

DOMINION DAY.

The Great Reunion Planned by Vancouver to Celebrate the Birthday of Confederation.

Sailors and Soldiers to Be Seen in Fascinating Exhibitions—Attractive Excursion Plans.

The celebration of Canada's natal day at Vancouver on Monday and Tuesday, July 1 and 2, promises to outshine previous occasions. The citizens' committee is a very influential one, and no stone has been left unturned to enhance the pleasure of visitors. The great event of the festivities will be the military demonstration, in which men from all H. M. ships at present on the station will take part, besides the headquarters companies of the B. C. B. G. A. and those at Vancouver and Westminster. The other attractions are too numerous to mention, but it may be stated that no line of sport has been overlooked. Programmes will shortly be distributed, setting out all particulars. Visitors are expected from every quarter in large numbers, while this city's contingent will journey over upon regular and special boats run for the occasion by the C. P. N. Co., who have made the fares exceedingly low.

The C. P. N. Company say there will be no limit to the number of tickets sold for the excursion. They propose to provide for carrying any number of people wishing to go, but expect that their two largest steamers will meet the requirements in the three trips now arranged for. On the morning of Sunday the 30th inst., the Charmer will leave at her usual time with the first contingent of excursionists, and at 9:30 the same morning the Islander sails, taking the Artillerymen and their friends, besides citizens generally. The following morning the Charmer makes the second special trip, leaving here at 7 o'clock. The tickets, good to use going on any one of these trips, hold good till Wednesday, and have been placed at only $1.50 each for adults, and 75 cents for children, for the round trip.

The military feature of the Dominion Day celebration at Vancouver will not be a sham fight, but will be an exhibition of drill exercises which though not so exciting will be even prettier and quite as interesting as the great spontaneous event which charmed thousands at Victoria on Her Majesty's birthday. The programme drawn up by the naval and military officers looking after the business was issued yesterday. The troops, consisting of the Seamen, the Royal Marines, and the B. C. B. G. A., will in line receive the Admiral with a general salute, presenting arms, the bands playing. Then there will be the march past, in column and in quarter column, to the music of the massed bands. The respective arms will then form up in three separate lines, and each body in turn will be called upon for an exhibition. The Seamen will do the physical drill, after which they and the Marines will form fours, and the latter will march through the sections of the sailors, and having come to the front will perform the sword bayonet exercises. Then the Seamen and Marines having again formed fours the B. C. B. G. A. in the same formation will pass through them to take post for the manual and firing exercises. After these displays will be again formed, and a few de jure will be fired. After the first round, the fire having passed rapidly down the front rank and back along the rear, the rifles will be pointed skyward, and the hands play one bar of "A God Save the Queen"; after the second round for two bars, and after the third and final round until the first verse of the national anthem has been played. Then to crown the rejoicing all the sailors and soldiers will remove their hats and helmets and give three hearty cheers for the Dominion whose birthday they celebrate. When this is over the brigade will march past in review order and salute, form columns and march off.

CLOSURE OF THE CONVENTION.

Yesterday was the last day of the Epworth League convention. The delegates assembled at 9 a.m., the devotional exercises being conducted by Mr. F. W. Davey. The first paper of the day was on "Systematic Giving," and the writer having failed to send it, some little time was spent in general discussion of the subject. A second paper was read by Mr. J. H. Siddall of this city, on "The League and Sunday School Work." A number of valuable and helpful points were brought out, and the convention then proceeded to consider the joint work of the league; this was opened with a paper by Miss Drees of Vancouver. A very important subject came up next, "Shall we continue our Epworth League convention?" The discussion was free and a great number of the delegates expressed their opinions. The idea was that it might be well to affiliate with the Christian Endeavor convention. The majority, however, did not favor any arrangement, and after discussion it was decided to make no change.

A short business session in the afternoon brought the meeting to a close. The balance of the afternoon was reserved for an outing. To-day there will be a special service for the league at the Metropolitan church, and in the evening the closing meetings will be held.

ALMOST CRAZY

Suffering from Constipation.

