But beyond the railroad mail clerks the number who have abandoned work has been comparatively small. The first two deliveries of mail were effected without the aid of troops, but the distribution of the newspaper mail was not attempted. At the strikers' headquarters there are evidences of great activity, but at the same time much screey prevails. The leaders content themselves with saying that the strike has only begun, but they are confident it will spread rapidly and eventually tie up the entire machinery of the government.

In the provinces the tactics adopted by the Government here are being repeated. The various postoffices were encircled by cordons of troops at daylight today.

JOHNSON AND JEFFRIES

There is a strike on at the shoe factory among the last-makers. This body refused this morning to go to work. The trouble seems to have arisen over the refusal of the manager to put one of the men on in his regular turn. For the past week or two there is said to have been trouble brewing between the head and some of the men which came to a climax today. The men are now talking of forming a union. There is little doubt but that a settlement will be reached before long.

The river continues to rise very rapidly, having come up about eighteen inches in the past twelve hours. The water is now far above the regular freshet height.

Chief of Police Hawthorne received a telegram today from Newburyport, Mass., announcing the death of William F. Agnew, formerly of this city. The telegram inquired if any relatives will be reached these men to death explained the reason of the public hangings by saying that Constantinople was such a city of rumor and traditions of corruption that had the announcement been made that these men had been executed in private, it would not have been believed by the masses. It was desired to impress the people with the fact that the guilty had been punished and had the hangings not been public, the people would have thought the condemned men shortly before they were taken to the places of execution and comment-ed upon the evil deeds which had resulted in their deaths.
