

carried with them the practical virtues of their Religious Society. They quickly perceived that to elevate the negro he must learn that labor is honorable; and almost immediately they made the schools under their care "Industrial Schools." They have trained head, heart and hand together.

The Schofield Normal and Industrial School was founded at Aiken, South Carolina, by Martha Schofield in 1868. It has twelve departments, carrying children from the kindergarten to graduation, when they are fitted to become the teachers of their people in the country schools. There is a boarding department which has over fifty boarders — printing, harness-making, wood and iron working, farming, cooking, sewing, laundry work, house and store-keeping are taught. There are good buildings and a farm. There is an endowment fund, which the trustees hope to increase, and an effort is now being made to raise a fund for farm buildings and implements to increase the usefulness of the farm to the pupils of the school.

The Laing Normal and Industrial School is at Mt Pleasant, South Carolina. It was founded in 1865 by Canelia Hancock, of Philadelphia. Abby D. Munro was one of her teachers, and assumed the care of the school when she left it. The grading is much the same as at Schofield, and the number of pupils is about the same in both schools. The Laing School has no boarding department, but has in connection with it a Home for Orphan Colored Children. This is the only home of the kind in the State of South Carolina. This school is named for Henry M. Laing, of Philadelphia, who has been from the first its most earnest friend and supporter. His recent illness has interfered with his efforts in its behalf, and I wish at this time to make a special plea for this school, which is now unable to pay teachers' salaries because of lack of funds.

As has been often said, twenty cents each year from every member of the Society of Friends would support these schools. Where there are large families and small means, we cannot hope to receive even this sum from every member. We must, therefore, have larger sums from Friends able to give them. But if each will give according to his ability, the desired results will be obtained. In addition to money, clothing and household goods are needed, and these can often be collected and packed by Friends who have time to use, but not money to give.

The Schofield School Bulletin, published during the eight school months at twenty-five cents a year, is interesting reading, and it will keep all acquainted with what is being done at the schools and their needs and hopes.

Each Yearly Meeting has a superintendent in this department and a treasurer, to whom money for the schools may be sent.

FOR YOUNG FRIENDS' REVIEW.

Prairie Grove Quarterly Meeting of Friends met at Marietta 12th mo. 7th, 1895. We were favored with beautiful weather and good roads.

The meeting of Ministers and Elders met at 9.30 a.m., Seventh day. The Q. M. at 11 a.m. was quite well attended and much interest manifested.

The meeting for worship on First-day was attended by a full house, and the Gospel ministry handed forth by our friend, Abel Mills, of Illinois, which seemed to be earnestly and attentively listened to. We then had an intermission of friendly greeting, during which a lunch was provided for all present.

The Meeting was then called to order by Clara Pyle, the assistant clerk of the Quarterly Conference. Theo. Russel was appointed clerk for the
