HOME RULE AND IMPERIAL FERRATION.

Mr. Gladstone has been compelled to practically abandon that part of his home rule measure which excludes Ireland from representation in the parliament of the Empire. So long as this clause remained it was impossible to pretend that the scheme was not one for the dismemberment of the nation. The measure may now get through its second reading, though it will be a rather singular proceeding for the house of commons to accept the principle of a bill for the separation of Ireland from Great Britain, on the promise of the introducer of the measure, that he will afterwards eliminate the separation features. The fairer way would surely be for him to withdraw his measure and put it into such form that it will express the principle which he has been driven to adopt. The understanding seems to be that the bill will be laid away for the summer if it should pass the second reading, and that any important changes will take place in the course of the summer. What these changes may be no one can now tell, but surely one of them should be the slaughter of the proposed mixed Irish parliament and the substitution of a simpler system. The collection of elected members and appointed members, of lords and commons, sitting all in one chamber, each order possessing the power of veto over the proceedings of the other assembly, can only mean incessant quarrels and endless deadlocks. We long ago said that this Irish question would ultimately bring the subject of imperial federation within the domain of practical politics. Looking at the discussion in this light, the latest declarations of Mr. Gladstone assume a new significance. He proposes that the Irish representatives shall sit at Westminster when the house has under discussion army and navy estimates, votes of credit for other purposes, foreign treaties, tariff laws, and votes for the royal family. These enumerated classes of subjects are held to be of an imperial character, concerning Ireland as well as the rest of the empire. It will be seen that the imperial federation is assumed to be local in its scope. It will be seen that Mr. Gladstone simply proposes to create two parliaments, one of which shall have control of local matters in Great Britain while the other in imperial matters to the colonies and perhaps one or two others before the classification can be called complete. When the distinction is fairly recognized between the affairs of Great Britain and imperial affairs, and when each class is assigned to its own parliament, the principle of imperial federation is accepted. The federation may not at first include Canada and Australia and the other colonies, but it will ultimately include them.

RECONSTRUCTION IN NOVA SCOTIA.

The Nova Scotia government has been reorganized. Attorney General White has taken the office of registrar for Halifax, and is succeeded by J. W. Longley. Isidore LeBlanc, now a member of the cabinet without office, has decided not to appeal to the electors of his county, and will take a seat in the legislative council. Speaker MacGillivray will enter the cabinet without office, and a similar position is assigned to Daniel McNeill of Yarmouth, who has yet to be elected for the first time. The organ of the government announces that the cabinet may be increased to nine members. These two positions, with two other vacancies in the cabinet, and the speaker's office remain open to the faithful. The recent and prospective appointments to the council set one matter at rest. There can be no abolition of that body for many years to come. The new attorney general is an altogether ridiculous man. He has the most wonderful appreciation of his own gifts, and his speech he said would go down to history as one of the greatest and most patriotic utterances of the day. This year he is a repealer and an annexationist. He is a great Longley.

SQUAMISH FOR REPEAL.

The government of Nova Scotia is emphatically a repeal government. Premier Fielding has issued a manifesto in which he says:—
In the opinion of the government the time has come when the people of Nova Scotia should once more make an effort to obtain a release from a union into which they were forced, and which has been productive of little good and much evil. There was once a party in Nova Scotia which was satisfied with confederation. Today no disinterested man can be found to say that he is satisfied. Dissatisfaction is so wide and deep that many are heard to say that no change could be for the worse. Some of those who were the warmest advocates of confederation in 1871 are now no more than spoken in their expressions of hostility to it. After the failure of the repeal agitation of 1879 to accomplish its main purpose, the people settled down, not very cheerfully, must be admitted, to make the best of the situation. "Give the union a fair trial," said some. It has had a long and more than fair trial, and the verdict against it is more emphatic than before.

LOCAL MATTERS.

A RARE OCCURRENCE.—Was that of a salmon 24 lb. weight, caught in the Basin on the Queen's Birthday, from the stomach of which Mr. Daley, the purchaser, took 30 feet of tape worm, which he has now in his office preserved in bottles, where it can be seen by any person desiring to look at it.—Digby Courier.

LOBSTER FISHERIES.—About 10,000 lobsters were taken by the packing firms at Port Mouton yesterday, and about the same number by the Standard at Blomidon. They are worth to the Standard at $1.25 per hundred. The lobsters are larger and more numerous this season than any previous season.—Liverpool (N. S.) Times.

M. A. COAKLEY writes from Douglas Harbor, Queens Co.,—“On Saturday last H. and C. W. Palmer set three traps for a bear that infested the neighborhood, and during the night he fell in an appearance and lost his life. He weighed over 300 pounds and his hide measured seven feet by three from paw to paw.”

LOCAL MATTERS.

CLYDESDALE AND PEBROHEON PURCHASED.—The secretary for agriculture received a despatch yesterday, from Jas. E. Fairweather Esq., stating that he had purchased two fine draught stallions, a Clydesdale and a Pebroheon. The horses will be brought to the stock farm on Monday or Tuesday next, where their services for the present season will be offered to the public by auction on Wednesday, the 9th of June.—Gleaner.

MILITIA MATTERS.—The Canada Gazette has the following order:—Paragraph 554 Regulations and Orders for the Militia, 1885, is hereby cancelled, and the following substituted:—“554. Candidates hereby obtained at military schools or from boards of officers by individuals who have been successful in the examination in the last five years will be considered as no valid in future.”
