

old man or women of eighty, as well as the child, finds the daily use of honey both pleasant and healthful.

The average family of five persons would be considered as using a good deal of honey to use fifty pounds in a year. Many do not use ten. But the average of sugar for such a family is about 300 pounds a year. If half of that or even 100 pounds were replaced by honey, it would be for the betterment of the health of the family, and it is by no means an expensive luxury, the price seldom exceeding ten cents a pound, and so small a quantity satisfies, a little goes a long way. It should make part of one meal at least each day, and to our mind that should be the breakfast meal.—Farmers' Advocate.

Brace-combs attached to separators are cut loose with a thin-bladed saw when discovered by F. Greiner before making the section from the super. M. Deolittle does this work with an old long-bladed bread knife, the edge of which has been made rough by running it hurriedly over a coarse rasp.—American Bee-Keeper.
