COREY-SCARBROOKE WEDDING IS SMART EVENT IN PETROLIA

Many Attend Interesting Nuptials At Christ Church, Yesterday.
A LOVELY BRIDE

Christ church, Petrolia, was the scene of an interesting social event yesterday when Miss Helen Scarsbrooke, sister of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McLean and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Scarsbrooke, became the bride of Mr. Harrison Corey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Bloss Parsons Corey. Rev. Canon W. T. Hill of London officiated, assisted by the rector, Rev. R. C. Pitts.

White lilies and bridal wreath decorated the church, while the guests were seated with clusters of white flowers tied with large bows of white satin ribbon.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. H. W. McLean, was lovely in a gown of white crepe backed satin made with panels of Chantilly lace, the long side draperies of the gown forming a train.

A cape of exquisite lace fell from the shoulders. The bride veil, edged with lace, was arranged in cap fashion with a wreath of orange blossoms at the back and soft fluting of lace about the forehead. The bride's bouquet was a shower of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Kathleen Robinson of Alisa Craig as maid of honor, was gracefully gowned in lustrous green satin, faced, crepe, with deep flounces of cream lace. She wore a poke bonnet of the same material trimmed with French flowers in pastel shades and carried an arm bouquet of Pernettes roses.

Miss Isabel Scarsbrooke cousin of the bride, and Miss Francis Harrett were the bridesmaids, gowned in lemon-yellow and peach and silver shot tulle, with tight bodices and bouffant skirts.

The bridesmaids hats were of leg-horn, trimmed with French flowers and their flowers, arm bouquet of Ophelia roses, tied with green tulle. During the signing of the register, Mrs. H. W. McLean, sister of the bride, sang sweetly Love's Coronation. Mr. Randolph Corey, brother of the groom acted as best man, while Mr. Peter Campbell, Toronto, Mr. E. Dennis of London, Mr. H. C. Hibbert and Mr. L. Jones were the ushers.

Reception Held.
Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McLean, where Mrs. Corey mother of the groom, also received. Mrs. McLean wore a graceful gown of black lace, with a small black hat trimmed with ostrich and handsome scarf. Her corsage was of orchid sweetpeas.

Mrs. Corey wore a lovely French gown of orchid crepe heavily beaded with a picture hat of black lace, a rose point, scarf and a corsage of coral sweetpeas. Mr. and Mrs. Corey left on a honeymoon trip to Washington, Boston and New York. The bride travelled in an ensemble suit of ash of roses cashmere, cloth with small black satin hat and black patent leather shoes. On their return they will reside in Crescent park, Petrolia.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mrs. R. J. Robinson and Miss daughter of Sir Adam Beck on the Ontario ladies' golf tournament games at Weston this week. The Globe golf expert says: "Mrs. Strathearn Hay is one of the brightest prospects of Canadian golf. Driving with the power and freedom of women of wide repute at the royal and ancient game, Mrs. Hay yesterday forced Miss Ada Mackenzie, crack of the Mississauga club, to the last green of the course of the Weston golf and country club, to retain her accustomed place in the provincial women's golf championship. With her slashing shots from the tee, Mrs. Hay provided the thrills of a championship contest, which was a monotonous course to a Friday final."

Kathleen Robinson of Alisa Craig; Mr. and Mrs. S. I. Draper of London; Lawrence Davies, St. Thomas; E. Dennis of London; Mrs. F. C. Coulter, Toronto; Peter Campbell, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. B. Whitcombe, Detroit; Dr. H. Geddes, Detroit; Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Collier, Sarnia; Harold Collier, Sarnia; Dr. and Mrs. Martley, Sarnia; Mrs. J. McCort, Sarnia; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wilson, Sarnia; Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Sarnia; and Mrs. O. L. Lewis, Chatham.

New York, June 3.—"It's all over but the shouting" does not apply to the new ribbed silks. The designs are of the all-over type, frequently with an Arab or Moorish motif, but the colors, of which five or six frequently are used, shout at one another after the wearer has passed. Some of the silks have a gold or silver background printed with designs in glaring red and black.

Even the Latin quarter artist has to eat occasionally and some of them are finding the wherewithal for black and red ink by painting gloves. The hand coverings are decorated with original designs which are not duplicated even on both gloves and pair. Embroideries, elaborate and vivid in color, take the place of the painted designs on some gloves recently brought from Paris.

Huge numbers of gloves are making their appearance on some of the latest coat frocks. The coats usually are of a ribbed silk material and the gloves are of contrasting shade. Between the revers appears a vestee of white satin, with a white satin stock tied closely about the throat.

In these days of motors and taxicabs, women are having the inside cleaned. There are any quantity of "leather" linings, but for the real protection of delicate hued hose, all linings should be frequently cleaned and powdered with talc in the proper tint.

HOME AND SCHOOL CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS
Ingersoll Organization Has Splendid Progress—M. Walton President.

Ingersoll, June 3.—The home and school club, organized two years ago, has rapidly taken its place among the active organizations of the town, and the importance of its work is more generally appreciated at the present time than ever before.

The club has done much to link up the homes with the schools, and to create a deeper interest in educational affairs and the welfare of the pupils.

