A Suggestion for Housewives

By RUTH CAMERON

IF YOU, want to get your home thoroughly in order, if you want to him those curtains which have been hanging fire so long, if you want to be are of getting that table, whose marred surface has long been an eye-sore to or, repolished at last; in short, if you want a powerful motive that will force do and have done within a definite time the innumerable little things bout the home which you hafe been putting off for the last six months, don't ust make resolutions about these things-have a party. To-norrow is my neighbor's turn to entertain her bridge club. Two weeks ago she solicited advice as to the best shade for a new couch cover. "I've had that money that Uncle John gave me Christmas laid aside to get it," she explained, "and I need it shockingly, but I hate selecting a thing like that and I've been putting it off all this time. Now I suppose I'll have to get it."

I last week she made the new curtains for her bedroom for which she has had the material on hand six months. She also laundered her bed spread, the scarfs on her bureau and dresser and her pin cushion, and had her puffs cleaned. "Such a relief," she sighed as she displayed them. "They've needed it for weeks, but it's one of those little odd jobs that are always being put off.'

This week she has had her living room and guest room cleaned. Not just ordinarily cleaned, you underwalls-and-ceiling-and-windows-and-bric-a-brac-and-magazinelatter all thoroughly cleaned. Furthermore, she has polished all the silver, and scoured the percolator, the chafing dish and the fire set until you can see ur face in any one of them. These are a few of her visible activities during the past two weeks Doubtless she also attended to many other little odd jobs which were not

Tired but happy, she surveys her home to-night with an air of approval It is a perfect joy to me to see things looking as they should," she says and I'm going to try to keep them up."

Of course there are some people who never put off little odd jobs until some day soon." They don't need any coercion to help them get things done. But for those who are not so exemplary I repeat my suggestion-it you want to be sure to do and have done, within a reasonable space of time, the thousand and one things which you have been putting off for the last six nonths, don't just resolve to "do it now," but send out your invitations for a
