Hearing Europe Talk From Bottom of the Well

 While the public was wondering at the fact that our navy was practically unscathed and untouched by submarine warfare a small group of men knew that Dr. James Harris Rogers, of Maryland, had perfected a wonderful tallman of loops and coils for their protection, for while in 1917 Marconi was claiming that "submarines could not receive signals when submerged" Dr. Rogers had demonstrated the fact that the opposite was possible.

SECRET GUARDED
 The secret of Dr. Rogers' accomplishment was so well guarded that no official, no matter how high his rank, was allowed to visit the Hyattsville home in uniform; but many notable men, both of this country and representing the Allies of the United States, clad in mufti, were Dr. Rogers' guests.

"But wasn't your place guarded by Secret Service men?" was asked the inventor.

"No, it was considered better to have no guards," was the answer.

"Strange men in the neighborhood might have aroused suspicion and cause comment, and our desire was to avoid any appearance of anything unusual. So representatives of the various governments came and went as friends of the family, and no one suspected what was being done."

PERSONALITY OF CHARM
 Dr. Rogers is a Southerner and personifies the romance of that section, its traditions, customs, manner.

There is a wealth of romance in figure of this man, representative of an old world that is disappearing. He seems to be a memory, who is forging ahead alone lines that are of the greatest modern significance.

In fact, both in his own personality, as well as in his achievement, Dr. Rogers holds the elements of a high romance and is a figure that appeals both to the admiration and to the imagination.

The inventor and scientist is a son of James Webb Rogers, who was born in Hillsborough, N.C., on July 11, 1822. Dr. Rogers' father was a graduate of Princeton, later became a member of the Confederate Army under Gen. Leonidas Polk and later settled in Southern Maryland, near Bladensburg, where the old Rogers home, named by Dr. Rogers' father, the Parthenon, is one of the historic spots.

DR. ROGERS HONORED
 Dr. Rogers' grandfather, Dr. John Rogers, although born in Ireland, came to this country at an early age and became a midshipman in the navy.

Dr. Rogers' achievements have been widely recognized. The State of Maryland, the Maryland Academy of Sciences and various other organizations have paid tribute to him.

These testimonials, framed, occupy places on the walls of his laboratory. One of them most highly prized was presented to him by his fellow-citizens of Hyattsville, who in their tribute to their local war heroes paid particular homage to Dr. Rogers.

In the course of the "Resolutions of Appreciation" passed by the citizens of Hyattsville the following paragraph appears:

"When our country was in peril he worked ceaselessly in his laboratory, and when means of communicating quickly with our forces upon the sea and in France became imperative, he had perfected his discoveries and turned over to a grateful nation his underground wireless and understood methods of communication. We can only sense the value to mankind of these inventions; posterity must do them justice."

Angry Lumberjacks Descend on Town Demanding Success

QUEREC, Dec. 21.—One thousand lumberjacks are without employment and have not received their wages for several weeks as a result of the financial difficulties of the Bay Sulphite Company, which culminated this week in a petition in bankruptcy being filed and a temporary receiver being appointed by the Quebec Registrar. So serious is the situation resulting from this condition that the intervention of the Provincial Government has been sought and Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, announced this evening that he had despatched two inspectors to deal with the situation.

Reports available here are to the effect that the lumberjacks are in a serious predicament and are pouring into the little town of Chandler from the forests of Gaspé and Bonaventure countries, where they had gone for the company for the winter season.

In fact, unless the large number of men gathered at that point can find means of reaching their home for Christmas and New Year, trouble is forecast, as they are not in a very sweet mood after their experience of working for nothing for several weeks.

The feeding of these men is also a problem which has been placed before the government and immediate relief is necessary to prevent nasty developments.

It is reported that pourparlers are now going on between Hon. Mr. Mercier and the Canadian National Railways to carry the lumberjacks home.

New Speed Queen of Rum Runners Seized in Chase

(New York World, Dec. 20)
 Sad tales of seizures adding to the pyramiding cost of holiday liquor were unfolded yesterday when Prohibition officials seized $100,000 worth of alcohol marked "Inseed oil" in a warehouse, No. 191 Front Street, and Customs officials seized the new speed queen of the ocean at Sandy Hook after an exchange of shots.

Customs officers also captured the "K 4282" off Jones Inlet after a two mile chase, while coast guards at Seabright nabbed a craft with forty cases of whiskey just as she was unloading to waiting trucks. The boat's skipper reported being buffeted about for seventy hours in a rough sea before he could reach shore with his rum cargo.

Speed Is 41 Miles an Hour
 Greediness was said by the bootlegger of New Jersey to account for the seizure of the speed queen, a thirty footer, so new she was not even equipped with license plates, and credited by her owners with making 41 miles an hour on her first trip to the rum fleet.

She was overhauled while making her second trip in twenty-four hours. Her owners had violated an unwritten agreement among the shore smugglers that one visit a day to Rum Row is amply.

The speed queen was captured by Officers Foster and Cummings of the Sandy Hook Coast Guard Station at 3 a. m., but the three men aboard, said to come from Atlantic Highlands, escaped. She had fifty-five cases which were towed off to Station 97.

The opinions expressed last night were that the rum kings, some of whom now make that point their base, had found no more market for their Christmas cheer thereabouts than afforded outside New York. Choice Scotch at $15 and $18 a case was said to be going a begging because of Federal activity.

As a result two of six frog ships that went to that vicinity when the fleet scattered, vanished yesterday and were reported bound for the New England coast.

Liners Run to Be Labeled

In all sections bootleggers were said to be holding liquor back for the peak prices expected Christmas week. It was announced yesterday that $25,000 worth of liquor taken between June 23 and July 1 from the Saxonia, Paris, France and Muretania will be labelled to-day. The liquor was held here after the United States Supreme Court had ruled that liquor brought into this country was illegal even when under seal.

The alcohol in the Front Street warehouse was in gallon containers, packed in 100 barrels. Six men, including three members of the firm, were arrested.

LAST ENTRY IN "WHITE HOUSE STAKES"
 "The lists are now closed," said President Coolidge, emphatically, to Marshall Sheppey, of Toledo—who gave Laddie Boy to President Harding—when Mr. Sheppey remarked during his recent call at the White House that "Mr. President, you seem long on dogs." There are now three White House dogs—this being the last one. "Island White Oshkosh," the beautiful white collie, whose recent arrival filled the last remaining place on the dog-house.
