TWO UNDER THE BAN.

Mr. Pauli Corrects Some Matters in The World's Story of Yesterday—The E. Y. M. Has His Say. Editor World: Will you kindly allow me Editor World: Will you kindly allow me space to correct an error or two which your Ecclesiastical Young Man has unluckily made in his rather too flaring notice of the humble steward in to-day's issue of The World. He makes it appear as though I had not been invited to the at home given by the pastor at the parsonage, whereas both my-self and wife were present on that occa-sion upon Mr. Benson's special invitation. And it certainly is due to Mr. Benson to say that we were treated with the greatest politeness, both Mr. and Mrs. Benson neartily insisting upon our remaining for refreshpolitices, bolt Mr. and Mr. Benom apartity insisting upon our 'emaining for refreshments, although we expressed curselves and in The World to-day as not having been honored with the invitation of Mr. Benom own as the Rev. J. H. folimes uportainstary and the Rev. J. H. folimes to the alternative of the conference some years ago, and shome, although the cards of a tribation and the sale of the conference some years ago, and shome, although the cards of a tribation and the sale of the conference, and the conference of the sale of the conference, and the conference, and the conference, and the conference of the conference, and the conference of the conference, and the conference of the ments, although we expressed ourselves anxious to retire.

The Editor's Explanation.

The World received a marked copy of The Quiver on Monday, from which most of the SS. CITY OF PARIS DEC. 9. information of 'yesterday's article was derived. The open letter of Mr. Paull to Rev. Make early application for berths. Manly Benson, which we reproduced, was especially underscored. We gave verbatim the account of the conversation reported by the Editor of The Quiver between Mr. Paull and Mr. Benson, but did not add the following, which seemed clearly to point out Mr. Paull as being "that person" who had the grievances referred to:

To think that Mr. Benson was actuated by personal animus in laying aside such a faithful, efficient, well-tried and approved officer as Brother Paull, in ignoring so kind-hearted, sympathetic and wise a poor steward as Brother Paull has always proved himself to be! Yet we cannot bring ourselves to think Mr. Benson was actuated by a spirit of revenge when he left the good brother out of the nominations, but circumstances do appear to press this idea so very painfully close upon us that it is hard, very hard work indeed to keep from it. Oh! Lord help us, for assuredly there is, as Brother Benson truly said, "much, very much to be done between now and Jan. I next, to get ready to work harmoniously and successfully together in a great revival meeting." Then again, we say God help us, help us all to become of a meek and lowly spirit, for there is a great deal of humiliation and reconciliation to be done even in grand old Queen-street before we can hope successfully to engage in such a desirable campaign.

Who, reading this and having no other name before him, would think of discrim-inating part of the allusions to Mr. Holmes and part to Mr. Paulif The editor of The Quiver and Rev. Manly The editor of The Quiver and Rev. Manly Benson may be able to throw more light on what Mr. Paull himself declares to be unfair and un-Christian treatment after 20 years' membership of the church he loves so well, and the unmanly treatment of whose pastor has so often prostrated him in the dust. Still, he is brave and may well say with Micah of old: "Rejoice not over me, O mine enemy; for though I fall I shall rise again."

The Free Breakfast.

At a large meeting of the Cottage Workers, held in the Academy of Music last night, it was decided to continue the free breakfast this year as in the past. Canon Da Moulin has kindly consented to allow it to be held in Richmond Hall again, as the mission room in the Academy of Music is too small. Every encouragement has been given to continue this work, as not a few who came to the breakfasts are now doing well; who once were down in the gutter, and with the help of the lodging house in Jarvis-street, the workers hope for great things this season. Cast-off clothing will gladly be seat for if a card is directed to the Rev. H. C. Dixon. The garments are not given away, but solds so that they cannot be disposed of in the pawn shops. The sympathy of those who are interested in raising the fallen is looked for.

Among the exhibitors were noticed the following names: Misses G. E. Spurr, H. Macklin, H. Handcock, E. Palin, and Messrs. Fred H. Brigden, O. R. Staples and C. W. Jeffreys, president and secretary respectively of the league, C. M. Manley, W. D. Blatchley, W. Crunckshank, J. Jephcott, J. W. Cotton, David W. Thompson, William Thompson and C. M. Manley.

Mr. Brigden's sketches are among the best presented, the majority being in water colors. He is a young artist of ability, and already displays powers which, if cultivated, will place him in a foremost position among his brethren. "On the Credit" is a delightful-bit of coloring, and his studies of views in the neighborhood of Scarboro show a distinguishing appreciation of the beautiful in nature.

OVERCOATS! OVERCOATS!

We are this week making special efforts to clear out a large quantity of MELTON and FRIEZE OVER-COATS that we think have been here quite long enough, although they have only been in stock two months; still with us every line of Overcoats has got to move a little quicker than this. Now, we expect that after the NEXT TEN DAYS we won't have a single one of these Garments Left. The figures we have marked these goods down to are sure to very soon clear them out.

Be sure you enter the proper store. You will easily know our establishment from the fact of no goods hanging outside and the front painted a Light Terra Cotta Stain.
