On To Calgary and The Women's Council

At eleven o'clock Banff was reached and in the darkness and sweetness of the night we were motored to the Y and its surrounding cottages and lulled to sleep by the soft whispering pines. Next morning we gathered in the cool, pleasant dining room of the Y, where a guest breakfast was served, and pretty little souvenir menu cards adorned each place. Bright flowers centred the tables, and the charming women, Mrs. Margolis, with notes from an old Japanese song, prefaced her cordial words of greeting. Motor drives to Lake Minnewanka, to the sulphur baths, Johnson Canyon, were quickly arranged, with promises to meet again for luncheon; but as I had in the days of former residence spent some weeks amid Banff's natural beauties, at the request of a Woodstock, Ont., member, we hired a motor and drove to the Alpine Club of Canada, feeling that its courteous member would not turn away a little walk up hill to the entrance, but realizing that the club had not begun its official season were reluctantly turning when a voice recalled us gladly to the opening door. S. H. Mitchell, the secretary-treasurer, bade us cordial welcome and we gladly entered the club, showed our Council badge, and were given a most delightful visit. The big fireplace in the living room, from the windows of which wonderful views are obtained of the mountains and the villages below, was built in memory of Wm. Vaux, A. C. C. student of glaciers, 1887-1893. The Alpine Club was formed in 1916, and the club house built three years ago, while the club claims a membership of 900. The English Alpine Club is affiliated with this club, and the United States Alpine Club sends a quota of active members. In a most attractive upper room, called the library, for use of men and women both, were shown little framed stained copy of their red-covered book of the constitution, and underneath the written words: "Found in German dug-out at Vinny Ridge."

We were informed that the summer outing would be held at O'Hara Lake this summer, and that many members would be in attendance. How we did wish for membership qualification and a share in those anticipated outings. Mr. Mitchell's office we were given photographs of the club house, copies of constitution, and other data; promising a copy of our St. John Council greetings, and that our Dr. McIntosh of the Natural History Society would be extremely pleased to exchange data with him, as our museum was famous for its amount
