

THE TROOPS AND THE IRISH ELECTIONS.

ATTESTED BY THE CANADA.

By the arrival of this vessel at Halifax, on Tuesday evening last, we are in possession of European news to the full extent. An abstract of the same returns from all the polling places in Great Britain have been received, with the exception of those from the remote county of Orkney. An anticipated by us on different occasions, in the very teeth of radical prophecies, which we rarely heed, the Tory administration has been well sustained, the following being the result of the returns :

Ministerialists.	Opposition.
Great Britain, 301	245
Ireland, 46	59
	217

The opposition, it is stated, is made up of such incongruous materials, that it is not much to be dreaded, whilst the supporters of the ministry, consisting as they mostly do, of the most influential and wealthy men of the kingdom, will be likely to unite together in all important questions which may come before Parliament, and thus a conservative government, which we delight to honor, (as all colonists ought) will be amply sustained.

It is supposed that Parliament will meet in October, in order that the strength and efficacy of the ministry may be tested at an early day, and preparatory to the introduction of important financial measures which are required to relieve the drooping agricultural interest.

The Dublin Constitution and Church Sentinel, of the 23 instant, says—“ Beyond all doubt (Lord Derby) has gained immensely by the last election,” and again this paper remarks—“ while, radicals, peasants, and papists, may, on some occasion or another, cause him to have a narrow majority, or possibly to be in a slight minority, we trust however, that he will not stake the existence of the government on slight questions, but by existing Protestant principles, and spreading protestant truth, secure the good will and affection of the people.” To this aspiration, we cordially say—AMEN.

ARTICLE DODGER.—Some of our American contemporaries of the “small fry” breed, finding that the plain language of the Fishery treaty is dead against them, are resorting to all kinds of artful dodges, in order, to evade the effect of it. One of them says, that the treaty cannot be valid because John Bull overreached Jonathan at the time it was framed; or, in other words, during the negotiation of this intricate affair, Jonathan’s right hand had forgotten its cunning. For a brief period the glory (chicanery) had departed from Ichabod.

The Boston Daily Times of Saturday last, says that when the treaty was formed, the Mackellar fishery was unknown, and as such, were only taken within the prohibited line, and this kind of fishing is quite a modern employment, the ministry must be construed as to encouraging this new branch of industry! Now, if this view of the question is a correct one, and which we are a little inclined to doubt, and it should turn out that lobsters and other shellfish, are very abundant out shores, of course this minnow-fisher treaty is so very flexible, as to allow Jonathan to enter in for the purpose of securing them for the gourmands of his large cities. No, no, Jonathan, you have your eye on the flip for once at all events, and well you know it. Our fisheries are indispensable to you, but you have shown such a disposition to keep aloof from us, unless you had matters all your own way, that offer what you will exchange, you shall never enjoy the boon, which you now so earnestly covet. “If a long line which has no turn to it,” and you have now met with one sharp and unexpected, and which has driven you into that agreeable position, yelped a quondam—hence, your new dodge, about the macskett fishery, which takes remarkably well in doubt, among your rabid brethren who constitute the home market. Such miserable quibbling only meets with contempt and ridicule in this quarter, and it is universally remarked, that your cause must be in a desperate condition indeed, when it is found necessary to resort to it. No, no, Jonathan, you will find that you have stubborn material to deal with, not inimical to blustering on, one haul, nor a soft savor on the other. The following we copy from the Chronicle of Wednesday last, and by the perusal of which you will perceive Jonathan that your claim “is above all things deceitful and desperately wicked,” and Church and State both against you!—

“We are informed on good authority, that the Americans on our North Eastern Coast declare, that unless they can follow their occupation in shores, in British waters they must abandon altogether. Twenty-three American fishing vessels arrived at Liverpool on board last week, stigmatized at the approach of one of her Majesty’s Cruisers.”

THE FISHERY QUESTION.—The following is from the Toronto Colonist of the 11th instant. It prefaces an editorial extract from the Chronicle, and wherein we refer to the many commercial advantages enjoyed by Jonathan, without a shadow of return. And still the man is to be found, in this city too! who advocates the entire relinquishment of our Fisheries to this inglorious and unfeeling neighbour!!

In writing on the Fishery question we have observed that the American journals try to make it appear that the occasional visits of their fishermen to our shores, in the North Western Provinces, &c., confer the greatest benefits on those Provinces. They assert that the American fishermen draw large sums of money among the Colonists; that they bring many articles from us, which they exchange for those of the Colonists; that therefore, the Colonists would deeply lament any measure which would compel them to remain away from their shores. In fact they seem to think, or wish to think, that their poaching visits to the Lower Provinces, &c., are of great benefit to the Colonists. To all who know anything of the characteristic boasting of our Republican neighbours, when they may say to this effect, will carry very little weight. It is something of the same description as the boastful victory they are said to claim for Germany, as far as I am concerned, their vanity to suppose, or to make all who know them sufficiently well, believe, that they are profane in scattering advantages on every people around them. We would be very sorry to wound their self-love.

From the Church and State Gazette, under command of Commodore Perry, arrived in our harbor on Sunday morning, and exchanged salutes with the Citadel, and afterwards with the Pine-Sap. Yesterday Commodore Perry landed at the Admiralty Wharf, under a salute from the Citadel, and the Royal Canadian Seminary proceeded to Government House. (Halifax Colono., 17th Augt.)

Governor-General.—The undersigned, General Sir George Grey, Governor of the Colony of the Sons of Temperance, has had the Certificate received by the Act of Assembly, 12th Victoria, Chapter 64, as the Foundation of its incorporation :—

Sackville Division, No. 44, Joseph St. Sackville, Secretary’s Office, August 12, 1852.

The Governor-General will not make her regular trip from this port. Boston on Monday next.

THE TROOPS AND THE IRISH ELECTIONS.

We find an admirable article in our valued exchange, the British Army Dispatch, on this subject, and from which we subjoin a few extracts. The priests alluded to, who have then aided and abetted these horrid outrages which have in some cases ensured for their cowardly perpetrators, in a summary manner, before he was appointed to high office in his church, and was furnished with new facilities for gratifying his profligate inclinations.

From the London Record.

“ Meanwhile there can be no doubt that Rome has revelled to the nation and Europe a vision of the Papal Confessional, which renders all that has been recorded of the iniquities of the dark ages, to an avowal of the shamefulness of the church.

“ Men of all classes, and even the walls of churches, wherever they are placed, are filled with the stories of the sins of the confessor in attempt to be exonerated for the salvation of confounding trembling innocents—when another confessor is alleged to have acted as to shun the shame of a brother priest under the seal of eternal silence, at the moment when the former was investigating the doings of priests within, what are we to say of the majority of the Romish Church in the nineteenth century?

From the Weekly Messenger.

“ The purity of the female character is more seen to us at a stroke throughout the whole Roman Catholic community.

“ In the series of by gone times we have been accustomed to an exaggeration that painted Papal ecclesiastics in colors as high as the lines of the drawing were strong; but truth stronger than falsehood, and the example of the Latin Church, by means of which, the Papal hand have handed down to us a host of scandals.

“ While quickly acquiring to the publication of these poisonously false and malignant pamphlets, it is hardly possible to believe that the authorities were blind to the inevitable consequences of such evasions.

“ It would be useless to attempt to convince the public that the fatal policy of the church, with regard to the education and propagation of the Latin Church, by means of which, the Papal hand have handed down to us a host of scandals.