Expected to be in the Asylum—After all other Remedies Failed B.B.B. made a Perfect Cure, Restoring Robust Health.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 28.—To say all I ought to in favor of B.B.B. would be impossible. It has been a great health restorer to me and I do swear by it. I am a different man now to what I was ten years ago when I was expected to be in the asylum, but now I am in perfect health and it was the B.B.B. that did it. I suffered for five or six years from constipation, sometimes so severely that I went out of my mind. I tried various doctors, both in the country and in the city, and took medicine to have the desired effect. When I used Buckle's Blood Bitters, however, it succeeded beyond all expectations, requiring only two bottles to cure me. To make it still more certain, I may say that some two years afterward I felt the symptoms returning and took one bottle more, and that time to this day I am a well man. I have never used any medicine to work so well. It does seem to be a mere restorer but a sure and certain cure, as I can testify to for hundreds of dollars worth of medicine and advice failed to do me any good, but three dollars' worth of B.B.B. made a permanent cure that has given me years of health and comfort.

Yours truly,
C. L. KILMER.

Cataract Relieved in 10 to 20 Minutes.—One short puff of the breath from the B.B.B. supplied with each bottle of Dr. Agnew's Catarrh Powder, diffuses this Powder over the surface of the nasal passages. Patients are delighted to use it, relieve instantly, and permanently cure Catarrh, Hay Fever, Colds, Headaches, Sore Throat, and all other ailments of the nose and throat.

At Deane & Dryden's.

COUNTRY HOUSE TABLE.

A Useful and Pretty Article That Can Be Made in Many Styles at Small Cost.

A charitable woman, who uses her artistic talents for the benefit of others, utilized her Lenten leisure this year in making tables for country houses, which she has placed for sale at the woman's exchanges, and which are so pretty and dainty that a description may be welcome. They are of various shapes and colors and are entirely covered with linen. The blue denim ones, trimmed with white braid, resembling the blue and white delft which is the latest popular fad in china, are perhaps the prettiest, although the rose or yellow duck are lovely with certain colorings.

All white ones are also very effective, trimmed with blue and white braid and tassels, also trimmed with blue, with blue nails, the latter being covered with fine Bolton cloth. The white linen braid and tassels may be made to match the material by working in cotton of the same color as the covering. The sketch represents a tall table for a palm pot. The low table may be made after the same design; the legs may be either round or square. Old rose linen, with linen braid, white buttons of Bolton cloth and a design embroidered in white cotton on top are the materials used in this table.

Dainty Toilet Accessories. Turnover collars and cuffs of sheerest white swiss, tucked with insertions of yellow valenciennes lace, and narrow frills of the same lace are much worn with dark costumes. The effect is pretty and dressy. Swiss can be bought by the yard, all ready to be converted into these modish accessories. The same combination of sheer material and yellow lace can be bought by the yard, wide enough to make the full vests which are a feature of this season's styles.

Double box plaited ruffles of wide, satin striped grenadine ribbons threaten to supersede feather boas for warm season's wear at least. These ruffles can be made at home, or can be purchased by the yard, an advantage, since those sold in the stores are frequently too short. The grenadine ribbons keep their semi-stiffness, are as becoming as the feather boa, afford a light protection for the neck in case of draft and do not get that ragged and utterly dejected look common to feathers exposed to dampness.

Yokes made of Dresden ribbons, cut in star shape, the points outlined with frills of better colored lace, with English eyelid holes and a deep net top, are new and pretty.—Philadelphia Times.

Variety of the Word. The chief characteristics of fashion's present charming show are its infinite variety, its designs, colorings and endless phases, affording an almost unlimited choice of models suited to special peculiarities of face, form or feature.

Liberty reigns supreme, and the dictator in dress is no longer a despot. On the contrary, the fashions are now very often vetoed, and personal choice and individuality in gowning are everywhere apparent. This was notably shown in the putting down of crinoline proper two years ago. It is, however, again making very unmistakable bids for favor, and it is to be hoped that it will again meet its former fate. Consistency is another characteristic that is receiving special attention, and gowns and garnitures, jewels and lace appropriate to their own particular time and place appear, the entire costume in perfect accord both with the hour, the occasion and its wearer's surroundings in life. It is also perfect in small details, from the crown of the wearer's bonnet to the tip of her dainty shoe.—New York Post.

