

REVIEWS.

The London Quarterly Review for July, published by the Lenox Scott Publishing Co., 41 Braclay Street, New York, contains many articles of high interest, both as regards the subjects treated, and the distinguished writers to whom several of them have been attributed:

I. "Lord Macaulay." Rumour assigns article to the Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone, not a frequent contributor, we believe, to a Conservative Review. After briefly enumerating the salient events of Macaulay's life, the reviewer undertakes to "interpret the picture which the biography presents." He paints the structure and habits of the historian's intellect; his laboriousness as an author; his power of memory; his hasty judgment and tendency to exaggeration; the ease, brilliancy, clearness and fascination of his style; criticises minutely the essays on Milton and Bacon; and challenges the celebrated description of the Anglican clergy of the Restoration period, averring that he was not "absolutely and wholly wrong in any point, but wrong in every point by omission and exaggeration." With all their faults, however, the works of Macaulay are admitted to be among the prodigies of literature.

II. "Ornamental and Useful Tree Planting" describes the uses and habits of growth of many trees of Great Britain, and endeavors to kindle an interest in their culture and conservation.

III. "John Wilson Croker." The recently published life of Macaulay contains many charges affecting the memory and character of Mr. Croker, formerly distinguished both in politics and letters, and for many years a contributor to this review, and the present article gives a sketch of his life, and adduces much evidence to refute the aspersions which have been cast upon him.

IV. This is a review of a recent translation from the Icelandic of the "Orkneyinga Saga," which is considered the chief authority for the history of Northern Scotland, from A.D. 872 to 1222, followed by a notice of Ferguson's "Rude Stone Monuments in all Countries."

V. "Life, Letters, and Journals of George Ticknor."

This overcoat is quite different from any other, though very simple and graceful, the cashmere or pique back effect is produced by the novel way of draping, and, though it has the appearance of a separate part, it is all one thing, and one of its chief attractions is its convenient shape for making over by any other pattern. It is intended for any kind of goods, and will be a great favorite for winter materials the coming summer. Paris houses are now using it for their model in preparing suits for the spring season.

Price of Pattern with Cloth Model, 50 Cents, Mailed

SMITH'S INSTANT DRESS ELEVATOR. This cut shows the Upper Part of the skirt swung side out, with the "Elevator" fixed. You can raise your skirt while passing a muddy place, and then let it fall.
