LAST NIGHT'S BULLETINS.

DOING WELL. London, June 25-11 p.m.-The folingham Palace at 10:52 p.m.:

"The King continues to make satisfactory progress. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

11:30 p.m.-The following amended comparatively deserted. No illuminabulletin was issued after 11 o'clock to-

"The King continues to make satisfactory progress. He slept some For several hours they kept hours during the day. He complains patient vigil, wandering aimlessly, but very little of discomfort and is more cheerful. The wound is doing well. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlew."

IMPROVING. London, June 25 .- (Midnight.)-King Edward's condition tonight is even more satisfactory than has been indicated by the last bulletins. He has made a decided improvement and the feeling at Buckingham palace is very hopeful. His majesty is able to take nourishment. He had scrambled eggs ing, and with his own hands he opened United States in the present calamseveral telegrams. The bulletin, issued at 11 o'clock tonight, is regarded as what I should expect after my recent intensely satisfactory.

This bulletin is generally taken as being the first occasion upon which the King's doctors have allowed themselves to express even to a small degree the hopeful feelings they undoubtedly, even though privately, entertain. Thirty-six hours have now elapsed since the operation was performed and the absence of complications creates hopefulness in all quarters, although several days must pass before the possibility of danger can be eliminated.

PHYSICIANS SATISFIED. London, June 25-6 p.m.-The reports which are again being circulated in New York of King Edward's desperate condition are untrue. Sir Thomas Lipton spent an hour at Buckingham palace this afternoon, and the Associated Press has his authority for making the announcement: "The chances yesterday," said Sir Thomas, nation and naval review.

"were decidedly against his recovery; The British fleet will remain intact at Portsmouth until next week, but tons for public holidays, and canceled tons for public holidays, and canceled the layeral of the foreign war vessels will alle the arrangements for celebrations alle the arrangements for celebrations on but you can say that at 2 o'clock he was doing well. His majesty's physicians were satisfied with his progress. The chances were then in his favor." The King's mind is entirely clear, and while Sir Thomas was at utterly unprecedented character. While the palace he received word that it they strive to maintain an air of hopewas his majesty's wish that the arrangements for the dinner to about which will hang over the King's life to some days to come. They export 5 should be proceeded with. Before tomorrow morning over half a million invitations will have been sent out. The dinner involves the employment of over 6,800 stewards, an army of waiters and 1,500 music hall entertainers. All the arrangements are in infinite untowardness, as it has many Sir Thomas Lipton's hands, and it can be imagined that he would not the time seemed overwhelming." proceed with the final arrangements unless he and others were confident of condolence from President Roose- the assassination of President McKin-

of being able to carry them out. A QUIET DAY. The King spent a quiet day and the lack of unfavorably developments was an unwonted strain on the patience although the element of tragedy is regarded as greatly in his favor. No and fortitude of the nation. definite prognostication, however, regarding his chances of recovery is likely to be publicly ventured by the outset of a great national festival, doctors for several days. Until this which had already filled the whole morning it was hoped that Friday's empire with procession might take place on Saturday, the Prince of Wales taking the King's place. This was suggested specially for the benefit of the colonial contingents and would have been almost purely a military display. The idea was abandoned today because the doctors said the King was likely to still be in a critical condition on Saturday, and they could not answerable for what any hour might bring forth, though so far no specially alarming symptom had exhibited itself. It was practically decided this afternoon that the Prince of Wales will review the colonial troops, probably next week. They will then return to their respective countries.

A favorable factor mentioned by several of those at the palace today was the King's adaptability to the severe regimen involved. "He is an excellent patient," said a peer who had just seen one of the members of the royal family. "He does everything he is told and does not worry, unlike many royal personages. This considerably helps the doctors in their efforts to pull him through. With a younger and thinner patient the King's progress up to this afternoon would probably permit the doctors to be more optimistic; but they are carefully avoiding any possibility of inspiring premature rejoicing."

The immediate surroundings of the King's sick bed are in striking contrast with the sombre, silent setting which marked the late Queen Victoria's last illness at Osborne, Isle of Wight. There all was quiet and desolate. Winter reigned and those who walked up the hill to the castle gates for the purpose of scanning the bulletins were sombrely clad and overcome with grief. This afternoon the front of Buckingham palace and St. James' park might have been an idle class garden party, through which personages in brilliant uniforms and equippages of the aristocracy frequently The royal grandchildren were taken for their usual outing in the park and the royal gardens, and were surveyed by the crowds with curious,
