A Cry From La Scie.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Mr. Editor,—Kindly allow me a short space in your most esteemed paper to say a few words from this silent part of the globe. We never see much in public print from La Scie, but I think, Mr. Editor, the time has come when we, the people of La Scie, should be recognized as an industrious, hard-working people. If you would take a walk around La Scie harbor and see the number of motor boats that are building, and watch our people working early and late, you would be convinced what I say is true. There are eight new motor boats building here this winter, to be added to the four used here last year, making the number up to twelve motor boats, which will be used at the fishery in La Scie the coming summer. These motor boats or motor engines have not come too soon, for they are the fisherman's comfort. Our people have toiled hard in the past, working at the fishery night and day and helping to build up the revenue of their country.

La Scie has four denominations, each with a good church of their own, also one Superior School and an Orange Hall, with not a Government shell to be found. There is some kind of a bale box attached to a dwelling house that was used when the Frenchmen carried on the fishery here. This is the place the Magistrate has to hold court in, which is just about fit for a family of mice to hold their play in. If a Government official or Sir Edward Morris would happen to fall into this bale box he would get the biggest surprise he ever got in his life. This is where our Magistrate has to summon people. I am sure he (Sir Edward) must be ashamed that his Government has not done more for the people of La Scie and given him a decent building to hold His Majesty's court in, and also a post office decent enough to go into.

In this bale box there is just about room enough for the Magistrate, the plaintiff and the defendant. Then they have to sit like Chinese policemen to give themselves room. Just fancy British subjects sitting in His Majesty's court with their feet under their bodies to rest themselves on, not even a chair or a stool to sit on, while the Sheriff stands out in the door looking on. Such is the condition of affairs in La Scie. It is a disgrace to the Government and an injustice to the population of La Scie and the public at large. We hope before long to have a public building erected suitable for both purposes. We, the people of La Scie, would ask the Inspector General of Police to remove Constable Walsh of Tilt Cove to La Scie, as he is badly needed at this place.

Mr. J. H. Parsons, our teacher, and the assistant, Miss G. Short, are having a concert to-night in aid of the new school, the proceeds of which will go towards seating the school. We wish them a good collection.

I may say the Orangemen held their 7th anniversary here on April 10th, leaving their hall at 10.30 a.m., with the Orange Young Britons in the front of the ranks they marched to the Methodist Church, where Past Master gave them an address they will not soon forget, taking as his subject "Ye are a chosen people that should shine as lights unto the world." 1st Epistle

MOTOR BOAT.

La Scie, April 14, 1913.

Quickly Caught.

At 12.30 p.m. to-day, an outboard man who was half seas over, went in to a store at the corner of New Gower and Queen Streets, asked for a plug of tobacco refused to pay for it and then cut off a hunk of cheese. He told the lady behind the counter that "if she said much" he would carve her as nicely as he did the cheese. He then marched out and was down by J. B. Ayre's when the woman called two policemen who quickly overtook him and brought him back and made him quickly pay up. The man was not frightened, he was terrified, and begged to be released. As the woman would not appear against him, a gentle hint from the boot of a party present expedited his exit from the store and when he left he proved that he could give Tom Longboat some useful tips on the art of sprinting.

Bar Member of British House.

London, April 11.—A profound sensation was created in the House of Commons to-day when Mr. Stuart Montagu Samuel, who represents Tower Hamlets, was barred from membership in the House of Commons by the Privy Council, because it was proved that his firm, Samuel Montagu & Company, had engaged in the purchase of silver for the Indian Government.

The British laws forbid members of Parliament from engaging in business involving Government contracts.
 Viscount Haldane, the Lord Chancellor, made this announcement of Mr. Samuel's debarment. — Daily Star, April 11, 1913.
