Why She Divorced Him.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

In a story which I was reading the other day the wife left her husband. Not because he didn't support her.

Not because he had any of the "small vices."

But simply because he had gotten into the habit of thinking "That everything both-ersome that hap- pened to him was my fault."

Did you ever know a man like that? Or, perhaps I'd better say, did you ever know a man who wasn't to some extent like that?

The Most Common Fault of the Genus, Husband.

It seems to me that that is the most common, the most selfish and the most happiness destroying habit of the genus, husband.

The instinct to blame someone when one is annoyed, or inconvenient, in trouble, or in the wrong, is as old as Adam and his "The woman tempted me."

It's just as much an instinct to fly out at someone when anything disagreeable happens as it is to eat when one is hungry, to drink when one is thirsty, to stretch when one is cramped, to rub the spot that itches. And just as much a relief!

I'm not sure which are the greater sufferers from this blind instinct, wives, or mothers of grown children. The woman who holds both positions is to blame for everything that happens in the home, whether it's something she really is responsible for, or something that isn't in the least her fault, such as the laundryman's being late with John's shirts.

The perfection of Homestead Tea is maintained by reason of its well known uniformity, which means careful and expert selection at all times.

The utmost precautions are taken also that purity and quality may be always secured.

"There's a smile in every cup of Homestead."

DUCKWORTH STREET & QUEEN'S ROAD.

Easier to Bear the Burden Than Quarrel.

Why do women accept this blame? For the most powerful reason in the world—that they always have. Many of them are so steeped in the tradition that it's a woman's predestined part to carry the man's burden of blame for him, that they don't stop to analyze whether they are really to blame or not. Others protest spasmodically at first but eventually accept the burden as easier to bear than to quarrel about.

Nevertheless that doesn't make this state of affairs right.

It isn't right for either the man or the woman. It isn't just, and injustice is always wrong, whether it's lasted two centuries or twenty.

Blame is the heaviest burden anyone can bear. No one who is constantly afraid of being blamed can live a normal, efficient life. It makes one nervous, self-conscious and afraid. On the other hand, the habit of blaming others for one's own mistakes, faults and misfortunes, makes one selfish, uncontrolled and unjust.

Women, for their husband's sake as well as for their own, should protest against unjust blame. I don't mean that they should be always arguing and scolding about the thing, but they should start right by registering at the beginning of married life a firm protest when they are blamed for things which are unquestionably not their fault. The man may be surprised and a bit resentful at first, but if he is a man with the sense of justice, which men claim as a masculine virtue, he will see the point.

And if he hasn't been hopelessly spoiled by a mother who let him blame her for anything, and everything, he may try to be fairer. Don't blame him if he can't do it all at once. Tradition is strong.

I'm afraid this would not work in

To Grow Hair on a Bald Head.

BY A SPECIALIST.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair- tonic and hair-grower without re- sults, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discom- fort. Yet their case is not hopeless; the following simple home prescrip- tion has made hair grow after years of baldness, and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out and destroying the dandruff germ. It will not make the hair greasy, and can be put up by any druggist: Bay Rum, 4 ounces; Lavonia de Composee, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. If you wish, it perfumed, add 1 drachm of your favourite per- fume. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harm- less, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics.

Young Nfldr. Drowned at Sydney.

Sydney, July 4.—John Allen, aged 20, a native of Newfoundland, was drowned at South Bar in Sydney harbor, about midnight Saturday night. With a companion named Jeans, he had been across the harbor to North Sydney in a small boat. On the re- turn, Allen remained in the boat to hand out parcels to Jeans on the wharf. While engaged in this work, his weight on the gunwale probably upset the boat and he was thrown into the water. His companion saw no more of him in the darkness, and he disappeared with scarcely a struggle. His body was found this morn- ing. An inquest will be held Wed- nesday.

McMurdo's Store News.

FRIDAY, July 9, 1915.

