

WEEK-END BILL THE BEST YET

New Programme at Opera House Contains Big Variety—Every Act a Winner.

The new vaudeville offerings which opened at the Opera House yesterday were by far the best seen here for some time. There was a big variety of talent including singing, dancing, character skits, a sensational wire act, also numerous sleight of hand tricks that fairly bewildered you. Marie and Marlowe offer a character comedy skit called "That's Nice." They impersonate two emigrants who have come to this land of promise where hearts are filled with hope and robust with song. Marie and Marlowe are both well fitted for song, both have excellent voices and know how to use them to best advantage. They are both clever comedians and manage to fill ten minutes completely with song and story with which the patrons agreed.

That's Nice. Peter and Hartwell appear in a very elaborate setting, and present a variety of numbers, including singing, dancing and comedy talk.

Then in the way of something sensational Margaret Taylor, "The Dainty Little Miss," appears in a very clever wire balancing offering, that won hearty applause from an appreciative audience. Other features that won approval from last night's patrons were Basley and Porter, who presented a novel character offering "The Call of the Song," and "Ziska" the world renowned magician artist, displayed many sleight of hand tricks, that were accorded hearty applause. There was also the popular week end serial drama "The Purple Riders," and another clever dog comedy "Pals," featuring "Brownie," the Wonder Dog. This programme will be continued today and Monday.

Leonard Wood who has served for six years to whom a communication of appreciation was forwarded.

All other officers were re-elected excepting the treasurer general and elder general. Merritt G. Perkins of the New Jersey society was chosen for the former and Rev. Harry St. Clair Hatway of the Pennsylvania Society for the latter.

LAND BIRDS ON LAKE MICHIGAN Go to Roost on Steamers in the Dock and Are Carried Away.

Land birds far from land form one of the sights to be witnessed by passengers on board steamers crossing Lake Michigan. This is said to be especially the case on the steamers of a line plying between Muskegon and Chicago, a distance of 100 miles. The steamers sail after dark.

At sundown the spars and rigging of the vessels in the dock form good resting places for the land birds. When darkness comes, and the boats begin to move, it is too late for them to go ashore.

It is no uncommon thing for the passengers to see a strange sight just between daybreak and sunrise. The birds are waking up, and find themselves some thirty odd miles from land. They circle about the boat until they are compelled to rest on the rigging, some of them seeming much perplexed, while others make the best of circumstances.

On one trip two yellowhammers, or lickers, were amongst the company, as well as a silent little sparrow that pecked away at ropes and spars as if he were breakfasting heartily on grubs. There was a frightened brown thrush, as well as a pair of tiny wrens and several grass-sparrows. The yellowhammers were restless and nervous, seeming to be awake to their danger, and to feel safety only in nearness to the boat. The sparrows were only a little nervous, huddling together and twittering their ears, while the wrens were brave beyond belief, even hopping under the chairs on which the passengers sit.
