This new bouquet is scientifically distilled and combined for the use of the " Monde elegant "like the perfume of the Anemone, the Lotus (Nymphoes Coerules) which is a native of Asia and Africa, has in all ages been highly esteemed for its fragrance and delicacy. The Lotus of the Nile, which raises its lovely head above the water of lake Menselet and on the margin of the River Nile, has been called "the Rose embalmed of Ancient Egypt." On great feast days iragrant garlands were formed of this flower, with which the maidens of the East adorned their dark tresses. This chartely beautiful water lily is to be found represented on almost all the ancient monuments of Egypt and Asia in the heathen mythology of the Hindoos and the Chinese, it was the flower of the Post and the Dew of the Sun, and in southern India the flower of the white and red lotus was significant of the purity of the blood of Siva, when wounded by the arrows of Ramadevs, the cupid of the youth of India. In China the flower of the white and golden Lotus were considered by the Buddists as symbolic of female loveliness, and even at the present time the gay Mandarins pay the high and delicate compliment to the small feet of the Ohinese ladies by calling them "Kin Leen or Golden Lotus," and lastly we are told by history that the Proconsul Anthony in testimony of his esteem and love, hastened when he resched the shores of the land of the Pharaohs to lay at the feet of the Egyptian Queen an offering of Lotus flowers in the hope of finding favor in the eyes of the "beautiful Cleopatra." It is the perfume of this classic plant so highly esteemed by the Ancients of the East, that we are now able to ofter in its present form thoughout the

THE DEAD PRINCE.

.. THE RADICALS OPPOSE A GRANT TO HIS WIDOW -RYPCCRITICAL SORBOW.

London, April 8 .- The correspondent of the New York Sun writes:-Despite the painfully rulsome and the ridiculously prolix articles in the papers about the Duke of Albany, the truth with regard to the circumstances of his death is creeping out. Bt is now universally acknowledged that the prince is dead because he was allowed, for the first time in his life, to go out alone on a spree. Intoxicated with his unusual freedom, and accustomed all his life to revolt sgainst the idea that he was an invalid, he lived as fast as he could, danced furiously, stopped up all night, drank pretty freely, and so brought on a fatal fit of that epilepsy from which he suffered all his life. Labouchere, in Truth, is the only journalist who tells even a little of the real facts, and he goes so far as to express regret that the sickly Prince was ever allowed to Society is quietly laughing in marry. its sleeves over the estentations were of the Prince of Wales, as it is notorious that he rather disliked his brother. The members of the Government displayed a certain inclination to ride on the tide of popular emotion by proposing an allowance to the one child of the Duke already in existence and to a second which is coming, but they were warned by some of their Radical Supporters that such a proposal would be resisted to the death, and the nation would be aroused to real alarm by the prespect of allowances to the numerous tribe of the Queen's grandchildren. It was also pointed out that the Princess had an allowance of £6,000 a year, which, for an absolutely penniless German girl, was not bad. The news-papers, meantime, continue to supply food sent, as they were not wanted, and brought for curious reflection on the extraordinary characteristics of English journalism. A Uvely controversy has gone on as to whether the Queen did or did not fall in a faint when she first heard the news. Our reporter, in want of additional details, described at length the tears of the flunkles and the maidservants of the Princess's household. In short, the chief moral of the episode is the completeness with which a silent treaty of universal hypocrisy can be carried out by the English

THE STAMP ACT

MATAMOBAS, April 9—It is thought the stamp act is a blow at the new reciprocity treaty, as articles named as principal ones are conceded by the Mexican Government. It is also required that on the 12th inst. every one shall deposit at the oustoms houses all nickel money they have seceiving certificates in return. Many fear that the policy of the Government will caree serious trouble and perhaps lead to a povolution.

THE PARKELATES EPEAK THEIR CONVICTIONS AND ARE CALLED TO ORDER.

London, April 10—In the House of Com-mongrast night Mr. Parnell raised debate on the subject of the tax upon Irish cities for pyment of extra police quartered upon them ander the Orimes Act. The tax is being especially opposed by Limerick and Cork, and Mr. Parnell said the Cork Council would continue to resist it.

