The changes which have been rumored of late in German army commands have been ordered. The important result is the ac-resignation of General von Moltke, the son and his replacement by Gen. Count Von Waldersee, which makes full the restoration of the later personage to the im-

An imperial ukase has been issued with instructions to the Cossack population in the the various military centers. This action is taken so that the horses may be at the dis-that a mobilization of troops is found necessary.

The refusal of the Russian government to join in a European demonstration against China is alleged to be due to fear that such action would involve Russia in a land war with China after the question had been set-no interest in risking an embroilment with China for the sake of the Catholic and Protestant churches.

On Friday last, there passed away an esteemed resident in the person of Mrs. M.

from England, and has resided in Chemintime, but was only confined to her bed four days and died of heart disease.

B. C. UNIVERSITY.

To the Editor:—Can you tell me and others of the wondering public who have become of the one of the most talked of University? The air was full of noises, and these noises, all harmonious and prophetic, telling of the good things in store for Victoria and for the province, in the year of High education. Gatherings of the literaof the land were held in various public buildings; the men of the gown thronged the town, and we expectant mortals looked for high resolutions and active procedure in academic matters to result from all this conflict of wit and wisdom and earnest endeavor. The Senate of the province framed a bill, and afterwards remodelled this bill, to give authority to the action of the Scholars.

The University—an imposing edifice, in some lovely site, with sage professors, sitting in their chairs like Roman senators, while around them sat eager students——lads and lassies—drinking in streams of erudite eloquence from their learned lips—loomed dimly, but grandly, before our admiring gaze. But lo! the vision has faded, and like an insubstantial pageant, faded, leaves scarce a wrack behind. All this I have heard, but I cannot believe it is even so. The citizens of Victoria, who have so often and so eagerly held their "Fis Brigade" tournaments, and have built their beautiful Agricultural Hall, and filled it with things useful and beautiful, and with hosts of admiring visitors, will certainly rise to this higher effort and will erect a yet more beautiful building and fill it with fair specimens of living beauty, whose excellence shall be imperishable.

BEHRING SEA CLAIMS.

A Russian Official Authority Regards the American Pretensions as Unjustifiable.

(From the Boston Globe.)

A Russian view of the Behring Sea controversy is given in a recent number of the St.
Petersburg Journal, which is the official organ of the Russian foreign office. The article, which deals with the subject from the standpoint of international law and Russian history, pronounces itself opposed to the arguments of our state department, and strongly endorses the argument of Lord Salisbury. It says:

"The Americans put forward claims, exclusive fishing rights over a stretch extending as far as 100 miles from the coast of Alaska, and insist that the date of 1821, when Emperor Alexander I. declared that the right of fishing and sealing in the Behring Sea was reserved to Russian. The government of the United States argues that such a right is acquired by the purchase of Alaska all the rights which Russia possessed in America, it has likewise become entitled to all our former advantages and privileges in connection with the Behring Sea."

"England opposes this view, on the ground that the modern jus gentium, or law of nations, does not in any way legalize the acquisition of new rights by prescription, or authorize the continuance of a privilege which, although it has been exercised for a long time, can be only regarded in the light of an "usurpation" on the part of the Russian Government of 1821."

"The article goes on to speak of the limitations of the Russian claim, and states that the zone of jurisdiction is situated at a distance of three geographical miles from the shore, the three miles being measured by a straight line from the nearest point of the coast. This definition, it says, has been recognized and officially admitted by the Russian government, and the United States of America has at all times recognized the Russian right of equality."

"When the United States Government bases its claims upon the ukase of 1821, it continues the Russian claim, and states that the ukase of 1821, which gave Russia exclusive fishing rights in the Behring Sea, was a law of the character as a law, and that, if Alaska had remained under Russian rule, the ukase of 1821 would have become invalid and obse-lete. It is worthy of note, moreover, that the ukase of 1821, upon which the United States Government bases its claims, has not remained in force very long. For already, three years later, in 1824, the United States Government (the Russian) Government signed a treaty of convention with the United States Government, by which the United States Government recognized the Russian right of equality on the north-west coast of North America."

"It is, therefore, clearly manifest that at the time of the sale of Alaska to the United States the Russian right of exclusive fishing in the Behring Sea, claimed under the ukase of 1821, had become invalid and obselete, and passed out of existence. The United States, therefore, has no justification for basing its claims upon the ukase of 1821. The Russian claim, therefore, is a claim of right, and not a claim of prescription. The Russian claim is a claim of right, and not a claim of prescription. The Russian claim is a claim of right,
