THE MARITIME PROVINCES AND THE RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS.

The singular mistake made by Sir Cecil Rhodes in the distribution of his Canadian scholarships will certainly be rectified if the trustees have authority in the premises. Evidently the large minded statesman did not know so much about Canada as he did about some other parts of the empire. Each of the states of the Australian commonwealth gets three scholarships, while Jamaica, and even smaller West India Islands are remembered. Every state and territory in the United States gets two scholarships. But the three eastern provinces of Canada, and all the dominion west of Ontario are excluded. All Canada gets only the same allowance as the two smallest states of the union, and the Canadian scholarships are expressly restricted to the two provinces that need them least, since they have the most fully equipped universities of their own. All the colleges of the maritime provinces are sending forward memorials to the Rhodes trustees. The memorialists will point out that the omission of this portion of the dominion and the empire is an obvious inadvertence, due to a deficiency of local knowledge. Sir Cecil Rhodes was a man of vast ideas, but outside of the matters demanding his personal attention he did not trouble himself about detail. If he had lived a few years longer he might have had a good deal to do with imperial issues, and would have made the acquaintance of Canada. He died with rather vague ideas as to the relative importance of the different British possessions in North America.

It may be that the trustees will consider that the distribution made in the past will be final. In that case the people of eastern Canada will have no part in a scheme which takes its states of the union of which less importance. But it is more probable that the trustees will regard the plan laid down as a general arrangement open to any modification required to bring about more effectually the avowed object of the bequest. They are men of broad views and wide interests, who will deal justly and intelligently with the proposition before them.

The matter is one of great importance to our clever young men, for the scholarships are each worth $1,500 a year for three years. The cash value of one of these scholarships is three times as large as the Glouchter scholarships, which have been of such great value to Canada. As the Glouchter scholarship provided an almost sufficient sum for a thirty student to live on during his three years' course the educational value may not be greatly different. The Glouchter scholarships are no longer given, but there are now on the staffs of maritime province universities at least four professors who were Glouchter scholars, while we could mention five others who have passed from the local colleges to take more important positions in larger universities. The president of Cornell and the professor of physics at Edinburgh are two of these. A third is the head of the Kingston School of Mines and a fourth holds a strong position in a western university. What the Glouchter scholarships have done for Canadian learning, that and much more may be done by the Rhodes bequest, but to accomplish this purpose it must be available for the maritime provinces, whence came all but one of the Glouchter scholars mentioned above.

A PROSPECTIVE MARTYR.

Colonel Arthur Lynch, member of parliament for Galway, did not intrude until peace was declared. Now that he has landed on British shores he has been arrested on a charge of high treason. It is the boast of Colonel Lynch that he was the commander of the "Second Irish Brigade," which, according to Mr. Michael Davitt's account, was made up of natives of many countries. Ireland, America, Australia, the Transvaal, the Free State, Cape Colony, France, Germany, Holland, Italy, Austria, Russia, Greece and Bulgaria were represented in this corps. Another body known as "Blake's Irish Brigade" made for itself a considerable war record. History, so far as has been published, has had little to say of the achievements of Colonel Lynch and his comrades. If he shall be punished for treason the penalty will be due to his claims and avowed intentions rather than to his achievements. Mr. Davitt's history of the war, from the Boer standpoint, explains the failure of the author to describe Colonel Lynch's war record, by stating that the colonel is himself writing a book about it. "I must," says Mr. Davitt, "leave to his better informed knowledge the task of recording the full story of the corps which he commanded." The commander's great powers of description and fine flow of fancy will probably be found equal to the occasion. Meanwhile the British government and courts must determine what to do with the writer and fighter. Members of the British parliament are not accustomed to disloyal company, but some of them may object to the presence among them of a man who is almost fresh from the camp of the enemy. It is true that the colonel is not quite fresh from the Boer ranks. After Pretoria was captured Lynch left Africa for France, and in that pleasant retreat he has since been engaged in cheerfully proclaiming that the Boer forces would never give up the fight.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., June 12.—Before ten o'clock this morning people from different parts of the county gathered around the town hall waiting for the hearing with respect to Wm. Kelly of Debec, charged under the extradition treaty with assaulting with intent to kill Frank W. Burns of Fort Fairfield, Me., a United States customs official.