During the debate Mr. Healy, member of During the debate Mr. Healy, member of and a half ago and he has been strongly advantage of State for Ireland, had vised that, in order to preserve the sight of Trevelyn, Secretary of State for Ireland, had laughed at the death of innocent men, and that the Government had packed the jury to secure the conviction of Johnstone, who was secused of the murder of Maguire.

The Speaker of the House called the member to order and characterized such language as a public scandal. The debate being continued, Mr. Biggar, M.P. for Cavan, and Mr. Healy, indulged in sarcastic declarations, which evoked a warning from the Speaker that the debate must take a different course. The subject was then dropped.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of THE TRUE WITHERS:

DEAR SIR,-1 wish to make known, through the medium of your influential journal, the following facts relative to the doings of the Orange party in this town. Before going farther I must state for your information some particulars concerning this town and its inhabitants.

The population, some six thousand persons is composed of descendants of Irlsh, a faw Scotch, a good many English, but the greater number are the descendants of Jersey and Guernsey fishermen, who have amalgamated with the latter, bringing forth a most degenerate race. There is a settlement in this district called Victoria village in the directory, but popular-ly called Mormon Town, the most degraded lot of human beings on this side of the Atlantic,—all made Orangemen by their trusted leaders, the Muskrats! save the mark, who are quite popular among these people as being one with themselves. They acquired the soubriquet of Muskrat from the talent acquired by them in capturing that animal and eating it. It is only within the last half-dozen years this family became acquainted with the use of knives and forks at their meals. They import a few hundred barrels of vegetables and some coals from the neighboring provinces. They turn round and tell their admirers they have been importing turnips, potatoes, &c., for those who would shoot them down, meaning the Roman Catholics-a falsebood. The settlers of this Victoria village were brought here from other districts so as to influence the election of a member to the House of Assembly, and fed there by the bounty of the Government and the charity of individuals.

Now, Mr. Editor, the dwellings of these individuals I will not attempt to describe. The him from his post. In conclusion, we feel wigwam of the Esquimaux is far more comfortable. The cry with them openly was : They were told to go for the Romans." More would ask, "Whar be'm, wished they'd come along and finish em,"as they wanted to go to the Orange lodge to get some soup.

That, sir, is a specimen of a class of persons aided by their allies of the Bay de Verds distriot, who were let loose to insult and beat to death unofiending Oatholics. The blasphemy of these creatures against reverent things would make any Christian blush for the honor of the human race.

A custom for many years existed in this diocese for the Bishop, accompanied by the Benevolent Irish Society of Harbor Grace, to proceed to Carhonear and, joined by their brethren of that town, walk in procession to St. Patrick's Church and celebrate High

The President and officers of the Society were warnedmot to walk, for they would be shot by the Orangemen. The latter had two pieces of cannon mounted on carriages placed on an eminence commanding a narrow portion of the road, aided by any number of rifles, all in ambush. Still the Society were determined to keep up their annual custom, despite the warnings of the magistrates and police. They argued, and justly too, they were a charitable society, an incorporated body; their charity was not circumscribed by creed, color, or nationality, but truly and really what it is -benevolent. mowever, on the evening of the 16th March, the day before the intended procession, a proclamation of the Governor-in-Council, prohibiting the society from walking, had the desired effect; therefore they prudently stayed in their homes and did not walk.

During the three days after the 26th December last this town was Pandemonium itself, the police were draited out of it; but one man, the sergeant and three specials left in charge. Things were to bad the parish priest telegraphed to the blshop to try and induce the magistrate at Harbor Grace to give some protection to the people here. give some protection to the people here. In sol, have been the dear the dear the four men of the horse police were sent; but the sapient individual called the magistrate other graves. The diving schooner Thistie here said he did not know why they were arrived up from the wreck to-day with a cargo of goods, after discharging which she will a cargo of goods, after discharging which she will a cargo of goods, after discharging which she will them into the Court House yard. where they could see nothing, in fact they seemed as it they were hiding. He kept them about three hours, and got a brother magistrate, a Roman Catholic, to echo the same sentiments. Such is justice here.

