

"SWIMMING AND LIFE-SAVING."

WHAT IS SAID OF IT.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 14, 1889.

MY DEAR CAPT. ANDREWS,—The careful perusal of your handsome and entertaining manual on "Swimming and Life-Saving" has given me much pleasure and satisfaction. As an exponent of the art of swimming and saving of life you are as great a success as you were in swimming to the relief of the distressed, and saving of scores of human lives. Your disability is a great loss to the water-going adventurers. You will be missed, not only at the "Club," but by the drowning unfortunate who sinks in despair when no stout heart is at hand to save. May the good Lord restore your vision to the light of day, and the world continue to be blessed with the services of a true life-saver, is the prayer of your friend and well-wisher,

D. F. DOBBINS,

Supt. 9th Dist. U.S. Life-Saving Service.

"We have great pleasure in calling attention to the excellent little manual on 'Swimming and Life-Saving,' which has been published by Mr. William Briggs, of Toronto, for Captain W. D. Andrews. The book ought to sell on its merits, quite apart from the fact that it is the work of a man who has done gallant service in rescuing lives from drowning, and whose recent sad affliction, the loss of his eyesight, has entitled him to the sympathy of all who can mourn for a brave man in adversity. Not for Captain Andrews' sake only, but for the genuine merits of the book itself, we can heartily recommend it. It is a handsome volume, well printed, well illustrated, and contains a large amount of the most valuable sort of information on the subject it professes to deal with."—Truth, May 4th, 1889.

"A very handsome volume, bearing the above title, and from the pen of Captain W. D. Andrews, R.H.S., son of the late G. W. Andrews, of this city, has just been issued. The book is one of great value, as it contains full instructions concerning the teaching of swimming; in fact, all about swimming, and chapters upon the