Burns arrived in town yesterday with his physician, Dr. Sawyer. He is a small man, perhaps fifty-five years old, and has been an officer for some fifteen years. He is a native of this province, having been born at Antigonish, and has many friends and acquaintances in the county. When he walked into the court room he was quite apparent that he is still suffering from the injuries he received.

A. B. Connel, K. C., and J. G. Hartley represented the United States. L. A. Curry, K. C., and Frank B. Carvell represented Kelly.

When Judge Gregory took his place the room was well crowded. Kelly, a fine specimen physically, had his place beside Mr. Carvell. He nodded cheerfully to his friends, and the crowd of people present in force from South Richmond, W. F. Jenks, special deputy collector of Houlton, sat beside Mr. Burns.

The proceedings commenced by Judge Gregory reading the information against Wm. Kelly for the assault with intent to murder Frank W. Burns. He further explained what was to be done as to Kelly, who said he was ready to proceed, and denied the charge.

FRANK W. BURNS.

was the first witness. He said: I am a deputy collector of customs of the county of Woodstock, in the state of Maine. On the 17th of April I was called to Houlton by Deputy Special Collector Jenks to go on duty on the line near Houlton. A few days later I look after smuggling in that section. On the night of the 15th, between ten and eleven o'clock, I met the prisoner between a quarter and a half mile on the American side from the boundary line. Kelly was driving a double team of horses, and I saw him stop. He stopped. I told him I was a United States customs officer and asked him what his load consisted of. I snapped my light on the man, and I said "I am surprised to see a good looking man like you carrying such a load. I told him to get out of the wagon and put my grip on Mr. Kelly. He pulled out a club and said: "You can't get on here," and started his horses. I took the horses by the head and told Kelly he would get himself into trouble, and I called him to throw down the club. He said "You can't get on here," and I snapped my lantern, and said, "I have a revolver here and will have to use it if you use that club." He rose on his feet, and as he did so got on the right side of the wagon. He said, "Damn you, I'll kill you," and jumped towards me. I then fired at him, and struck him on the left side of the head. I can't say whether the second shot was fired before he struck me again. I fell down, but was knocked down, and I think my revolver was discharged before I was struck again. He struck me on the head again. I said, "For God's sake, Henderson, don't kill me." He said, "Damn you, I'll kill you," and I shouted murder. That is the last I remember. When I came to myself I tried to get up, but could not. Finally I crawled to house. I was wholly unable to rise. I kicked the door and hollered for help. A woman said "You can't get help here; you must go to the next house." Finally I got to a man's house named Turrell. Witness then described how he was cared for at this house. He did not become conscious again till next morning, when he found Dr. Putnam of Houlton attending to his wounds. He was afterwards taken to his home in Fort Fairfield, and was attended by Dr. Sawyer. His head was badly cut, one arm was broken, his ribs were broken, and his back was injured. He was unable to open his mouth very little for two weeks. He was in bed for about three weeks. His back and side still trouble him, and he has dizzy spells.

To the judge, I know nothing about the club that was used, nor have I seen my revolver. The stick Kelly had looked to me two feet or three feet long. One end was larger than the other. It seemed to me to be a stick. When I fired Kelly was on his feet with the stick raised. He could not have struck me unless he jumped. He was in the act of jumping.

Jacob Ferrill described the condition of Burns when he found him at the spot, and Dr. Putnam of Houlton described Burns' injuries.

WOODSTOCK.

Application for the Extradition of William Kelly.

Is Now Being Heard by Mr. Justice Gregory — The Evidence Yesterday.

Frank W. Burns, the Man Whom Kelly Wounded, Jacob Ferrill, Dr. A. D. Sawyer and Willard S. Lewin on the Stand—Points Raised by Counsel for Defence.

WOODSTOCK, N. B., June 12.—Before ten o'clock this morning people from different parts of the county gathered around the town hall waiting for the hearing with respect to Wm. Kelly of Debec, charged under the extradition treaty with assaulting with intent to kill Frank W. Burns of Fort Fairfield, Me., a United States customs official.

