Mr. McMillan is a fine type of a Scotheman, a successful man in his business, which is that of a farmer and stock raiser, and an able exponent of Liberal opinion. He spoke for two hours and a half and with much effect. He speaks very broad Scotch which rather adds to than detracts from his oratory and he makes his points in an effective manner. He was followed by Mr. George Taylor, the Conservative by Mr. George Taylor, the Conservative whip, who is one of the most unpopular men in the House, even with his own party, some of whom contrast him with the late Liberal whip, Mr. Sutherland, very much to the disadvantage of the former. Mr. Taylor, when he gets in earnest, always conveys the impression of a men who is earlier to the contract of the man who is crying, his voice is a sort of exaggerated squeak and his manner is restless and uncertain. As for his mental calbre that may be judged from the following extract from his speech which I clip from the columns of that faithful Tory paper, the Otttawa Citizen:
