

* This and That *

CURE FOR HICCUGHS.

A young man pale and weak entered a physician's office.

"Doctor," he said, "I have had—hic—I have had the hiccoughs for six hours. They are exhausting me."

"Let me see your tongue," said the physician. "Out with it. Oh, farther out. Out as far as you can put it. That is it. Now hold it out there, till I go to the back office and get a depressor."

The physician disappeared. The young man, his long, pink tongue spread like a drape over his chin, sat and waited with bulging eyes.

"By Jove, he's long," the young man thought. "I wonder what can be keeping him."

"Just a minute," the physician called from the next room. "Keep your tongue out. I'll be there in a minute."

But it must have been five minutes before he returned. He was smiling.

"Did you keep your tongue out all the time?" he said.

"Yes," the young man answered.

"And you didn't hiccough, did you?"

"No."

"Then," said the physician, you are cured."

The young man as a matter of fact, was cured. The protrusion of his tongue had cured him. The physician said that this treatment rarely, if ever, failed to drive away the most obstinate attacks of hiccoughs.—Ex.

A MAN THAT CAN'T BE SPARED.

"Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan is a very quiet man," said a Wall street broker. "He speaks only when he has something to say."

"Recently he wanted a superintendent for a certain department that he has established. He thought he knew the man for this superintendency—an assistant to one of his colleagues. He sent for the colleague and said:

"I am getting up, you know, a certain new department. I shall want a new superintendent. I think Brown, in your office, would fill the place very well indeed."

"I am sure he would," said the other. "The only trouble is, Mr. Brown can't be spared."

"Mr. Morgan's eyes lit up, and he smiled. "I don't want a man that can be spared," he said.—Boston News Bureau.

A SOFT ANSWER.

The hotel clerk can always be depended upon to retain his self-possession under the most trying circumstances. It is related that a certain lady in the dramatic profession, who is always trying to appear young, albeit she is "more than seven," and looks it, was on the road last year with a travelling comedy company. The troupe got in town late one Sunday evening, and on reaching a hotel she was shown up five flights of stairs to an apartment numbered 20, almost under the tiles.

Enraged, she flew down and shrieked at the young man in the office: "I am placed in No. 20?"

"Yes," was the answer, "we give every lady an apartment, if possible, corresponding with her age. Mrs.—, the old woman of your company, is in 62, and Miss—the juvenile actress, is in 44, and that is why I put you in 20."

The lady smiled serenely, thanked the attendant most sweetly, and, without a murmur, returned to the garret.—Boston "Star."

Mr. Gaswell, who had come recently into the possession of a considerable fortune, had decided to erect a large office building, and was discussing the plans with the architect.

"As to the floors, now," said the architect, "you would want them in mosaic patterns, I presume?"

"I don't know about that," responded Mr. Gaswell, dubiously scratching his jaw. "I haven't got any prejudice against Moses as a man, and he certainly knowed a good deal about a, but when it comes to laying floors it kind o' seems to me I'd rather have 'em unsectarian-like. Don't it strike you that way?"

THIRTEEN.

You see, there's Daisy and Geraldine And me—I'm May—and we're each thirteen, And Daisy and Geraldine both say That now we are too grown up to play With dolls any more! And I think it mean—

It's perfectly horrid to be thirteen!

They're glad to give up their dolls. But I Can't see any possible reason why We shouldn't play with them one more year— (And my Angelina is such a dear!) Well, at last I knew what people mean When they say it is unlucky to be thirteen

When I told mamma she shook her head And kissed her tenderly as she said: "You're standing with very reluctant feet, Dear May, where the brook and river meet; And yet perhaps, 'tis a golden mean; 'Twixt childhood and girlhood when one's thirteen."

"Do you not sometimes have soulful yearnings which you long to convey in words but cannot?" asked the sentimental girl.

"Yes, indeed," replied the young man. "I was once dreadfully anxious to send home for money, but I didn't have the price of a telegram."

Jones—"What causes you to think that? I never thought her so."

Hegan—"I met her out for a walk this afternoon, and asked if I might see her home. She said yes, I could see it from the top of the high school building, and that it wasn't necessary to go any farther."

Captain—"Well, what do you want?"

Tramp—"Captain, believe me, I'm no ordinary beggar. I was at the front."

Captain (with interest)—"Really?"

Tramp—"Yes, sir; but I couldn't make anybody hear, so I came round to the back."

FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Not An Unusual Instance.

"I used Pyramid Pile Cure and have not had any trouble since. I have been a sufferer with piles for twenty years. I think it is the best remedy on earth for piles. Hoping this may help others to use this remedy, Mrs. J. D. Taylor, R. F. D. 20 Sparta Mich.

It is a singular fact that although many women suffer from piles, or hemorrhoids, they frequently do not have proper treatment because of a delicacy women have in mentioning such a subject. Especially is this the case with those who have no husbands or brother in whom to confide; and a physician is seldom consulted until the pain and agony incident to piles becomes unbearable.

Thousands of women have suffered even longer than did Mrs. Teller, always experiencing slight or temporary relief, if any, from the various remedies used and finally settling down to the conviction that a cure in their cases was impossible. Pyramid Pile Cure has come as a boon to all such, as it seldom if ever fails to effect a permanent cure. It is sold by druggists for fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address, upon receipt of price. Absolute secrecy is guaranteed, and no man, and no name is ever used without the consent of the writer.

It is suggested that those interested write to Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their little book describing the causes and cure of piles, as it sent free for the asking.

Radway & Co., New York.

Gentleman—In regard to "Radway's Pills," I wish to say, that I have never found any remedy that can equal them.

For the past two years I was suffering from nervous dyspepsia and constipation. After eating I would have a sensation of heaviness in the stomach, feel like vomiting, pain and dizziness in the head, and then I would become nervous. I tried everything that was recommended to me. My physician told me I had chronic constipation and a sour stomach. He could relieve me somewhat, but still did not cure me. I was almost in despair. At last a friend persuaded me to try "Radway's Pills," which I did. And I am glad to say, that they not only relieved me, but positively cured me. Even after taking them only a few days, a regularity of the bowels was established, and the dyspeptic symptoms have already disappeared. Now I feel like a new person.

May God bless you and your wonderful remedy. I remain,

Yours for health,
