A novel mode of advertising has been introduced in England. A tradesman and a farmer were entering Banff together, when the former took a hand-bill from his pocket and offered the latter five pounds to stick it on his back in the market for two hours.

Illinois farmers intend celebrating the coming forth of July after a new, and we think sensible fashion. Instead of gazing at useless processions and contributing towards an expenditure of fire-crackers and the like, they intend meeting together to discuss the Railway monopoly under which they now groan.

We are generally inclined to deal tenderly with obituary notices, but it is a little too much to be told of a lady (in Memphis, Tenn.) that "she rose as a star and beamed lucently with a meteoric resplendency along the horizon of her parents, lighting their pathway with the sheen of hope."

A young lady who has been greatly annoyed by a lot of young simpletons who stop under her window at night, and sing "If ever I cease to love," wishes they would cease their foolishness, come in and talk "business," and they will confer a great favour.

Walter Savage Landor related how he once met Napoleon walking in the garden of the Tuileries, and added, in characteristic Landor style: "The fellow looked at me so insolently that if I had not had a my so-arrm I should have knocked him down."

Melancholy Accident on the W. G. & B. Railway.

An accident which was attended with fatal results occurred on the W. G. & B. Railway on Friday forenoon. As one of the timber trains on the line was coming towards Guelph, as it got on the down grade at Saper's siding, some five miles north of the town, the engine hauling a heavy loaded timber train, by some means got off the track, the rear behind crashing on to it.

The latter unhappily got off on the wrong side, and the timber, from the connection, fell on him, crushing him beneath their weight. He was at once extricated from his terrible position, and conveyed in a hand car to Newton's Hotel, where Drs. Herod, Keating and Worsfold were in attendance.

It was found that the right leg was severely crushed, the bones protruding throughout the flesh. The left leg below the knee was also found to be badly crushed and bruised. The medical men at one time thought of amputating the limbs, but the poor fellow was so prostrated by the shock, that quite conscious, that they feared to perform an operation.

He continued gradually to sink during the afternoon and evening, and died at ten o'clock. The Benevolent Committee of the Odd Fellows Lodge here, of which Order the deceased was a member, were very kind and attentive to him, and everything was done by them and the people of the Hotel to relieve his sufferings.

The name of the deceased was Thomas McLennan. He had previously been on the Grand Trunk, and had only been a short time on the Great Western. He was married and has two children who, along with their mother, reside in Brantford. She, poor woman, was telegraphed for soon after the accident occurred, and arrived some time before he died. We can fancy the state of mind she was thrown in when she received the news and saw her bruised and dying husband.

Dr. Herod, this (Saturday) morning opened an inquest at Newton's Hotel, to inquire into the circumstances attending McLennan's death. The following jury were empanelled:—Wm. Bell, Foreman, D. Tapp, Wm. Shaw, J. Sully, B. Shane, A. Hadden, D. Jackson, E. O'Donnell, R. S. King, N. Croft, Jas. Carter, H. Metcalf, W. A. Sales.

After viewing the body the inquest adjourned till Monday.

We understand that there were only two brakes on the train, which was a long one, and as we said heavily loaded. If this is the case, then the railway authorities deserve severe censure for allowing a train of this description to leave without proper means of braking.

All the facts, however, will be brought out in evidence.

Mrs. McLennan will get an allowance from the Odd Fellows' Lodge in Brantford, of which her husband was a member. He was also a member of the Mutual Benefit Society composed of employees on the Railway, and his widow will receive a handsome allowance out of its funds.

The Milton Champion says there were extensive bush fires in Essex and Nassau counties last week, and great exertions had to be made to keep the flames from extending to farm buildings.

EXHIBITION IN THE MATRIMONIAL MARKET.—Nova Scotia young ladies and girls are at present in a quandary regarding the fixing of the matrimonial tie. The Halifax Reporter relates that a young lady in that town being desirous of marrying, and having made all the necessary arrangements for getting spliced this week, applied at the Provincial Secretary's office a few days since for a marriage license. Judge what was his consternation when he learned that no marriage licenses could be given, as there was no Governor to append the proper signature giving authenticity and validity to the ceremony. Quite a frustration was, we understand, the result of the publicist of the fact. Young brides all over the Province, married during the present month, will begin to wonder whether they are legally married or not. There is no plan now but the old fashioned one, of having the banns published three times, or else going off to New Brunswick, Prince Edward's Island, or New Jersey, had, it seems, been made in the competition for this important point, that is, of marriage during an interregnum, such as has taken place this month. The whole Province will be nearly a month without a wedded pair.
