castle was lined with guards. Behind the soldiers there was an immense crowd of people, who patiently waited the coming of the body and the royal mourners. Most all of the people comprising the crowd wore mourning. At noon bells began toiling their requiem for the dead.

The railway station presented a beautiful appearance, willing hands having decorated it with a large number of floral wreaths and paims. The trappings of wee were conspicuous by their absence, not a single decoration of black being seen.

THE FULLERAL CAL.

The railway carriage, in which the body was conveyed from Wolverton to Windsor, was lined with purple velvet. In it was suspended a large wreath, bearing the letters "A. C." in silver. In accordance with the wish that no public or military procession be held in London, the railway officials made arrangements to convey the body to Windsor without transhipping it at London. This was done by means of a branch line connecting the Great Eastern and Soutwestern Railways in the outskirts of the city, and consequently the people of London had no opportunity of showing their respect and sympathy by marching in London had no opportunity of showing their respect and sympathy by marching in procession behind the body of the Duke.

ARRIVAL OF THE TRAIN.

At 3:30 the train bearing the remains same into the station. On it were the Prince and Princess of Wales. Another train, which followed immediately after the funeral train, conveyed the members of the Prince of Wales' household at Sandrigham. The coffin was taken on the shoulders of men from the Tenth Hussars. It was enwrapped in a silken Union Jack, and on it was a single splendid wreath which had he enter the train of the words, "A mark of the tenderest affection and love from your devoted, loving and sorrowing grandmother."

ti and love from your devoted, loving and sorrowing grandmother."

THE PROCESSION.

As the detachment of soldiers bearing the coffin walked slowly along the platform a signal was given to a party of the Life Guards on the round tower of the castle, and immediately the boom of minute guns could be heard. At the same time the roll of the drum from the massed bands swelled out upon the air, and the procession began to move. The Life Guards had the right of the line, and were followed by the bands which played Chopin's and Beethoven's funeral marches alternately. A detachment of the Tenth Hussars and of the Horse Artillery immediately preceded the gun carriage upon which the remains had been placed. On each side of the gun carriage walked guards of officers of the Tenth Hussars. The charger which had been radden by the Duke of Clarence, saddied and bridled, and with the boots of its owner reversed in the stirrups, was led directly after the gun carriage. directly after the gun carriage.

AT ST. GEORGE'S CHAPFL.

It was nearly 4 o'clock, an hour after the time appointed for the services to begin, when the cortege reached St. George's Chapel. The clergy and the choir marched down the aisle to the door of the chapel and ranged themselves on either side to receive the body of the Duke. When the heavily-draped gun carriage arrived opposite the door of the chapel the coffin-bearers from the Hussars stepped from the ranks quickly lifted their burden to their shoulders, and with bared and bowed heads passed into the chapel. As the coffin was passed into the chapel. As the Rev. Philip Frank Eliot, domestic to the Queen, Dean of Windsor and Registrar of the Garter, and Right Rev. THE SLEVICES.

The services were conducted by the Dean of Windsor, assisted by the Bishop of Rochester. A psaim was chanted by the choir, and the dean then read the lesson. The choir then saug hymns which had been selected by the Queen. After the reading of the lessons the Bishop of Rochester read the sentences beginning, "Forasmuch as it hath pleased," and the Duke's tutor, Canon Dalton, stepped forward and cast a handful of earth upon the coffin. After this the choir sang "I heard a voice from Heaven." The Bishop of Rochester read the concluding prayer and the religious ceremony was

The Bishop of Rochester read the concluding prayer and the religious ceremony was closed by the singing of Sullivan's anthem, "Better gone before us," and the pronouncing of the benediction by the Bishop of Rochester.

At about the middle of the service, which lasted for nearly an hour, a chair wasbrought for the Prince of Wales, who sat down. He looked greatly fatigued, and his face gave evidence of his great sorrow. As the Bishop of Rochester pronounced the benediction the Prince knelt with his head buried in his hands. When the bishop had finished the Prince remained kneeling for a short time, and a most impressive silence IN LONDON.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Government and many private buildings in London had their binds drawn down and flags at half-mast to-day. A large number of factories, shops, the policemen wore mourning, and the 'bus drivers had crape on their whips.

At Windsor the weather was cold and dismal. It snowed during the night and the streets were covered with slush. The shops in the town were closed, and the slope fronts along the route followed by the shop fronts along the route followed by the castle was lined with guards. AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Memorial services were held yesterday in all important cities in England and the colonies. In Bristol there was such a crush of people in the cathedral that many fainted and had to be removed, while outside many women had their dresses nearly torn off, and dozens of persons were injured in trying to secure admission. At the Portsmouth and other royal dockyards in the garrisons at Gibraltar and in Malta wherever the British flag floats, signs of mourning were displayed. Special services were held, troops paraded and minute guns were fired. The corporations of all cities attended the church services in their robes of office. robes of office.

"He Was Good to the Poor"

Funeral of the Late Cardinal Manning

Witnessed by an Immense Concourse of Sincere Mourners.

The Working People Turn Gut in The ands—Royalty Represented—The Remains Laid in Kensall Green Cemetery.

