberg & Company, which for the last few days has been occupying the attention of the county court, took place about 6 o'clock last evening, when Morris Goldberg, aged thirty-nine, a member of the firm, was placed under arrest by Detective Killen. The arrest was made on the strength of a warrant sworn out yesterday afternoon, charging the members of the company "with not paying their creditors in full and failing to keep an account of their business transactions required by law."

It was said last night that the police were looking for two other members of the firm.

The case which gives promise of further interesting developments was first brought into the courts last Tuesday, when, as a result of an assignment made by the firm, giving their liabilities at $10,000 and their assets at $200, an examination was begun at the instance of the Bank of British North America. The examination was taken up in the county court, with Judge Forbes presiding. Hyman Goldberg, a member of the firm, has so far been the only witness called. From his testimony, however, very little has been gleaned about the state of the company.

Under a section in the criminal code, a firm doing a business to the extent of $1,000 or upwards, is required to keep a bookkeeping transaction of its business affairs.

It is then she needs a Perfectio Smokeless Oil Heater. Its quick, glowing heat warms up a room in next to no time.

That is the beauty of a Perfectio Smokeless Oil Heater. It is always ready for use; you can carry it wherever you please; and you light it only when you want it.

The Perfectio Oil Heater is smokeless and odorless—a patented automatic device means that. It is reliable, safe and economical—burns nine hours on one filling. Handsome, too—drugs finished either in blue enamel or plain steel, with nickel trimmings.

Dishes everywhere; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of The Imperial Oil Company, Limited.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

HEAR HOW WE SAVE YOU MONEY.

It Means 25 Per Cent. Saved To Your Pocket if You Will Come Here For Your Rubbers And Overshoes.

Women's best quality Overshoes . . . $1.75

Men's Overshoes . . . $1.25

Men's best quality Overshoes . . . $1.50

Lumbermen's Rubbers $1.25

Women's Rubbers 45c and 55c.

Girl's Rubbers 35c and 45c.

Children's Rubbers 30c and 35c.

N. J. LaHOOD 282 Brussels St. Near Cor. Hanover.