London Advertiser: The rumor that James Hamilton, conductor on No. 7 express, which collided with No. 8 at Dundas last Thursday, had left the country suddenly, appears to be unfounded in the light of the fact that he is at the funeral of Engineer Mason at Hamilton on Sunday. He is reported as saying that he has no intention of leaving the country, but will see the investigation through.

The benefit tendered to the late articles of the Royal opera house came off at Albert hall last evening before a very fair house. The entertainment was a very enjoyable one indeed, some of the features being equal to many in the same line of business on the road. Master Tommy Oliver and the Amphibious were especially good. With a little proper instruction Master Oliver would be quite a drawing card. The evening's amusement closed with McShane's comedy, which was well received.

The masonic fraternity will be pleased to hear that one of the conditions upon which the donation of a thousand dollars made by a citizen for the establishment of a convalescent hospital on the island, is that the sick child of any member of the craft, being admitted to the hospital shall be given the preference, that is in cases in which there is any choice. All children at the hospital will be given preference in the money made this condition in giving the contribution, and upon this condition it was accepted.

The song of the Advertiser. An advertiser greets you in letters bold and big and round. The printer's eye was not content. Prosperity is his estate.

The people come. Surging down. They bring on a sea and some ashore. And in the happy days of peace. And this the reason I relate. I am an advertiser great.

There is a shop across the way. Where water is low and a hump on road. Where trade is high and the crowd is great. With never a customer a day. The people come.

There is a shop beneath the eaves. Where no one looks and no one sees. While I with pleasure contemplate. That I am an advertiser great.

The record of my fortune lies. In one small fact, which I may state. Too many have known how late. Then people come.

In constant straits. For people know. That he who has good wares to sell. Will surely advertise them well. And possibly if you are wise. I am an advertiser great!

THE WORLD AT LARGE.

The next annual meeting of the Evangelical alliance will be held in Stockholm, Sweden.

Paris now-a-days study as much that they don't know anything," says a member of the Massachusetts board of education.

There is in one of the Boston courts a suit which hinges upon the validity of a law passed in 1883, when the Hab was a small provincial town. It pertains to the ownership of the land covered by party walls.

A note from Whittier, the poet, who is a trustee of Brown university, to a fellow trustee, is published, in which he expresses his hope that the "mole-institution" will soon be open to women's measure," he says, "which I feel certain would redound to the honor, and materially promote the property of the college."

Some very fine specimens of asbestos are being found in Nevada. The fibre of the specimens shown is from four to six inches in length, and is soft and silky. A strand of it can be tied into a knot the same as flax fibre. It is found in what, from the description given, appears to be a serpentine rock, and not very far from the crater of an extinct volcano.

The soil culture of next May covers a vast extent of the Pacific coast, but it is only two small islands, Caroline and Plantain. The former is about ten miles in circumference, and is inhabited by thirty natives of the Malay race and one white man. The latter is five or six miles in circumference, and uninhabited. Both are situated on the eastern track of ships from French expeditions are being equipped— one to observe the eclipse at Caroline island and the other at Plantain. The British will send a party to Caroline.

Gustave Dore delighted in pyrotechnics and the performance of clowns he declared to be the perfection of art. He went one night to a circus in the Champs Elysees to see two English clowns who were being walked about, and was disgusted with their vulgar antics that he never again put foot in that house. "One day I asked him if he had ever heard of the American circus," says a correspondent of the Boston Herald, "and he not only replied that he had, but showed me several wooden cuttings of the man, which he had cut out of the illustrated journals. He had also heard of Dan Rice, and mentioned the names of other circus men, but he could not remember any names of circus men who were now in the country."

King Humbert of Italy drives himself about in a cart, like any other quiet gentleman in Rome. When his carriage gets blocked, as it frequently does in the narrow streets, he takes it more patiently than the foreigners do, who admire the way in which he sits and drives. When the king and queen of Italy are extremely simple in their appearance to the public. When the king and queen of Italy were last in Rome they were always surrounded by guards. Humbert and Margherite went to call upon the Italian royalist, driven in a simple Victoria, and such was the modesty of their equipage that they could scarcely get through the gate.

Traveling dramatic companies are apt to cheat the audiences in small towns by failing to give the whole show as advertised. The people of Aurora, Ill., have found this out in this respect. When a loudly advertised party arrived a few days ago, the manager of the theatre went to the hotel to see them, and found that a notice had been put in the place of the chief actor. He substituted this, but when the curtain went up, and the hero was played by a man who had to carry the book in his hand, read every line, and never looked or changed his position, he fell to the audience that they could get their money back at the box office. They all accepted the offer and the play was not completed.

