MOTHER'S DAY WAS OBSERVED BY CHURCHES

Wearing of Appropriate Blossoms was also General—Services in Honor of Mothers

Yesterday was celebrated as mothers' day all over the American continent. Special sermons were preached in many of the local churches dealing with the subject. The custom of flower wearing was also observed. A white flower being worn in memory of a deceased mother, and a red flower for a living one. Mothers' day has become an institution now, and is being more generally observed every year.

In this city one service in practically every church was devoted to the subject of mother, and the wearing of flowers in her honor was generally carried out. In the Central Baptist church, the pastor, Rev. D. J. MacPherson had as his subject "Your Mother." He based his remarks on Romans 13-7: "Render therefore to all their due. Tribute to whom tribute is due." He said first we should honor our mothers for to them we owed our lives. He then named several women who he thought were worthy of honor. Deborah, who led the forces of Israel, Joan of Arc, Queen Elizabeth, the virgin queen, Victoria the Good, George Elliot, Frances Willard, who was such a force in driving out the liquor traffic, but the woman most worthy of honor was Mary, the mother of the Lord Jesus.

We ought also to honor them because from them we received the most important part of our education, given to us between the ages of one and nine. It was then we learned obedience, gentleness of speech and confidence for the rights of others, if we ever learned them at all.

We should honor our mothers because of our homes. The mother was the main factor in the making of the home, and those who had been blessed with good homes, should never forget to honor the mother who made it. Then we should honor our mothers for the love they bore us, the love that never failed, and was always ready to forgive, when the boy or girl had strayed from the straight path, and help them back again. Others might turn their backs upon us but not the mother, and for that reason we should always honor her.

In Centenary church the services were taken by Rev. W. C. Kierstead, who spoke in the morning on the "Service of the unknown Mary." In St. Andrew's Presbyterian the pastor, Rev. F. S. Dowling, spoke on "Comfort Ye."

THIRD ST. JOHN BATTALION FOR OVERSEAS DUTY

The 140th. Now well Over Strength, May be Counted as Local Unit.

The 140th O. S. Battalion, C.E.F., which has its headquarters and two companies stationed in West St. John, is now well over strength and may be counted as the third St. John battalion raised for service in the great European struggle. While the commanding officer of the 140th is not a St. John man, the majority of his officers and a great number of his men claim St. John as their homes. Connected with this battalion are thirty-seven officers and of these twenty-two have their home addresses in this city.

In the immigration building are two companies totalling about five hundred men. In these two companies alone 240 are St. John men. That is exclusive of the men in the machine gun, signalling and base details. The total number of men stationed in St. John is approximately 600 and more than 300 are from this city. At Fredericton there is another company and 2 companies are at Perth. These two companies have many members who hail from the city of the Loyalists.

The St. John men who hold commissions with the 140th are as follows: Major Perley, senior major; Captain Lounsbury, adjutant; Lieut. Patchell, assistant adjutant; Captain Malcolm, medical officer; Captain Harper, paymaster; Captain Connon, chaplain; Captain Newcombe, 2nd in command of A Company; Captain Bell, 2nd in command of B Company; Capt. Teed, 2nd in command of C Company, and Captain Young in command of D Company. The other St. John officers are Lieutenants Courtney, Thorne, McCleley, Manning, Perley, Baker, Grannan, Cronin, Ashford, Roxborough, Clements and Dowling. Many of the homes of St. John have representatives in this St. John unit and the people of this city have every reason to feel proud of their men, who will soon be leaving here to make their final preparation for defending the rights of civilization against German militarism.

Friendly Rivalry.

The stationing of two St. John battalions here has been beneficial to both. A spirit of friendly rivalry has sprung up between the 115th and the 140th and each has vied with the other in different branches of endeavor. Although busy with recruiting and training the members of the two battalions have found time to indulge in athletic contests to a limited extent.

During the winter hockey teams from these units met and there was also a tug of war contest between representatives of the battalions. Now that the baseball season is here the men in khaki have taken up that pastime. On Saturday the first inter-regimental game of the season was played on the Barrack Square between officers of the 115th and the 140th. Each team was allowed to have a pitcher from the ranks but outside of these positions the teams were composed of officers only. The game went five innings and was marked by heavy batting on both sides. Although the score at the finish was 15 to 16 in favor of the 140th this was no indication of the play. The game was interesting throughout. In the last inning the 115th had a batting rally and came close to catching their opponents. The 140th was allowed to have a pitcher from the ranks but outside of these positions the teams were composed of officers only.
