

are, for the most part, the nervous, the dyspeptics, who do not grow and who succumb to the first passing sickness.

The number is incalculable.

A campaign against these "Baby Killers" was urgent and it was given to a man of work like you to continue the battle.

Your tract should be in the hands of all the young mothers, they will find in it marked counsels of common sense and truth.

ALBERT JOBIN, M. D.