Preaching at the Manchester Cathedral on a recent Sunday evening, the Dean of St. David's said the people of the British Isles gave barely two millions a year to the work of sending the Gospel abroad. He is well over ninety years of age, and is the oldest clergyman in the Diocese of Bangor.

When we sin we know not what we do—we know not what we are doing towards man; but that is the least half of the matter. The mystery is that we do not know when we sin what injury we do to God.—The late Bishop of Lincoln.
