—Progress—

WE must expand our thoughts so as to cope with a perpetually changing process. Since the world changes, our "truths" must change to fit it. We are faced with the necessity of a continuous reconstruction of our beliefs. That truth has most value to us which we work out for ourselves; or which we have, by our own thinking, become prepared to receive. The best seed can only have a good growth when it falls into "good ground"—a well prepared seed bed.
