

... partnership, three things must appear: First, that the plaintiff at the time contract was made under which his claim was known that the defendants had been in partnership; second, that he was ignorant of the dissolution; third, that he made the contract supposing he was contracting with the defendants as partners, and in reliance on their liability.

ADVERTISMENT.—The case of Zier v. Edia, decided by the Supreme Court of Ontario on the 3rd ult., was an action against the defendant for the insertion in a newspaper of the following advertisement: "Wanted E. L.M.D. to pay a drag bill." Some third party appears, cut out the advertisement, and put it on a postal-card, and sent it to a party to whom the plaintiff was affianced. The court, in holding that a verdict for the plaintiff should be sustained, said regarding the main question: "The only facts suggested by the advertisement are—first, that the plaintiff had a drag bill and that the creditor wishes to pay it—do not necessarily impute anything to the plaintiff. But words which may be taken to themselves may be rendered libellous by the place and circumstances of their publication, for such place and circumstances may impress on them a meaning and suggestion which standing alone they do not have. Although the words here do not of themselves impute wrong, they might be published in a place or under such circumstances as make them capable of naturally conveying the expression that plaintiff had been guilty of such practices, either in contracting the debt or in withholding payment of it."
