Our Coal Measures

AND MR. DUNSTAN'S VISIT.

Yesterday the Premier tabled the correspondence relating to the proposed visit of Prof. Dunstan to Newfoundland.

The gist of the correspondence is contained in a letter addressed by the Governor to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Professor Dunstan was invited to visit Newfoundland in the fall of last year, but was unable to come owing to an engagement in Ceylon. He will be able to come next summer. The object of his visit is to advise the Government, in collaboration with Mr. Howley, "on the value of the coal measures which have been found in the neighborhood of St. George's Bay," and to give advice as to the development of our oil shales, copper, lead and antimony.

Professor Dunstan is the Director of the Imperial Institute and holds enquiries in collaboration with the authorities of the Crown Colonies for the Institute, which is conducted in connection with the Colonial Office.

The correspondence fully bears out the remarks made by the Opposition as to the objects of Mr. Dunstan's visit.

We in no way oppose the visit. We welcome it. It may do considerable good and may be the means of inducing capitalists to take up the work of exploration, particularly of our coal deposits, with a view to turning them to industrial use.

Mr. Dunstan has made reports on the coal resources of India and Rhodesia, but it should be borne in mind that he is not coming here to conduct coal boring and such exploration work. He is coming to see what Mr. Howley can show him and to examine Mr. Howley's records and then to tell the Government what he thinks about the commercial possibility and we presume to make a report of his own for the Bulletin of the Imperial Institute, which is issued quarterly, and contains summaries of reports on the resources of different Crown Colonies and Protectorates.

Are You Genuinely True?

When you think no one is looking, are you just as good a man. Just as strong in resolution? That you'll do the best you can, as you were when doing battle with the whole world watching you? When you think no eye is on you, are you genuinely true?

You profess to be a Christian. Heart of love you claim to hold, fashioned like the heart of Jesus, in whose love can never grow cold. When you meet a sorrowing stranger can you claim a smile from your lips, as you love to go out to cheer him? Are you genuinely true?

In your home of warmth and comfort, do you place a vacant chair for the lonely wayward wanderer? Will he find a welcome there? Does the suffering of your kinsman ever give you not trouble you? You profess to be a Christian, are you genuinely true?

When you are in the midst of sorrow, stripes, misdeeds and afflictions, lost lives and other calamities, are you calling Christians to give comfort and relief, in this world of sin and sadness, where is much that you can do, and you'll do it all with gladness, are you genuinely true?

When when life has reached its gloaming, do you hear the higher call, when the shades of night are falling and you sleep the sleep of all, in a brighter world awaiting, for the Saviour say to you, "Well done, good and faithful servant, you were genuinely true."

HEALEY—HANNAFORD.

On Sunday, at Petty Harbor, Mr. J. Hannaford, of Maddox Cove, and Miss May Healey, of Petty Harbor, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Fr. Tierney, at the R. C. Presbytery. The bride looked charming; she wore a lovely suit of cream voile, with hat to match and was attended by Miss Nellie Dooley, who was handsomely attired in white. Mr. S. Hannaford supported the groom. After the ceremony the young couple, with their bridesmaids and groomsmen, drove to their future home, Brookville, Petty Harbor, where all at dawn to a sumptuous repast. The oath of the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. J. Walshe, to which the groom ably responded, after which dancing was indulged in until he was "smashed" hours. Then all dispersed after wishing the bride and groom many happy years of wedded life. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain, and the bride's a gold brooch. The young couple were the recipients of many valuable presents, one being a parlor suite presented by the Atlantic Club, of which Mr. Hannaford is a leading member.

BEOTHIC BACK.—The s.s. Beothic arrived in port this morning after an excellent run of 24 hours from Sydney. Last night was intensely cold at sea, the weather was below zero. The steamer brought a cargo of coal to supply Job's wooden ships in the icefields. The Beothic will make another trip to Sydney before making ready for the sealing hunt.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIS-TEMPER

Be Cautious With "Canny."

Probably there is only one word in the English language, which, complimentary to one person, by another person living a dozen miles away, would be taken as something of an insult.

This is the word "canny," which, in the localities where it is used—viz. Scotland and the North of England, has a separate and quite distinct meaning and significance.

In Scotland the word is usually understood to denote prudence, cautiousness, and a certain intelligent capacity for looking after one's own interests. But in Durham and Northumberland the word is used to express kindness, goodness, and affectionate regard. To a Northumbrian "canny body" sums up all that is kind and lovable in a man or woman, just as the term "canny Newcassel" expresses the Novocastrian's affection for his native city.

Curiously enough, on the borders of Yorkshire, and to some extent in Cumberland, the natives place the Scottish interpretation on the word more often than the English one. Consequently, in these localities it is not always safe to advance "canny" as a compliment.

Keeper of Deer Park

Gored to Death by Maddened Deer—Aged Man Made Terrific Struggle for Life.

Probably there is only one word in with a herd of weather-maddened deer, led by a huge antlered buck, Patrick Horan, a keeper in the deer park on the estate of Edwin Hawley's estate at West Islop, was gored to death yesterday. No one saw the battle, but a blood-stained pitchfork, a broken club, ground torn up for many rods and blood-dripping wounds on the deer themselves were mute witnesses to the terrible struggle the aged man put up for his life.

By the side of Horan's body was the pitchfork with which he had evidently done yeoman service. Near that was a cane he usually carried, broken in two evidently by the hoofs of one of the animals.

Horan's body was so cut up by the hoofs and antlers that he could scarcely be recognized. It was plain that the buck had led, his mates in jumping on the old man after they had rushed him and got him down. Evidence of the fight were shown half way across the pen, showing that the keeper had gone in, seen the deer were vicious and turned to get out fighting off the animals with the pitchfork.
