S. O. P. CHARTER TO BE USED BY C. P. R.

Bill Was Given Third Reading Yesterday.

Police Given Instructions About Snow Cases.

More Pruning of Estimates Will be Needed

It was reported to-day that the South Ontario Pacific Railway Com-pany's bill which was given a third reading in the Senate at Ottawa ves-terday would probably be used by the Canadian Pacific Railway in getting favorable terms for the charter of the Hamilton & Guelph Junction Railway, held by Ex-Mayor Biggar, J. W. amoreaux and other local promoters The proposed Guelph Junction road electric line, which according to plans will run from the corner of Locke and Barton streets to the T., H. & B. spur in East Hamilton. It has been stated several times that a start was about to be made on construction work. The latest occasion was two or three weeks ago, but a letter arrived shortly after from the C. P. R. officials intimating that on account of the stringency in the money market they would not be in position to consider the proposition before the fall. It is said now that one of the reasons for the de-lay is because the C. P. R. people do t care to pay the price asked by the local promoters for the charter.

Charges of favoritism against the Health Department in the case of Ald. Howard, whose daughter is a small-pox patient, have been hinted at. Ald-erman Howard was permitted to leave pox patient, have been hinted at. Alderman Howard was permitted to leave the house at 239 Cannon street east, where his daughter is quarantined on Monday and has been going around as usual. The action of the department created considerable talk. It is also charged that the department did not put any watch on the alderman's house, although recently in the did not put any watch on the alderman's house, although recently in the case of another party, a few doors from Alderman Howard's residence, when there was emailpox, a man was stationed in a little shack on the edge of the sidewalk. The doctor defended his course to-day by declar ing that no favors had been shown ald. Howard that other people with smallpox in their homes had not received. The law, he says, does not permit him to quarantine people against their will after the incubation period has passed. Ald. Howard, he declares, was held that long and his clothes fumigated before he was permitted to leave the house. The doctor says there were other cases in which a watch was not put on the house. "We do not follow the letter of the law in every case," he admitted. "We use our own judgment and save expense when we can. We did not think a watch was required in this case. We were not given credit for the promptness with which we quarantined it when we discovered it was smallpox."

MORE AMENDMENTS TO THE INSURANCE BILL.

Mr. MacDonald Has Many Suggestions for Committee's Consideration.

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 14.—(Special.)—J. K. MacDonald, of the Canadian Life Officators 'Association, was heard again to-day at the Banking and Commerce Committee on the Government insurance bill. He spoke against the limitations in the bill to investments, which would be detrimental to the profits of the policy holders. Among the changes he suggested were the abolition of the five-year existence period of bonds, as well as the requirement of 25 per cent. excess value in the mortgage values over the value of the bonds secured; to change from seven to three years the period for which debentures and preferred stocks must K. MacDonald, of the Canadian Life Offiat the Banking and Commerce Committee to investments, which would be detriers. Among the changes he suggested debentures and preferred stocks must pay interest, and to cut down the period for common stocks from ten to five years.

In answer to a question from Mr.
Fielding, Mr. MacDonald admitted that industrial stocks would be a difficult choice to make.

To this the Finance Minister made the comment that it would be more difficult in a three-year than in a seven-year stock. Mr. Fielding expressed a doubt of the wisdom of including common

Mr. Fielding said that they were about the same thing, but he thought the companies would prefer the superintendent as more of an independent body. There would also be more delay in going to the treasury board.

Another amendment suggested by Mr. MacDonald was that no person soliciting insurance and paid by the company should be deemed an agent unless it was shown to the satisfaction of the court that there was fraudulent collusion between such agent and the person insured.

OLD FIREMAN MEETS DEATH.

New York's Deputy Chief Killed in Cellar.

Fell Through a Trap Door to His Death.

New York, Feb. 14.—Deputy Chief Charles W. Kruger, known for many years as "The Grand Old Man of the Fire Department," lost his life to-day while leading his men in a desperate fight against flames in Canal street. While working his way cautiously through a cellar filled with smoke and gases, Kru ger plunged through a trap door into a sub-basement filled with water. He was dead when taken out, but in the few minutes which clapsed between the time the old man fell and his body was drawn out, more than a score of men had risked their own lives in an effort to save that of their leader.

'I knew it would happen this way, said one of Kruger's men when the chief's body was being carried away. "I have been to many fires with him. He was always in the lead. He never said, 'Boys, go into that place, or that place,' He always led us himself. He said, 'Boys, follow me,' and that's just what he did this time, when he led us into that base-

Kruger was 57 years old, and had been a member of the department for 36 years. Several years ago Kruger was acting their of the department for a time while Chief Croker was temporarily under suspension.

The Baker-Jones Printing Co. suffered a loss of $50,000, and the R. H. Thompsons Paper Co. $10,000.

A great pile of excelsior in bales was blazing luriously, and attempts to reach it with streams from the street had been unsuccessful. After several attempts to get at the fire from the outside Kruger asked permission of Chief Croker to take his men through the basement of 215 and cut a hole through the wall to 217, where the fire was burning. Croker consented, and with a dozen men behind him, Kruger plunged into the cellar. The place was filled with smoke, and the dead'y fumes of illuminating gas, which flowed from broken or melted pipes, but the men pressed cautiously forward into the darkness. Just in the middle of the cellar Kruger stepped on a trap and plunged into six feet of water in the sub-basement.

Then began a desperate fight in the gas-filled cellar to save the chief. He could do little to help himself, and when Battalion Chief Galvin plunged into the dark hole and raised the old man's head above the surface he was unconscious. It required the combined efforts of twenty firemen, weakened as they were by breathing smoke and gas, to draw Galvin, who still clung to Krugers' body, from the pit.

Thinking there was something wrong with the lights he went back to the end of the line to investigate. The car had stopped near the House of Refuge. Mr. Miller stepped aboard the rear platform and almost did a back somersault when he peeped in-side. Over in a corner of the car the conductor was hugging and making love a back somersault when he peeped inside. Over in a corner of the car the conductor was hugging and making love to a blushing young maid. The super-intendent's surprise was not a patch to the shock the loving young couple received. The girl almost fainted and the con's face turned a fiery red as he moved to the back of the car humming: "Well, I Guess this is No Place for Me." When the superintendent got over the shock he said things. The conductor is a married man and the girl, aged about 22, lives on Locke street south. The conductor admitted he had no excuse. The girl pleaded with the superintendent to let her go. "It will never happen again," she said.