Mr. Leonard Hodge, who superintended the tree planting along the St. Paul & Manitoba road and is to have charge of the same work on the Northern Pacific, advises the planting of two parallel belts of young timber on the northern side of the track and one on the southern side. The white willow, he has found to be the cheapest and best for the purpose. A belt of twelve feet four years from the time of planting the saplings. The soil, however, has to be prepared for planting by harrowing, and sometimes the prairie soil is so bad that two or three years must be spent in preparing it, but the result is thought to be worth the labor. Other hardy trees recommended for the purpose are mentioned in the box elder, the cottonwood, and the green ash.

In a lecture before the Paris faculty of medicine, Dr. Bill combated the generally received opinion that folly and reason are separated by a strictly drawn line. There is a broad frontier, he says, between sanity and insanity, peopled by millions of inhabitants. He holds that the number of persons perfectly reasonable on all points throughout the entire period of their existence forms but a minority of mankind. "The world abounds with people," he tells us, "whom a strict scientific diagnosis would condemn as more or less mad, yet at no time of their life would it be permissible to put them under restraint. Such people are to be seen everywhere, and it is only in the position of insanity that we learn what they are when we take our daily walks abroad; we see them in the mirror which reflects ourselves."

The late Bishop Willberforce gives the following charming picture of the bishops of Ireland in 1813: "I then and now (then and now bishop of Down), very foolish, without learning, piety, judgment, conduct or should resign Limerick." Higgins (the bishop of Derry), "A most appropriate mind would take what another had just said and repeat it ostentatiously as his own, even to the sayer." O'Connell (then Dr. O'Connell), "The most ignorant man I ever knew." Cook (then Dr. Fitzgerald), "A man of ability; strong leaning to aridism kept him long from priests' orders; a mere Whalleyan, but of strong will and very overbearing; would be very unpopular very soon; is so now in Cork." Limerick (then Dr. Griffin, P. T. O. D.), "Clever, quite unworldly; no sense for episcopate; his living the best in England." Dr. Todd, from whom Bishop Willberforce drew chiefly his humiliating photograph of the Irish bench of bishops, was for many years a senior fellow and regius professor of divinity in Trinity college, Dublin. He was a tall, thin, very unimpressive appearance, pale and fat. He acquired considerable authority by forging a pope's bull, which when the discovery was made, he excused as an "ingenious device." He was a Puseyite. Dr. Kirwin of Limerick, Bishop Willberforce's other informant, was the son of a celebrated preacher who had been a Roman catholic priest, and, in conversion, was made dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.

Referring to the country journalist, Geo. Peck, of Milwaukee, says: "When we think of the hard drudgery that these unappreciated, indefatigable workers do in a week, and the small amount of thanks and cash they receive in return, we feel as though something was wrong somewhere. Why is it that in many localities the people do not appreciate the importance of a good newspaper, and sustain it by a liberal patronage, thus making it a better paper, is one of the most unaccountable things in the world. We have no urgent call now to say what we do; but we tell people in every locality where a paper is published, no matter how small and insignificant the paper may be, that every dollar they pay for it for subscriptions or judicious advertising puts two dollars in cash in their own pockets. We have figured on it and we know. It may not look so on its face, but it is very deceiving. Lots of schemes that look as though they had millions in them, like the man who is sure he can pick out the right card in three months, fail to return anything like millions, while the schemes that do not appear to amount to anything scarcely, pay out whole hands of nickels unexpectantly. And the country newspaper of this class. Subscribers for your paper, and pay for it in advance, and if you feel at the end of the year that you haven't got your money's worth, then your fortune is made. You can go to a museum and get $5000 a year as a curiosity."

Dr. Pierce's "Pellets," or sugar-coated granules—the original "Little Liver Pills" (beverage imitation)—cure sick and bilious heads, cleanse the stomach and bowels, and purify the blood. To get genuine, see Dr. Pierce's signature and portrait on government stamp, 25 cents per box, by druggists.

Canada—A New Treatment. From the Weekly (Toronto) Mail, Aug. 21. Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of two thousand patients treated during the past six months fully ninety per cent have been cured of this distressing malady. This is not the case with any other treatment, and it is remembered that not five per cent of the patients treated by the Dixon method are benefited, while the patient medicine, which is the only one that cures, is the Dixon method. It is the Dixon method, which is the only one that cures, is the Dixon method. It is the Dixon method, which is the only one that cures, is the Dixon method.