Jacob Ferrill described the condition of Burns when he found him at the spot, and Dr. Putnam of Houlton described Burns' injuries.

After the noon adjournment the town hall rapidly filled with spectators to hear the remainder of the evidence in the hearing of the case, and was soon packed to overflowing. Naturally enough, sentiment is almost entirely with Kelly.

DR. ALFRED B. SAWYER.

of Fort Fairfield was the first witness. He said when he saw Burns was very weak and stupid and dull. He was at Turrell's. A spring bed and wagon were brought from Houlton. He was taken on the bed and wagon to the train and taken to Fort Fairfield. It was hard to tell what might develop, judging from the symptoms, when I first attended Burns. I did not think Burns could safely have come before this for an examination, nor that it was entirely safe for him to come this morning. I think his case now serious. The particular danger to Burns is from brain pressure.

This concluded the testimony for the prosecution.

for the defence, submitted that the intent to murder was the gist of the action, while the evidence only showed an intent to cause a doctor. When Burns fired at Kelly defendant was in the wagon. What Kelly did was in defence of his life. Defendant was not within reaching distance. He quoted a case in which a Harvard student threatened to cause a doctor. He met the doctor and every effort was made when the doctor fired and killed. In this case the student had the present ability. The present ability to kill was absent in the case of Kelly. It should be natural law that Kelly should defend himself and he was within the law in so doing and was legally justified. No officer has a right to begin shooting at a man because he has committed a moral offence. It was high time that Burns and every officer should learn that life was a sacred thing. When Kelly said, I will kill you, Burns stated to the former that he had a revolver and would use it.

His honor—Would you admit that if this was a Canadian case I was bound to commit for trial?

Mr. Curry—Not on this charge. I do not think this would be even a common assault.

His honor—I would think I must commit him for trial on something of an extraditable matter. It is different, as assault without intent to murder is not extraditable.

Mr. Curry—The plea of justification was applicable. In order to justify the action there must be proof of malice aforethought. If homicide of manslaughter, there was no intent. The judge—Not as intent to murder with the extradition treaty.

Mr. Curry—Kelly took the revolver from Burns and there was no proof of malice aforethought. If homicide of manslaughter, there was no intent. The judge—Not as intent to murder with the extradition treaty.

MR. CONNELLY.

Mr. Curry is making a mistake in that this is not a trial of the cause, but a preliminary hearing. His honor's position is that if before a justice of the peace he should consider whether there was sufficient evidence to send the party up for trial. My learned friend's argument would be all very well before a judge and jury. Even if the evidence were much weaker his honor had not even discretion. He was bound to commit.

The judge—Would I be obliged to commit him for trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill?

Mr. Connelly—The intent to kill is shown by Kelly's words. Kelly did have the present ability to carry out this threat. The matter of self defence cannot be set up at a hearing on this occasion.

The judge said one point has not been dwelt upon by counsel. It was that no evidence was shown that Kelly was doing an unlawful act. There is no proof of this that Mr. Kelly was coming from Canada.

Mr. Connelly asked if his honor thought this was important. If so he would ask for a time to consult with an attorney from Maine here present.

The court then adjourned for a space.

MR. HARTLEY.

said they proposed to call a witness to prove the laws of Maine, and Mr. Curry opposed the proposition.

The judge did not see his way clear to oppose the prosecution in a space.

WILLARD S. LEWIN.

attorney-at-law of Houlton, was sworn. There was a sharp contention as to the reception of his evidence as to proving the law of the United States regarding customs duties. The judge allowed him to give his testimony. Witness said that officers have a right to stop teams suspected of being loaded with dutiable goods, and secure them till the question of the dutiability of the goods is settled. Witness said he knew the locality in which Wm. Kelly lived at the time of the encounter. He lived in the county of Carleton, several miles from the boundary line. It is the duty of an officer to seize a team which he suspects of smuggling. According to the witness this would apply to all deputy collectors of customs. The collectors have power to appoint special deputy collectors along the boundary line.