You will perceive, Mr. Editor, from the foregoing statement of facts, what a hard and trying time is before the scattered Catholics of this district for the time to come. The Catholics have not committed a single breach of the peace; their most inveterate enemies must admit that; contrasting most favorably for them with the ruffianly conduct of the Orange mob. I could olte many instances where Catholics going on their legitimate business have been waylaid and attacked by these sconndrels, a good many of them being of a fatal character. I forbear giving any more details of this, to us, horrible persocution for the present.

PRINCE BISMARCK.

Beslin, April 8-Bismarck, in a private conversation to-day, said: "I have 70 years on my head. My nerves are in a bad coudition. I have no time to be unctuous. The telegraph fearfully multiplies my work. Germany is interested in whatever happens in the capitals of the world, including New York and Washington. The world is a chessboard and I must watch the moves affecting Germany. The chancellorship is no sinecure. Its duties might overtex a younger man's strength. Without the Emperor's support I could not get through the work."

THE "AMENDE HONORABGE."

column of the Collic Magazine:

"During the absence of the editor last month in Washington and Baltimore, an article entitled 'A Plain Statement' found its way into our Editorial Department. To those who know the editor or who are oldtime readers of our magazine, we do not think a single word is necessary to acquit him of the charge of writing such an article. It has been our aim to present to our readers a magazine that would, as far as possible, be entirely unobjectionable in all things. While our whole fabric has been reared upon the foundation of the unerring teachings of the Catholic Church, we dely any Protestant to say that he ever found e single word in our pages which would give him the slightest ofience; and while we believe in humbly bowing before the dignitaries of the Church in spiritual matters, we have never relinquished the right to think and act for ourselves, completely and independently, as far as Ireland or America is concerned. We are, too, at variance with those who claim that it is a Heaven-sent blessing to have our people scattered to the four corners of the earth. No matter what the political views of the Catholic priest or bishop may be, we must always respect his sacred office. We do not appreciate such Irishmen as Cardinal Culien or Bishop Moriarty, but we pay due honor to their positions in the Church. We could never think of endeavoring to lower their religious characters because they differed with us politically, any more than we would allow them to brand us low or ruffianly berule. The course of the Celtic Magazine, In this respect, has never been questioned before, and the editor would not now be called upon to apologize to his readers or Monsignor Capel had not pressing business called it our duty to say that the article in question is oriminally unjust. Its insinuations abould never have been thought of, not to say printed. Under the mask of politics it strikes at private and sacred character; and however unwittingly it may have been conceived and written, it is nevertheless a blot upon our publication that can only be wiped out by its utter repudiation by the editor."

THE LOST STEINMANN.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 8 .- Captain Scott and steamer Daniel Steinmann was resumed, all those on the island knowing anything of the matter being examined, including Henry Alired Gilkie, keeper of the Light House, Alexander Gilkie, his brother, and Gunner Fred Keywork, B.A., who was on duty the night of the wreck as signal man on the lookout. The evidence of the other people on the island at the time was also taken, and was merely a repetition of the foregoing. This being all the evidence available here, the company viewed the scene of the disaster made a tour of the island and an inspection of the lighthouse and fog-whistle, and then returned to town, arriving shortly after 5 p.m. The inquiry will be continued to-morrow at the marine and fisheries office, when the evidence of the survivors of the crew will be taken. The captain being a foreigner and holding a foreign certificate, the court cannot deal with him or interiers with his certificate. No more bodies have been recovered from the water, although grappling was proceeded with all day near the wreck. The divers are at work on the cargo and a large quantity has been placed in schooners.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 11.—The two bodies recovered from the wrecked steamer Daniel Steinmann on Wednesday, those of Gabriel Hickelsen and a boy, supposed to have been his son, have been interred on Cochrane's return. The past two days have been too! rough for diving work, and the vessels bave lain in Sambro Harbor.

THE NIAGARA FALLS TRAGEDY.