Nothing is more refreshing in sum- mer time than a thorough shampoo given regularly to the hair. It cleanses the scalp, improves the lustre of the hair and strengthens the roots. For those who prefer to take a shampoo at home—and nothing is easier given a good shampoo mixture—we have provided just the very prepara- tion needed, in Egg Julep. A table- spoonful of this liquid will be suffi- cient to do the work thoroughly and without the least unnecessary trou- ble. Why not try a bottle this sum- mer? Price 25 cents a bottle.

For slight cuts and scratches, for bleeding and soreness of the gums, for insect bites and as a general mild and non-poisonous antiseptic Hydrogen Peroxide stands out prom- inently. A bottle of this useful liquid might well find a place in every household. Price 15c. and 50c. a bot- tle.

Assails British Care of Wounded

London Editor Lays High Mortality to Lack of Hospitals at Front.

London, Saturday, July 3.—A. G. Gardener, editor of The Daily News, published a special article in that journal criticising the British meth- ods of treatment of the wounded. Analyzing the casualty figures, re- cently announced by Mr. Asquith, he shows that out of every 100 British soldiers wounded nearly 24 per cent. die. Mr. Gardener contrasts this with the percentages of 23 in the Crimean War and 20 in the South African War, and expresses the opinion that the high rate of mortality is due to the lack of sufficient hospitals immedi- ately behind the fighting line.

The method now in force is to have the wounded receive preli- minary dressing at receiving sta- tions behind the front and then be sent back to base hospitals at Boulogne or England. Mr. Gardener complains that this journey involves lack of efficient treatment at the most critical period. He says:

"What is the hospital experience in this country of the condition of the wounds with which the surgeons have to deal? I am assured on expert au- thority that it is extremely unsatis- factory and that a clean aseptic wound is a rare occurrence. It is important to avoid exaggeration in this matter and I have no wish to play the part of an alarmist, but the evidence which I have had put before me warrants the demand that an official parliamentary request should be made to the hospitals for detailed statements of their experience on this vital point. The replies will not make pleasant reading, but it will point with a deadly finger to what is wrong. And that wrong is the lost hours between the battlefields and the base."

"The utter inadequacy of seven fixed stations for an army of half a million men, covering a front of 35 miles, is apparent. We do not want to carry the wounded to the doctor and the nurse. We want to carry the doctor and the nurse to the wounded."

SHELL-MAKING NOT VOTES DE- SIRED OF BRITISH WOMEN.

London, July 2.—The first women's street parade since the outbreak of the war will be held on the afternoon of July 17, under the direction of the Women's Social and Political Union, of which Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is the leader.

This parade will be held in cele- bration of the promise of David Lloyd George, the Minister of Munitions, to receive a delegation of wo- men anxious to serve the country as shell makers and in other capacities. Mrs. Pankhurst explained at a meet- ing held yesterday that the parade was planned to impress the Gov- ernment and the nation with the de- sire of women to be of service, and she urged all women, suffragettes or not, particularly the leisure and non- production class, to participate.

"We want the vote first," cried sev- eral women in the back of the hall, in the course of Mrs. Pankhurst's speech, to which she replied:

"I am glad that those ladies are in the very small minority."

Elder A. G. Daniels, President of the General Conference of the Seventh Day Adventists, addressing the Na- tional Educational and Young Peo- ple's Missionary Volunteer Council of the Adventists now in session in St. Helena, Cal., stated that the Japanese Government has proposed to make by the Governor General of Korea, to eliminate the teaching of Christianity from every Korean school, denominational or non-denom- inational. The Government has plan- ned "to establish Shintoism, which elevates the emperor to the position of supreme ruler and makes the state religion the supreme religion."

Athens, July 2.—The Greek war party will have a top-heavy majority when Parliament convenes on July 20. Former Premier Venizelos an- nounced to-day that 184 of the newly elected deputies have pledged them- selves to support any programme he may advocate.