London, Jan. 21.—London saw a funeral to-day with less pomp perhaps than that of the Duke of Clarence, but with no less accompaniment of genuine sorrow. No labored culcy is needed to impress upon the hearts of the populace the virtues of Cardinal Manning, nor to remind the people of what they have lost in losing him. Fully 50,000 persons visited the Brompton Oratory yesterday to gaze upon the features of the deceased prelate. The offices for the dead were recited during the afternoon by a corpse of 200 priests. The oratory was superbly drapsed, and the seene was a most solemn one. There was an immense concurse of people on the occasion of the funeral procession from the oratory to the cemetery. The Queen and the Prince of Wales arranged to be specially represented and seats of honor were reserved in their names.

The FINERAL.

The funeral services were held in the Brompton Oratory to-day. Admission to the oratory was by ticket only, for it would have been utterly impossible for the structure to contain a hundredth part of the vast crowd who were desirous of paying a last token of respect to the dead prelate. Notwithstanding the weather conditions prevail-THE FUNERAL.

the vast crowd who were desirons of paying a last token of respect to the dead prelate. Notwithstanding the miserable weather conditions prevailing—the city being shrouded by fog which seemed to penetrate with ischilliness and dampness through the heaviest clothing—the crowd began to gather in the vicinity of the cratory at an early hour. It was composed largely of workingmen and their families, and on every side could be heard expressions of love for the man who had devoted so much time and talent to bring about a betterment in their condition, and who having fought the good fight had gone to his reward. "He was good to the poor," people were heard to exclaim. Hundreds of times was this repeated through the vast crowd, many of the members of which had a personal knowledge of kindness of heart of the dead Cardinal which had taken in people of all religion.

THE COFFIN
reposed in front of the altar. It was enveloped in a black pall, ornamented with a gold cross, crimson cords and fringe of bulopid cross, crimson cords and fringe of bullion. Surmounting the coffin was the hat of the cardinal. The altar was draped with black, the only ornament visible being a solitary gold cross. The Right Rev.
John Cuthbert Hedley, bishop of Newport and Menevia, preached the funeral sermon.
He opened his remarks with a touching tribute to the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale. He said that an era had closed in the history of Catholicism in England with the death of Cardinal Manning, and a new one had opened. He made special reference to the cardinal's efforts to secure the Catholic education of children, and declared that the struggle was not yet over. He added that perhaps the hottest and ieadliest hour of the education battle which is raging throughout the battle which is raging throughout the world would soon be fought.

The music throughout the services was splendidly rendered. Mr. Santley, the well known baritone, sang the "Dies Irc." PROMINENT PERSONS PRESENT.

To THE GRAVE.

At the conclusion of the service the clergy preceded the body to the hearse in waiting. The first coach was occupied by the cross bearers, then followed the clergy who preceded the hearse, and following came carriages with the relatives of the cardinal, the members of his household, diplomats, members of the nobility, Knights of Malta, a deputation of members of the House of Commons, and a deputation from the Irish Parlimentary party. Following these came 300 carriages containing private citizens and after them marched a large number of workmen's societies. The docklaborers and the stevedores were represted by delegations.

MR. PRESTON IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Ontario Liberal organizer, addressed the members of the Junior Liberal Club, which met Monday for inauguration and enrollment of members. He spoke of the dangers attending the establishment of such a precedent as had been set by Mr. Angers. It was absuid that the existence of a Ministry should be determined by the comings and goings of Lieutenant-Governors. Such an act could happen only in Quebec. Mr. Mowat had declared over his own signature that an Angers dare not do in Ontario what he had done in Quebec, taking the decision altogether out of the hands of the people and clothing himself with despotic power. Mr. Angers was advised by the Government at Ottawa. When charges were brought against the Government and sworn to, the party in power at Ottawa shielded the offenders and voted down an inquiry. Their Thompsons and their Tuppers were in the habit of telling us that such things took place in England and no harm came of it. Things would come right if left alone. But let them imagine a Gladstone selling a contract or a Salisbury receiving bribes from a contractor, and when charged with the offenders that could come to Canada. Their loyalty was a loyalty when we speak of reciprocity. They see the farmers suffer and call the Mckinley Bill a blessing, the greatest that could come to Canada. Their loyalty was a loyalty for office. Sir John Thompson must often wish a great part of his past to be forgotten. Did he forget the $25,000 which he received from the United States? As to Sir Charles Tupper, last year's accounts showed that there was not one member of the Tupper family but was not quartered on the public service, and that in all $90,000 had gone into the pockets of the Tupper family but was not quartered on the public service, and that in all $90,000 had been spent in public works, yet the returns showed our population to be 1,500,000 less than it Canada, as $500,000 had been spent in public works, yet the returns showed our population to be 1,500,000 less than it ought to be, a discrepancy which would correspond to a decrease of 20,000,000 in the United States, and yet they tell us that it will all come right. Now was the time to show what our patriotism consisted of. We should face the facts. If such were the fruits of the past ten years what could we hope for the time from now till the year 2000?

West Middlessx Agricultural Society.

On Wednesday the annual meeting of the West Middlessx Agricultural Society was held in Strathroy, and a genuine surprise met the officers and members when the hour for meeting arrived. Frank Evans, the well-known secretary-treasurer, was absent, and inquiries forced the conviction that he had left the country under pressure of difficulties, the extent of which has not yet been made known.

A balance of $163 was carried over from 1890 in the hands of the treasurer, and the past year was a successful one and should have added considerably to the balance or hand. In the books and papers left few entries have been made, and the auditors have been made to form any conclusions as to the condition of the society's finances. So far as is known, nearly all the prize money has been paid out, and the duties performed by Mr. Evans have seemingly been so regular that no suspicion has been directed towards him.
