SMUTS WARNS BRITAIN OF SECURITY PACT

MAY BE PARTING OF WAYS FOR THE EMPIRE, HE SAYS

South African's Published Statement Causes Comment

FEARS DISUNION

Former Premier Declares Some of Dominions Would Not Follow

British United Press. LONDON, July 13.—A warning to Britain not to enter the security pact, emanating from former Premier Smuts of South Africa and appearing this morning in the Daily News, is causing considerable comment and not a little consternation in official circles. It seems certain that the publication of this warning will fan the old flame of antagonism between Col. Amery and Austen Chamberlain, in that it will be regarded as at least a partial demonstration of what the Empire thinks about the security pact.

SOUNDS WARNING

In his letter to the Daily News, General Smuts says:

"It is proposed that under this pact Britain shall disassociate herself from the Empire in certain cardinal matters of foreign policy and take a line of her own, leaving the other constituent parts of the Empire to decide their own policies. Under these circumstances I feel certain that at least some of them will not follow her. As one who believes that the British Empire is the greatest human institution on earth, I cannot acquiesce in this departure from the policy hitherto followed with equanimity."

"The past may well become a turning point, a parting of the ways, with the Empire. Why not go forward into the uncertain future hand in hand with the young nations of the Empire rather than with a few of them? Not only as a citizen of the Empire, but as a good European, have a rooted distrust for this alliance."

In commenting on the message the Daily News describes it as "a well-founded warning."