FRANK W. BURNS.

recalled, said that he suspected Kelly of violating the customs laws. Kelly told him what he was loaded with, and witness examined the load himself. I was there in my official capacity watching for smugglers. I had never seen Kelly before and did not know where he lived, but did know where he was coming from, because he was on the road coming from New Brunswick. I did not see the team when I heard it. I could see a team about a quarter of a mile away.

The hearing was adjourned till 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Before adjournment the judge announced that he would give a decision on the point as to whether the intent to commit murder was made out by the prosecution.

THE NEW WOMAN.

Miss Alice Cohn, writes from 474 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., as follows:

"Having had poor health for a great many months and now having it restored makes me feel very grateful to Peruna. I suffered a great deal during my monthly periods, had severe pains, and was generally depressed, but can truthfully say that a few bottles of Peruna has removed all pain and made me a new woman of me.—MISS ALICE COHN.

The coming of what is known as the "new woman" in our country is not greeted by everyone as it should be a great blessing. But there is another new woman whom everybody is glad to see. Every day some invalid woman is exclaiming, "I have been made a new woman by Dr. Hartman's home treatment." It is only necessary to send name, address, symptoms, duration of sickness and treatment already received to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., and directions for one month's treatment will be promptly forwarded. The medicines can be obtained at the nearest drug store.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

ST. ANDREWS.

Summer Visitors Arriving—Building Operations—General News.

ST. ANDREWS, N. B., June 11.—The June term of Charlotte Co. court was opened by his honor, Judge Stevens yesterday, and as no cases were entered for trial the court was adjourned sine die. Judge Stevens was looking hearty and vigorous. He returned to St. Stephen, his native home, by steamer in the afternoon.

Summer visitors are arriving some what earlier than usual. Amongst them so far are Mrs. Bowser, two sons and maids, of Wilmington, Delaware, and are in occupation of their residence, Cedar lane, where they have charge of the Bowser garden and farm, on which so far he has done good work. Mr. Thomas, wife and family, of Wilmington, Delaware, are in occupation of the Innis cottage, Lazy Croft. Mrs. and Miss Kate Barlow of Washington, D. C., occupy their old quarters, the Morrison cottage, opposite the Kirk. Wm. Hope, wife and family, of Montreal, are in occupation of their finely situated residence on Dalmaine Bar road. The grounds surrounding the house have during the past fall and spring been greatly improved under the supervision of William McQuoid. A commodious barn and stable has also been built.

W. D. Hart of Tallahassee, Florida, with his daughter, Mrs. Nellie Clarke, is located in his summer residence on Water street.

Dr. N. G. D. Parker of Toronto, at present staying at his relations, S. J. McMaster, has since his arrival a few days ago been confined to the house by an attack of gout in his foot.

Vernon Lamb and Roy Grimmer, medical students of McGill College, are home for the holidays, as are E. R. Shirely and Allan Grimmer from the N. B. University.

Wm. Bannion, an old St. Andrews boy, after an absence of twenty-seven years, has returned to visit the scenes and friends of his youth. For several years he was master of a schooner sailing out of this port. His home now is in Missouri, where he is engaged in railroading.

Considering the changeable weather experienced here during the past week good progress is being made in the erection of the summer residence of St. Thomas Shaughnessy at Fort Tipperary. The work is being done under the personal supervision of J. P. O'Leary, the Montreal contractor, who is a hustler and is respected by the mechanics employed.

The wharf being built by the dominion government on part of the site of the old Market wharf gives employment to a number of men. Substantial progress is being made under the superintendence of William Ross, a practical and experienced wharf builder.

A peace thanksgiving service was held in All Saints church last evening, at which the special ritual used in the diocese of Montreal was read and an appropriate sermon, preached by the rector, Rev. A. J. Langford.

SCORES OF USES.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and other skin diseases, it is found to be in almost daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chafing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds, and each and every form of itching, irritation or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

Rev. Canon Newsham, of St. Stephen, secretary of the Diocesan Synod of Fredericton, arrived in the city yesterday for the annual meeting prior to the opening of the synod.
