didate. A Gentleman Tramp. Thomas Major, Charles Wilson, and Matthew Smith, alias McAllister, were arrested the other day on a charge of drunkenness and vagrancy and were remanded until today. This morning they were arraigned and a couple of Salvation Army officers testified that they had been staying at the Shelter for several day on tickets supplied by charitably disposed persons. P. C. Twohey arrested them for drunkenness. McAllister, or Smith, has done time before, but Major protested that he was a gentleman of leisure and independant means. A registered letter with an English postmark was handed to him in court and he showed the magistrate a remittance of $15 to prove his assertion. He was promptly fined $5 or 40 days. A similar sentence was inflicted on his two companions. Major paid and his companions were left to serve out their 40 days. Wm. H. Payne, the second-hand dealer, arrested because of Mr. Gatecliffe surrendering his bail, was sent to jail to await his trial on a charge of talse pretense. Payne is the man who horrowed money from Widow Johnston, and she claims that the stock on which he gave a chattel mortgage as security was overvalued. He tried hard to get bail, but was unsuccessful. A couple of dranks were discharged.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS SERVICE,

Mr. H. T. Smith Resigns His Position as Superintendent

Of the Street Railway Company-Honored by the Employes-Address and Presentation.

The resignation of Mr. H. T. Smith as superintendent of the London Street Railway Company took effect last night. Mr. Smith was the oldest employe of the company. When the road was opened some twenty years ago and extended only from the present stables to the corner of Richmond and Dundas streets. Mr. Smith started as a driver. Since then he has been continuously on the road, and many years ago received the position of superintendent, which he has since so ably filled. His legion of friends will with regret learn of his resignation, and miss his familiar figure at his usual post. The drivers and stablemen met in the offices of the company about 10 o'clock last night, and as Mr. Smith had about completed his -Notice is given that application will work, Mr. Henderson stepped forward

Mr. Wm. English, foreman of the stablemen, then presented Mr. Smith with a costly meerschaum pipe in a beautiful case. The worthy superintendent was taken entirely by surprise. He replied very feelingly, thanking his fellow-employes for their great kindness and wishing them and the company the greatest degree of success.