FURTHER DETAILS OF THE DOUBLE

MURDER AT NIAGABA. NIAGABA FALLS, N.Y., April 10 .- A Globe correspondent made careful investigation of the case this afternoon. It appears that late yesterday afternoon Vedder coaxed Pearson to go buggy riding with him, for what object is not, of course, known. They came to Niegara Falls, and cause we thought it our duty to risk our the gate-keeper Hyland says they went into lives in freeing our country from English Goat Island about 6 p.m., after which they Both were missed at were never seen alive. supper, and their families, who live in adjacent houses, became alarmed as the night wore on, and James Vedder, a brother of the dead man, and James Howard Pearson, a brother of the murdered man, searched the two villages for tidings of the missing men, The last traces they could get led to Gost lsland. After midnight the services of Policemen Burns and Rolland were secured and the Island's darkness was penetrated. The officars lighted their dark lanterns and waded through the muddy roads on the

The animal was tied to a tree On arrival, the enquiry into the loss of the and was encased in a thin, but solid sheet of ice formed by the spray as the freezing mist fell on the poor brute. When he was relessed the ice had to be broken before he could move. Policeman Burns went down the steps and reached Luna Island. Its surface was covered with snow and ice, and was as slippery as could be. Turning the rays of his lamp towards the falls Burns saw two dark objects at the brink where the terrific current drops over the abyss. Running eagerly forward he and shouted back to the others, "Here's one of them; I've found Vedder." Just then young Pearson came up. He gave an agonizing scream and cried, "No; that's father's." Then he tried to throw himself on the half-frozen corpse, but the officers led him away and prevented Vedder's brother from looking at the body. When the rays of the lamp were turned on the tace it was hideously ghastly. There were two gaping bullet wounds, blood was spattered over the face, and the whickers were singed. There was a peaceful look on the face behind the mark of blood and the wounds, which rendered the sight more hideons. The arms were thrown back, the hands were open and not clenched, and Pearson's watch and money were undisturbed. He had evidently been shot in w feet away the officers found neatly-piled bundle of clothing made up o Vedder's overcoat, undercoat, vest and scarf, and on top was his hat. There was some money in the vest. The revolver could not be found, and it is probable he put it in his pocket after firing the second shot, which must have been after Pearson was already slain. Vedder's body is undoubtedly in the Cave of the Winds, where others who have gone over at the same place were found. The cave is inaccessible on account of the ice, and the only way it can be reached is by using a rope. No one cared to do that this afternoon. Why Vedder committed suicide after he killed Pearson is even more of a mystery than why he murdered him. He may have been driven crazy by the weird unearthly surroundings, the thunder of the waters, and the horror of his orime. The body was removed to E. M. Clarke's undertaking rooms, where Dr. W. S. ALMOST INSTANT DEATH. The body was subsequently taken to Pearson's home, where the funeral will take place at two o'clock to morrow afternoon. Chief of Police Canfield was called up to notify the Coroner. Early this morning Coroner Ele-helmer summoned a jury consisting of J. A. Pietsch, J. M. Locher, Frank Hamden, and F. Rolland, who, after viewing the body, adjourned to meet at the Town Boom to morrow at two o'clock. It was so early that the Coroner had to go from house to house waking people up to set a jury. Pearson was married to Yedder's sister. His first wife was also Yedder's sister. He leaves a wife and four children. They live on Main street, next door to Vedder's house, which is one of the largest and finest in the place. Pearson was the local treasurer of the New York Central Railroad, a position he has held for 26 years (ever since the road was started). He came here from Athany. He has been regarded as a sort of mild crank for two years past. Four weeks ago he was dismissed from his posttion, but he was re-instated through the influence of his relatives. He refused to go to work again, however, and arrangements were being made to send him to an asylum for the insane. Thomas Vedder was unmarried, and was

