Cost of Weeds.

What I have on the brain is weeds. Some people think, that with modern agricultural implements, and the vast extent of fertile land in the United Parish of Alawick, presently in occupation of William Edmunds. States, we shall produce so much more grain, and meat and wool than can possibly be consumed by our population, that prices will fall so apply to low that there will be no profit in farming. Were it not for weeds and insects, such probably would be the case. My own farm and the Deacon's are overrun with weeds. We are fighting them to the extent of our ability, and are meeting with gratifying success. Our farms are becoming cleaner and cleaner every year, but even yet the weeds cost us more than all other taxes, -town, county State and national—direct and indirect combined. I do not mean that instrument at less than the invoice price, by the labor of destroying them costs consulting the Subscriber. so much, but the weeds that escape damage our crops, to such an extent that we lose half our profits. You BURDETT ORGAN must recollect that the actual profits of farming, after deducting the interest on capital, the cost of labor (our own or others), the wear and for the process of the labor that the actual profits of farming, after deducting the interest on capital, the cost of labor (our own or others), the wear and nounced A 1 by those who should be good indices. tear of implements, &c., are exceed- judg ingly small. I know of comparatively few farms where, after making these deductions, the actual profits are more than five dollars per acre. On the other hand I know of scores of farms where, at least on some fields, the weeds damage the crops ten dollars per acre. And depend upon it, no farmer can be successful until he makes an earnest, NEW ERA & ANDOVER. persevering effort to clean his land. It is fortunate for us that the means used to accomplish this object will do much towards enriching the soil. LEAVE NEWCASTLE. —J. Harris, in Amer, Agriculturist.
