CHINA EXPANDS

Edict By the Emperor Establishes Navy Department—Re-Organization Army. Peking, Dec. 7.—With a view to expanding and increasing the efficiency of the Chinese army and navy the throne has issued an edict establishing a navy department, which has consisted merely of a consultative board for conducting naval affairs. Prince Tsai Sun, uncle of the emperor, has been appointed president of the new department and has full recommendations for the reorganization of the navy have been approved. The general staff of the army will be reorganized along modern lines, as proposed by Gen. Yin-Tehang, who formerly was minister to Germany and now is president of the war department. The throne points out in the edicts the necessity of making the army and navy effective, and with this in view dismisses many of the old officers of the old school with pensions. The most advanced Chinese, both private and in the newspapers, have of late been pointing out that the alliance which China so greatly desires with the United States could not be attained unless China was able to show her share of the common forces.
