BANKS TOLD TO LOOK OUT

A Big Swindle Perpetrated on American Money Order Company.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—Twenty thousand banks in every section of the world, have been notified by the United States Express Company, that a band of international swindlers have counterfeited the company's $50 travelers checks and are passing them wholesale in Europe. Twenty-four of the counterfeit checks issued and uttered within a week and cashed at Carlsbad, Lugan and Nice, have been received by the company here.

These checks, representing one week's operations, are dated checks.

The counterfeit checks are all of the $50 denomination and of the 1907 series. They are signed in facsimile by E. T. Platt, as treasurer. The counterfeits are easy of detection inasmuch as they do not have the words United States Express watermarked on the paper, as do the genuine and there are other defects in reproduction.

A cablegram received to-day by J. S. Buggar, superintendent of the company's foreign department from the Wiener Bankverein at Vienna, describes one of the men as an elderly American, smooth shaven, of slight figure and flat-nosed. The Carlsbad branch of the Wiener Bankverein has cashed several of the spurious checks.

Armed with this description detectives of every European country, and a private detective agency of international reputation are seeking the counterfeits. Checks that may have been issued since August 29 have not been received here and the amount involved in the operations subsequent to that date is, therefore, conjectural.

POLICEWOMEN NOW IN MANY CITIES OF U. S.

Chicago's latest novelty in the establishment of a squad of policewomen on the regular force is not an innovation so real as apparent, in the view of some editorial observers, appearing in the Wisconsin State Journal (Madison), which calls attention to the fact that "within the last few months all over the country women have been appointed on the police force, even in states which do not have equal franchise." In this connection it is remarked by some that Chicago's ten original policewomen "ought to be able to demonstrate very speedily the wisdom of the Illinois Legislature in giving women the vote," while others, noting and unquestionably there is special work to be done among their several qualifications, the experience of many European countries that the policewoman is "the best and most effective agent" in the fight against "the monster of modern society" known as "the white slave."

Of the ten Chicago women added to the staff of Chief of Police McWeeny by appointment of Mayor Harrison, we read in the press, eight are widows. Their ages run from 25 to 50, and their height from 5 ft. 2 inches to 5 feet 10 inches. Their weight ranges from 100 pounds to 170 pounds. The present appointments, we learn, are for a period of 60 days, after which the civil service commission will hold regular examinations for the positions. The particular duty of the policewomen, it is generally forecasted, will be to see to the protection of women and children; although with the full authority of a policeman, they will have to be prepared to meet whatever exceptional duty chances on their "beat." But this is just where the trouble comes in, according to the New York World, which questions the wisdom of Chicago's new move, although it admits that:

"There are plenty of police work that women might do to advantage. As sanitary police, as special officers of the health department, they certainly would not prove more inefficient or careless than men. All the business of the police is not to deal with criminals and rowdy and violent persons of both sexes. But there is emergency work any policewoman must be ready to do at a moment's notice. When Officer Blank, in navy blue jacket and skirt, with star on her breast, hears of a hold-up or murder in a low dive on the Loop in Chicago, what is she going to do? Will she seize the murderer red-handed, wrest his smoking pistol from him, and march him off to the corner, or will she stand by and wait for the wagon, while a mob clamors for his

"THIRTEEN" HOODO OLDER EVEN THAN CHRISTIANITY

Many persons profess to see an evil omen in the fact that Miss Jessie Wilson will be the thirteenth White House bride.

By some persons of nearly all nationalities the number 13 is regarded with superstitious fear. At Brighton, England, recently, the town council granted permission to a householder to change the number of her dwelling from thirteen to 12A, so many were the ills which she ascribed to the fatal number. In this way the town council took official cognizance of the 13 superstition.

Paris will not have the number for any of its houses. Parisians so hate the "thirteen party" that there is a professional diner out called "quariorziennes" whose function is to make the fourteenth at entertainments and dinners.

The Turks so dislike it that the word is practically expunged from their language. The Italians will not even use the number in their lotteries.

In Italy the gambler's horror of 13 is ascribed to the fact that a thirteenth card off one of his packs bears the figure of death.

In England the superstition is believed to have arisen from the old calculation of the insurance offices that one out of 13 persons taken indiscriminately will die within a year. Others trace the awe in which the

RAILWAY SAFETY UNDER DISCUSSION

Directors and Officials Entirely of Cost and Not Safety.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—The directors and officials of the roads of this country could be spending the forty-eight hours of the funeral in the houses of mourning of the victims of the railroad wrecks, said Charles P. ex-United States labor commissioner to the second Congress of the International Council for Industrial Peace.

Mr. Neil was talking to delegates representing great railroad and industrial enterprises. The former official asserted that the sole equipment was responsible for many of the accidents of the past. He said that the systems of management were changed, he said, because possible officials for different lines of railroads were competitors. Costs per mile of operation and costs per ton of operation said, were the guiding influences of many of these officials.

The safety of the main streets of New York, was said by George H. Whittle, President of public safety commission of Chicago, who landed this city's attention on Chicago with half the population of New York, he said twice the number of street accidents. Why? Because Chicago is a city from New York in traffic law are striving for new traffic laws.
