

WARD, LOCK & CO.'S POPULAR FICTION

MARIE CONNOR LEIGHTON

GREED. 6s.

WESTERN DAILY PRESS.—"The story is teeming with graphic incident in which the descriptive powers of Mrs. Leighton are splendidly revealed, and from start to finish the book does not contain a dull page . . . a really good story."

CONVICT 413L. 6s.

THE SHEFFIELD DAILY TELEGRAPH.—"It is doubtful whether we have a better writer of crime stories than the talented author of this volume."

JOAN MAR, DETECTIVE. 6s.

THE GLOBE.—"Readers in want of excitement will be quite happy with this book, which will keep them in a delightful atmosphere of mystery."

JUSTICE. 6s.

An excellent story, well constructed, and the interest is kept going till the last page.

PUT YOURSELF IN HER PLACE. 6s.

THE SHEFFIELD DAILY TELEGRAPH.—"A novel equal to anything her pen has written."

MONEY. 6s.

THE BOOKMAN.—"Opening in the wilds of Australia with a discovery of gold by men who are starving, 'Money' unfolds a striking and vividly imagined story. It is crowded with incident and excitement."

AN EYE FOR AN EYE. 6s.

THE FINGHLEY PRESS.—"We predict a great success for 'An Eye for an Eye.' It certainly deserves it."

DEEP WATERS. 6s.

THE DUNDEE ADVERTISER.—"A story that admits of no breathing space from start to finish."

CHARLES G. D. ROBERTS

NATURE BOOKS

THE HOUSE IN THE WATER. 6s.

"Rarely does a book on natural history subjects possess so singular a charm. This will prove an ideal gift book.—The Daily Mail."

THE BACKWOODSMEN. 6s.

"There are few writers who could hold a reader's attention with a story of a squirrel, a weasel, and a hawk, but Mr. Roberts' methods are perfectly fascinating.—The Bystander."

KINGS IN EXILE. 6s.

"Under the guidance of Mr. Roberts we have often adventured among the wild beasts of the land and sea; and we hope to do so many times in the future. It is an education not to be missed by those who have the chance, and the chance is every one's.—The Athenaeum."

NEIGHBOURS UNKNOWN. 6s.

"These sketches of wild animals are a delight. There is a wholesome elemental tang in the blunt, clean words, and the smell of fresh earth and the crisp rustle of forest leaves seem to come to one's senses.—The World."