Language of the Veil. The language of the veil of 1895 requires little interpretation. For the theater, for summer dancing or for a picnic the veil is fastened on in the thick folds that permit coquettish drawings across the face. The eyes now show, now they are veiled, and it is the curve of the cheek that is prominent, again it is the dimple of the chin. And the passer-by says, "That is a pretty woman, a stylish woman and a fashionable one!" The mourning, the staid, the demure veil is pinned straight across the hat brim and drawn to the knot at the back of the head and tied there, the new feature being the way the trimming upon the hat brim is placed over the veil. If there is a jeweled bug, he holds the veil upon his antennae, and if flowers are there the veil falls beneath them. Only the very stupid would now tie on a veil over the gaudy brim trimmings of the season.

A Worker in the Tenebrous. Mrs. Lillian W. Betts, whose editorial and miscellaneous work on The Outlook is well known to a large circle of readers, is still a young woman, slight of figure, mentally and physically active and alert and deeply interested in the benevolent enterprises of New York.

The causes of the working girl and of the dwellers in tenebrous homes are especially dear to her, and for these she toils and writes unceasingly. A vacation home in the country for poor girls, recently opened, is largely the result of her determined effort.

A Fleck of Love. All the world loves a lover, even a scullion's board of education. That stolid body in Atlanta has reinstated Miss Laura Morgan, one of the principals of the Girls' High school in that city, whose position was forfeited by marrying her sick lover to nurse him. In addition the bride has been granted one month's leave of absence, with full pay, to enjoy her honeymoon. All honor and praise to the gallant board.—Exchange.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

Little Prospect of Early Prorogation—The School Question to Be Dealt With.

The "Globe" on British Columbia's Members—The Auditor-General's Memorial.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, June 15.—Very little progress has been made in the house this week, and although everybody is talking prorogation by the 12th or 15th of July, at the present rate of progress there is little prospect of the members being able to leave for their homes about that time. Then the Manitoba school question has once more come within the range of Federal politics and no one can tell what the outcome will be. Amongst the Conservative members from Quebec the feeling is one of exultation at the result. It was the one thing wanted to give them the winning card for the coming elections. With a remedial law passed by parliament at the instigation of a Conservative government, they would possess the trump card in the elections. There is, however, another side to the shield. The Conservative members from Ontario will have a say in the matter, and it will be their policy to urge delay. Unquestionably there is not a member in the house from Ontario, whether Grit or Tory, but would prefer seeing the remedial law question deferred until after the general election. In about half the constituencies of Ontario the question of remedial legislation could not be advocated by candidates on either side of politics. In other electoral divisions, however, the Roman Catholic vote will play an important part and there will be some great trimming by the politicians, whether Grit or Tory, to catch the electoral vote. The impression is strong that the matter will be staved over until after the general election by the appointment of a commission of judges to thoroughly investigate the workings of the Manitoba school system.

The British Columbia members were greatly amused to read an article in the Toronto Globe the other day characterizing the people of British Columbia as "the American states that the government have made things so unpleasant for the B. C. members that they are considering whether they should not set themselves right with the people by rising in their places in the house and voting against the government. The writer calls attention to the fisheries regulations as being obnoxious to evidently not realizing that important concessions have recently been made which it is hoped will satisfy the canners and at the same time not endanger the run of fish. With regard to penitentiary affairs, the correspondent has good reason to believe that they are in a fair way of settlement in a manner which will satisfy the majority of the people of British Columbia. As far as the provincial allowance is concerned for the post office clerks and letter carriers, the appropriation to enable the government to pay up the balance of the amount this year has passed the house this week, and it is proposed to dispose of this question once for all by conceding to the letter carriers and third-class clerks in British Columbia an increase in salary to compensate for the extra cost of living as compared with Eastern Canada.

THE PEOPLE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA,

The action of the Minister of Justice in placing upon the order paper the two distinct questions of the Disfranchisement Bill, prohibiting the issue or sale of Sunday newspapers, is adversely commented upon. Sir Charles E. Tupper does not, however, pledge himself to support the measure, and the intention which he and other lawyers in the house submit is, that if parliament is to legislate at all against Sunday newspapers, it must be by amendment to the criminal code, and it is in this amendment that the British Columbia members have united in opposition. The measure is a very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on the functions of an auditor. All this was very edifying and will go on record as a valuable historical contribution. So far, however, as the state matters contained in the petition are concerned, Mr. Miller wholly failed to substantiate them, and when the Minister of Finance came to deal with the petition itself he put an entirely different complexion upon the position of affairs. Not only did he not show that the Auditor-General had not been diligently poring for some days over the pages of many volumes in the library, and he furnished the house with an interesting disquisition on