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

NIAGABA FALLS, Ont., April 11.—The exolte ment attending the recent terrible tragedy on Luna Island has passed away, giving place to the most profound sorrow. At Suspension Bridge, where the two men resided, business is almost entirely suspended and many of the places are draped in mourning. This afternoon the funeral of the late Van R. Pearson was held from his late residence to Oakwood cemetery and was very largely attended. No clus whatever has been obtained of Mr. Vedder, the missing man, and a reward of $100 is offered for the recovery of his body. The Coroner's jury summoned to inquire into the terrible tragedy met at the town room, in Frontier mart, this forencen and commenced their labors. The first witness was Henry Highland, overseer of the islands, who testified to finding Pearson on the tenth; did not find any weapons, found no marks indicating a struggle or foot steps leading to the water edge. The ice was very hard and it was doubtful if any impression could be made of the foot steps. Dr. King, physician, Suspension Bridge, testified that he did not see the body on Luna Island; thought Pearson came to his death from two gunshot wounds, one passing through the neck and one passing through the face and skull, at the place where the ball entered there was powder marks blown into the skin; the skin was not singed or burned. The other wound commences one and a quarter inches in part of the left ear. passing on a level slightly backwards, making its exit behind the right ear, about the middle. At the entrance the skin and whiskers were burned, also powder was blown into the tissues. The course of the ball was almost direct; both wounds were made by a pistol; thought the pistol would have to be held within the distance of a foot to carry powder to the wounds; he thought it possible for a person to juffect both wounds himself; if the wound in the neck was made first it might not produce insensibility, and a determined man could have fired a second shot. The wound caused instantaneous death. He didn't think a man could throw away a revolver after the second wound.

Martin Pearson, one of the victim's sons. testified that his father was not in the habit of carrying a pistol, though for a while he was unbalanced, and arrangements were being made to have him taken to an asylum at St. Catherines.

Speaking of the manage-Wagner, foreman, and J. F. A DELICATE INSTRUMENT.

BOSTON, April 11. -After a year's labors undertaken at the instance of the United States Government a result was reached in the adjustment of the instrument which will air and furnish the measurement of the charges. The adjustment is so delicate that the millionth part of the change of the smallest distilled water cell is easily measured. It is expected with this to supercede all other methods of indicating changes in the weather.

THE CUBAN TROUBLES.

REPORTED REBEL SUCCESSES - THE FINANCIAL

CBIEFS. HAVANA, March 11.—Serious accounts from the interior as to the movements of large parties of bandits and repulses of government troops continue to come in. The government is apparently waking up to the situation. Accounts from San Domingo say the Unban refugees there are in possession of large amounts of money, and are preparing for a landing in Cubs, in combination with parties here. This is probably the cause of the extraordinary movements of troops. The abundantly illustrated. "The Belfry of government, in spite of all these facts, pretends to ridicule the reports of threatened invasion. Information has been received here that the minister of the colonies has made a new loan of three millions, pledging in payment fifteen thousand a day from the Cuban custom houses. This caused the greatest indignation here and added to the alarm and discontent prevailing. A perfect panic is reigning in the markets. Some large houses cannot sell their bills of exchange at any > ABBEST OF SULPOSED DYNAMITERS. London, April 11.—A man named Daly alias Danman, who has been shadowed for a number of months as a dynamiter, was arrested to-day at Birkenhead. Three explosive bombs were found in his possession and several bottles containing a substance believed to be nitro-giycorine. James Eagan, clerk, formerly secretary to the branch of the Land League, with whom Daly lived in Birmingham, has siso been arrested on a charge of being Daly's accomplice. A great sevention was caused in Birmingham by the arrests. Crowds have been gazing at Esgan's house. A number of policemen have been digging in the garden in search of dynamite. Among a sack full of documents taken from Eagan's house was a letter from Eagan to Daly, in which he says : _ "Thought cough mixture' all right; was nice and cold." It is believed the expression " cough mixture" reiers to dynamite. At Dublin it is reported that Flizgerald, resently arcested, has turned informer. He was connected with the Pubbecourry conspiracy, and is a man of education. Daly's first name is John. The infer-nal machines found are of the clockwork pattern. Three more were found in the prokets of his under-cost. The machines are believed to be like those recently found in the railway stations. It is expected he will be charged with having caused the explosion at the Victoria station. The police say he is an American. It is stated that Patrick Flizgerald has been in regular communication with P. J. Sheridan and was connected with James Carey's band, and once presided at a meeting of Invincibles in Dublin. He is acquainted with Daly, arrested to-day.
