

The Panacea is positively the plant used by the Indian women of this country, and all who know anything of their circumstances know that such a thing as excessive pain or trouble in childbearing (except through accidents) is entirely unknown amongst them. There is no mineral, and no poisonous or hurtful substance in the Panacea. It is purely harmless under all circumstances, and is a uterine tonic only. Giving strength and tone to the reproductive organs, it aids nature in discharging her functions in a natural way; the effects being only healthful. No woman, having used it once, would take $1,000 and be without it.

The chief purpose for which this medicine is put upon the market is to give painless parturition; because of being a powerful uterine tonic, giving strength and vitality to all the genital organs, it is one of the best female regulators in the world. Whatever ailments of a sexual character may afflict either young or old women, this will be found to be a specific.
