

FROM OTHER SOURCES.

The comments made last issue about the number of slackers in Government offices has been taken exception to by some members of the Calgary Post Office, who claim that the Post Office Department of the Dominion have done remarkably well both in men and contributions to funds, etc. That is undoubtedly true and we know for a fact that the Calgary office has done excellently. There are, of course, a number of slackers still in the Post Office service in Canada—and possibly a few of them are in Calgary. It seems a pity that they are allowed to remain and so make it possible for a certain amount of reflection to be cast upon what is really a most patriotic branch of the Civil Service.
