

REBELS PLAY CLASSIC VOLLEYBALL

by Nathan Stairs

The UNB Rebels men's Volleyball team was in Halifax this past weekend, taking part in the annual Dalhousie Volleyball Classic. The tournament featured the George Mason Patriots from the US as well as 5 top 10 ranking teams in Canada.

The Rebels began the tourney by losing 0-3 to the George Mason team. Although the scores were very close, there wasn't enough there to beat the defending champions. Following this, UNB went on to defeat the University of Regina Cougars 3-1. This match featured an excellent all-round effort as UNB played consistent, smart volleyball. Saturday morning saw the injury plagued Rebels face the host Dalhousie Tigers. With 3 players sitting out and one playing at sub-par, coach Paul Belanger was forced to put players into unfamiliar roles. The Tigers made short work of this unfortunate situation and proved why they are ranked number seven in Canada. Following this, the crippled UNB team played the University of Moncton. This was no contest as the Rebels destroyed U of M in three straight games, and demonstrated the depth of the team. This situation presented UNB an opportunity to take fifth place as they faced sixth ranked Sherbrook University. The fans were in for a treat as the UNB team played a loose, carefree match which seemed to annoy the opposition. Sherbrooke eventually won the match 3-1 but were hard pressed to overcome the young upstarts from UNB.

Noteables from the Classic include:

- *the Rebels placing 6th overall among stiff competition.
- *Rick Boyle placing first in the category of ace serves for the entire tournament and *the look in the opposition's eyes as they warmed up against "7" smaller players who possessed a slightly off-key attitude which seemed to work for them.

Quote of the tournament: Gay Gallibois following the play being whistled dead on his behalf. "Four years of setting and you call me for a carry!"

VARSIETY-MANIA GIVES BLOOD

Varsity-Mania is taking on a lot more than varsity sports promotions these days. As a result of its unparalleled success in all of its ventures thus far, the Varsity-Mania crew had decided to expand its focus to include the up-coming Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic. "We're going to run an inter-residence challenge at the up-coming clinic," said Carl Burgess, Varsity-Mania Co-ordinator, "attendance by the Houses will be recorded and points will go toward the VCR that we are giving away at the end of the term." This is all a result of Varsity-Mania declaring war on what Burgess calls "Ghost-town Syndrome". "The students on this campus are just plain bored," he explained, "so we are going all out to organize things for them to do."

Although Varsity Mania

has enjoyed a great deal of success this year, the executive committee realizes the program is still in its infancy. Unlike Campus Entertainment which began by bringing in big name bands and operating on a mega-budget, Varsity Mania has targeted a few specific events with a high opportunity for success. "With each event we learn more about what we can improve and how we can cut our losses," said V-M executive member James Clark. Success breeds success, so far each event has been a bit bigger and better;

now we are ready for this year's highlight, The Road Trip, and we're sure it will be a success!
