

A SERMON, &c.

"Be ye wise as serpents and harmless as doves."—St. Matthew, 10th c.
part of v. 16

ERRATA.

- Page 11, Note, 9th line from top, for "really", read already—Line 22, for "hibes" read hubes.
Page 14, 2nd line from bottom, for "may they", read they may.
Page 15, 9th line from top, for "wish it, cannot", read wished, could not.
Page 15, Note, for "aguinus" read aginus—dele "eam".
Page 18, 10th line from top, supply "his".
Page 20, last line, for "expression" read impression.

And Christian Ministers have at all times been blessed with the greatest measure of success, in enlarging the fold of the Great Shepherd, and reclaiming the wandering sheep. So necessary indeed does such provision seem to the very existence of the Church as a visible Society, that the Spiritual wants of men must have compelled them to have had recourse to it, although there had been no positive nor divine appointment. There have certainly been found some enthusiasts in different ages of the Church, who have de-