She carried the following stock: 646 sheep, 286 cattle, 138 horses, totalling 1070, together with their feed and water. They consumed 60 bales of hay daily, averaging 156 lbs. each; 200 bushels of grain daily; and as to water there were thirty large sugar puncheons placed in different parts of the ship holding about 100 pails each. They were filled daily and sometimes twice by connecting two-inch hose with a donkey engine which pumped it from the tank in the very bottom of the ship. The sheep were placed in double-decked p-ns with plenty of room to move about. The cattle were tied with a rope by the head in long double-decked pens with plenty of room to move about. The cattle were tied with a rope by the head in long rows with plenty of room to lie down, but the horses were each placed in a narrow, solid box-stall and had to stand up the whole of the time. The stock was well fed and gained in weight and appearance. The horses did some tall kicking and plunging on the fifth day. One died, and as the sharks were waiting in great numbers. The first snap took his head clean off, the second a leg the same, and down he went. Later on two other died, together with two sheep, and were cast overboard. The stallors and crowd were a jolly lot of men, English with the exception of two Irishmen and one German Jew, who was very sea sick. I saw him rolling on the deck and asked him what was wrong. He said, "I vas so seeks I vas nearly die." I gave him a drink of Fred Pierce's best, which he seemed to relish. After a short time he said, "Dat beeskey vas so good—

River. A Review representative was in conversation with Mr. Warman reconstly, when the subject of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was incidentally touched upon. Mr. Worman said he was a staunch believer in their curative properties, and to justify his opinion he related the cure of his sister, Miss Jessie Warman, aged 15, who he said had been "wrested from the grave by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." Miss Warman had been suffering for nearly a year with 4 roubles in-

Two calves were fully developed as to head, front legs, heart and stomanly but below that were merged into one set of organs. There were, however, two tails, and three hind legs. It, or they, lived a few hours, and stood around the barnyard. Had the owner known what a singular development is around the barnyard. It at the owner known what a singular development he had, and exercised more care, he would undoubtedly be now in posession of a valuable living curiosity. But from want of that knowledge and care, one of the back bones of the twin was broken at the birth, and that half soon died. The other was then killed.

The house had been picked up by a tremendous cyclone and hurled and whirled and crashed through tree tops and over fields until at last it fell in an old buffalo wallow, and was riven to kindling wood. There was a slight commotion among the debris and at last the Kansas man crawled out, stunned and bleeding.

"The face of my little girl from the time she was three mouths old, broke out and was covered with scabs. We gave her two bottles of Hood's Sarzaparilla and it completely cured her. We are giad to recommend Hood's Sarzaparilla." Thos. M. CARLING, Clinton, Ontario. Be sure to