At the annual meeting of the club held recently, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Honorary presidents, C. H. Sumner and Mrs. John E. Boles; president, Mrs. Walton; first vice-president, Mrs. F. H. Adams; second vice-president, Mrs. M. Wallace; fourth vice-president, Mrs. C. H. Adams; recording secretary, Miss Galt; treasurer, Mrs. C. K. Long; program committee, Mrs. D. H. McGill, convener, Mrs. Donald Macpherson, Miss K. McDonald, B.A., William Tume, R. W. Green; membership committee, J. Calder, convener, Mrs. G. H. Smith, Mrs. Hagan, Mrs. Morrow, Mr. Crutcher, F. N. Norton, Mrs. Moore; reception committee, Mrs. Patterson, convener, Mr. Ridley, Mrs. Miss Kendall, Miss Waite, Mrs. B. B. McCarty, Mrs. Sudworth; decorating committee, Mrs. H. Adams; school staff committee, Mrs. W. Kirwin, convener, Miss Muriel Parker, Miss Helen Oliver, Mrs. Chas. E. Huxley, Mrs. T. N. Dunn, Mrs. Mrs. J. W. Cannon, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. J. Allen.

WARD THREE W. C. T. U.
The executive of Ward Three W. C. T. U. met recently at the home of Mrs. T. J. Dickson, the vice-president, 133 Drayney avenue, when plans were made for the regular meeting at 8 o'clock, on June 9, in the Salvation Army citadel, Rectory street.

It is proposed to present the election prohibition campaign to the members of the union at that date. Some interesting instances and observations in regard to the 44 beer dispensing places, were reported. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Does It Spoil a Man to Have His Wife a Wage-Earner After Marriage?

Dear Miss Dix—I am to be married to a young man who makes enough to keep me moderately comfortable, but not enough to lay anything aside toward buying me a home. I am a business girl, and I want to keep on with my work, saving my salary for the home. My mother disapproves of this, as she says that if a girl works after she is married it spoils the man, and when he has to support her he regards it as a burden. I would agree with this if we did not have a definite end in view, but we have, and it is understood that I will stop work when we move into a house of our own. What do you say?

A DAILY READER.

Answer:
I think you are quite right, and that you are doing a very wise thing to keep on with your work until you have enough money to buy yourself a home. We must recognize that economic conditions have changed, and that nowadays it is often impossible for a young couple to get married unless the wife continues to be also a money earner.

In your case your working for two or three years after marriage will mean a different status in life not only for yourself and your husband, but for your children. On his salary alone you could barely make ends meet. You would have no chance to save up anything for a rainy day. You could not hope to own your own home. But with your combined earnings you can finance your marriage properly, and will stand every chance of making it a success.

Of course, there are men whom it ruins to have a self-supporting wife. If a wife can stand on her own feet, and buy her own clothes, they let her do it, but this is by no means the general attitude of men toward their wives who are really working partners. Every worth-while man wants to take care of his own family, and likes to feel that his wife is dependent upon him.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Since leaving college I have been employed in a South American bureau of a very well-known firm. For ten years I have supported my mother, giving her all the comforts and luxuries of life, and while she has always been ready to accept them, she has never offered me the slightest appreciation. I am the least bit of a domineer, and I frequently commented upon by others.

Recently my mother has joined a cult whose forms and ceremonies are most obnoxious to me, and she has made one of her home their rendezvous. One of their ceremonies consists of an habitual talk about death, and my mother harps upon this theme continually. After a hard day's work at the office, to have to listen to an evening's monologue on this grave some subject makes me so nervous that I have decided to separate myself from my mother. I shall, of course, provide for her. Do you think I am doing wrong in leaving her?

A PERPLEXED YOUNG WOMAN.

Answer:
Self-preservation is the first law of nature, and you have a perfect right to leave your mother in order to save your peace of mind and bodily health.

Perhaps, when she finds out that she is in danger of losing the very superior meal ticket you represent if she does not give up her new cult, she will see a great white light, and abandon her cheery little faith.

Personally, I believe that there is no more mischievous and foolish superstition than that which makes so many of us sacrifice our lives by continuing to live with disagreeable people, just because we hope to sustain the relationship of them of daughter, or son, or sister, or brother. We have certain financial obligations to them. We should see that they are fed and clothed and have a comfortable shelter, but beyond that we are not bound to live in daily contact with them if they get upon our nerves.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man, moral, upright, sober and industrious, and have a prosperous business. I am in love with a darling girl, who I am in love with me. We want to be married, and I could give her every comfort, but her parents refuse to let her marry me because I am a widower. My first wife only lived a few months after we were married. She has been dead four years.

Do you think we would be right in going along and marrying in spite of her parents?

DAVE.

Answer:
Of course, you would, Dave. A girl should listen to her parents' advice about marrying a man when they have reason on their side, but when they are idiotic enough to object to a man for no other cause than that he is a widower, they are too silly to consider, and their daughter should not allow them to ruin her life.

Why, a widower is the preferred matrimonial risk, and any father and mother who know what's what in the matrimonial line feel like burning joss sticks to their luck.

when their daughter gets one for a husband.

The widower is nearly always better established in business than the young man, and can give his wife a better home. He knows better how to get along with women than a bachelor does, and is kinder and more considerate than a boy husband. And, best of all, he is not broken, and willing to stay at home of an evening instead of chasing around to places of amusement.

A widower without children is a matrimonial prize that all sensible women grab. That is why there are so few of them lying around loose.
