CHARLES G. D. ROBERTS

AUTHOR OF

"Reube Dav's Shad Boat," "The Raid from Beausejour," "Earth's Enigmas," etc., etc.

Illustrated by CHARLES COPELAND.

PRICE, $1.25

The author of this more than usually attractive book needs no introduction to the Canadian public. There is perhaps no Canadian writer more generally and favorably known to the public. Prof. Roberts here takes his readers on a shooting and fishing expedition in Nova Scotia, and incidentally relates a number of breezy stories of adventure. They are full of the spirit of out-of-door life; adventures with wildcats and moose, on lake and rapid, follow one another with graphic detail, such as cannot fail to interest any healthy boy. The author knows the region of which he writes, and he writes with a zeal which only emphasizes his perfect command of the English language.
